Defenders Retreat On Southern Wing; Their Advance Is Slowed in North

By the Associated Press

Athens, Nov. 7.—Greek forces dug in tonight in their main fortifications near the Ionian Sea to fight it out with the Italians, whose grand assault appeared under way.

[The United Press in a dispatch from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, said that violent fighting was reported in three sectors of the Italo-Greek front and it appeared that a major Italian offensive was gaining ground.

[A Greek broadcast was received in Budapest, Hungary, the United Press reported, which said that Greek troops had encircled a full Italian regiment and that hundreds had surrendered.

[The broadcast said also that Greek and British planes had bombed the Italian base of Valona, damaging the port and an Italian warship. The broadcast admitted that Italian planes had heavily bombed the Greek town of Kompolis, where there were some dead.]

Counterattack in North

[In the Koritza-Biklista sector the momentum of the Greek thrust into Albania was said to be diminishing under strong Italian counterattacks, with the Greek rear under Italian artillery fire. To the south, Italian divisions advancing in the coastal sector from Konispoli were reported to have crossed the Kalamas River near the village of Minina, half way between Filiates and Paramythia on the main road.]

The Italians, launching a massive offensive by land and air, were reported reliably to have established contact with the main Greek lines at some points on this extreme left of the slanting battlefront after the Greeks made a "slight" retreat to new positions.

Greek Positions Strong

Neutral observers said, however, the Greeks were firmly entrenched in their well-fortified emplacements blasted from the sides of the rugged mountains and that the Italians would have an extremely difficult time dislodging them.

[The Italians reported their forces had crossed the Kalamis River in northwestern Greece and were attacking the Epirus defenders with mounting fury.]

The Greeks disclosed the Italians also had thrown newer and faster bombing and fighting planes into the battle. Heretofore they had used biplanes which neutral air experts regarded as second-line craft.

It was possible that Greek capture of Koritza might slow down or even halt the Italian coast drive through a rearguard threat.

German Field Gun Seized Near N. J. Arsenal

Morristown, N. J., Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Sheriff Henry Sperling said tonight that deputies had confiscated a German-made eight centimeter field piece which had been concealed in a heavily-wooded section "within a 10-mile radius of Picatinny arsenal at Dover, N. J."

The artillery piece, slightly larger than the famous French "75," was said to be in perfect condition.

Sperling said he had been aided by Federal investigators, State police and detectives from the Morris County prosecutor's office. The Trenton office of the chief of State police denied knowledge of the matter.

Stocks Soar as Treasury Reveals Plan to Increase Debt Limit to 65 Billion

Morgenthau to Urge Tax on Government Securities, Higher Levies for Defense

Claude Jagger's account of yesterday's stock market reaction, page 2

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau revealed yesterday an Administration program involving a boost in the national debt limit, now $49,000,000,000, to perhaps $65,000,000,000 by June 30, 1942, authority to make all future issues of Government securities—Federal, State and local—subject to taxation, and a general increase in taxes.

That will be only the beginning. Asked if the proposed boost in the debt limit would cover all anticipated expenses during President Roosevelt's third term, Morgenthau replied:

"No. We have just begun to rearm."

The Treasury announcement brought quick reaction in the markets. New York Stock Exchange prices shot upward by from $2 to nearly $8 a share in the sharpest advance in more than a year, and prices of Federal and municipal bonds and of leading farm crops likewise rose sharply.

Byrd Opposes Debt Plan

There were immediate indications that the Treasury request would meet some stiff opposition in Congress. Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, in a statement, opposed raising the debt limit as suggested, calling it an "incentive for further extravagance in government."

Morgenthau said the plan was designed only to meet expenses through the end of the 1942 fiscal year.

The stern postelection announcement, made at a press conference, was viewed as indication of sacrifices to come as the national preparedness bill mounts to unprecedented peacetime totals.

Disclosing that he would press for removal of the tax-exemption feature from Government securities, Morgenthau remarked:

"The time has come when we need the money for national defense from the people who invest in that type of security."

There are about $2,000,000,000 in State and local obligations that will mature next year. The Treasury has outstanding bonds, notes, bills and certificates totaling $44,000,000,000. In addition, it has underwritten obligations of Federal corporations totaling almost $6,000,000,000.

All these vast issues of securities, now free from taxation, would be subjected to levies under the new Morgenthau plan. That is, taxpayers would have to pay taxes on the incomes from these obligations, just

Still 'The Champ'

President Passes Through Triumphal Arch of Cheers

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

A wave of cheering yesterday rolled up Pennsylvania Avenue at 6 miles an hour, pacing President Roosevelt's triumphant trip from Union Station to the White House.

"The Champ," wearing his weather-beaten campaign hat and the most famous smile in America, was back on the job, and at least a third of his fellow-townsmen turned out to give him a tumultous welcome.

Police officials said there were over 200,000 people lining the Presidents' route. The District Commissioners put the vast crowd at "more than 300,000."

The crowd was as gay as its homecoming President. It began to gather in Union Station Plaza shortly after dawn. When the first of the service bands began to play, men and women stamped their feet in time to the music, as a chilly wind swept across the plaza.

Spectators were massed 10 and 15 deep behind the guard ropes when the White House touring car finally rounded the east corner of the station. The President and his running mate, Henry Wallace, shared the back seat, while Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Wallace waved from the jump seats ahead.

Mr. Roosevelt's brief remarks in the plaza, carried from his car to the crowd by loud speakers, were keyed to the friendly, informal tone

Well Done, Washington!

The speed with which arrangements were made to welcome the President, following the suggestion of The Post, and the great turnout which responded were both subjects of admiring comment in Washington yesterday.

The District Commissioners did not overlook a single detail.

All Washington worked as a unit to make the occasion a success.

As an illustration of the cooperation given the Commissioners, radio station WJSV made 28 announcements of the welcoming plans and cancelled two commercial broadcasts to let Washingtonians know about the program.

Power Failure Blacks Out 25,000 Homes

Lights in Alexandria And Arlington Go Out at Mealtime

A power transmission failure last evening blacked out 25,000 homes in Arlington County, Alexandria and Fairfax County just as thousands sat down to the dinner table.

The power failure ranged from 25 minutes in downtown Alexandria to more than five hours in sections of Arlington and Fairfax Counties. It was the second consecutive night that nearby Virginia experienced lights out at dinner time, but this was only a coincidence, according to officials of the Virginia Public Service Co.

James Hurlbut, of the WJSV news department, who resides in the Buckingham Community, called The Post to report that on both nights the family electric clock stopped at 5:42. In Alexandria, police said, lights started going out about 5:45.

The area is chiefly supplied from the Virginia Public Service generating plant at Wolfe and Fiske streets, Alexandria.

James Hawkins, operations superintendent for northern Virginia, said one of the Alexandria station's large generators burned out when the insulation caught on fire.

When the generator burned out, he explained, the automatic circuit breaker cut off the supply from the company's interconnecting system. Because it was the peak hour of electrical consumption, the company's other plants in the State were unable to take care of the situation.

The three remaining generators,

Half-Mile Long Tacoma Span Crumbles, Falls

3 Crawl to Safety As Structure, Noted For Sway, Cracks Up

By the Associated Press

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 7.—The third longest single suspension span in the world, the new $6,400,000 Tacoma Narrows bridge, cracked up and fell with a roar 190 feet into Puget Sound today after swaying crazily in a high wind. It had a center span of 2,800 feet.

The bridge's last occupant, Leonard Coatsworth, a Tacoma News-Tribune reporter, leaped from his automobile after the first cable broke, and crawled 500 yards to safety while the structure tilted at a 45-degree angle.

The car, occupied by Coatsworth's dog, plunged into waters of the sound.

Two Others Escape

Two other persons were on the bridge besides Coatsworth. Arthur Hagen said he had just driven on from the west end when it began to sway. Riding with him was his partner in a transit concern, Mrs. Rudy Jacox.

The two jumped from the truck and alternately crawled and ran to a tower, to be helped ashore by workmen. Mrs. Jacox suffered shock and Hagen was taken to a hospital and treated for bruises and scratches.

Several hundred spectators, standing on the shore near the east approach, watched the steel cables suddenly give way and huge blocks of concrete begin to fall.

Gov. Clarence D. Martin, who came to view the wrecked structure,

First Boost Since 1929

44,000 Naval Employes Get $3,800,000 Increase in Pay

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Pay boosts for 7,000 or more Washington Navy Yard workers were ordered yesterday by the Navy Department as part of a new national schedule of wages which will divide an extra $3,800,000 a year among 44,000 employes.

Along with the Navy Yard workers, employes in the Naval Hospital and Naval Air Station here, the Naval Research Center at Bellevue, the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and the Marine Reservation at Quantico, Va., shared the increase.

The order, effective November 18, was the first general adjustment of wages for the unskilled and skilled workers in Navy Yards and other field establishments since 1929.

44 Classes Affected

Officials at the Washington Navy Yard said the total of 7,000 workers likely to share in the increase was a preliminary estimate. They said they had not yet determined what the Washington yard's annual payroll increase might be as a result of the order.

The increases were ordered for 44 classes of semi-skilled and skilled workmen, plus employes in the supervisory mechanical service. For the workmen hourly pay boosts ranged from 1 cent an hour for oilers, to 12.8 cents an hour for trackmen.

Master mechanics were boosted from a salary scale which ranged from $13.248 to $20.448 a day to a new scale ranging from $16 to $22 a day; the scale for foremen was raised from $9.60 to $16.80 to $10.80 to $18.

Laundrymen, bakers, cooks, maids, stewards, mess attendants and others were among those given substantial pay boosts in Washington, Annapolis and Quantico.

At Annapolis, seamen and coxswains shared in the salary raises. Minimum pay for seamen went from $1,440 a year to $1,860, for coxswains from $1,320 to $1,680. For the chief laundryman at Annapolis the pay minimum went from $2,000 to $2,800, the maximum from $2,100 to $3,000 a year, with other increases for laundry employes all down the line. The academy's chief baker was given a $400

Mrs. Roosevelt Explains She Doesn't Profit From Earnings

Now it can be told.

Without fear of facts being discounted as "campaign propaganda," the story of what Mrs. Roosevelt has done with the money she has earned since she has been First Lady was revealed yesterday at her first press conference since the election.

"There seems to be an impression that through the last seven years I have made an enormous amount of money and laid it up," she said. "I have made a great deal of money, but I don't have 1 cent more than I had in 1933, and I have not made any investments."

She said further that her guiding principle had been "to keep everything I have made in circulation."

And she added, "I would like to say also that none of my family has profited by any money I have made."

Part of her earnings has gone to charity. A substantial and continuous contribution has been given to the American Friends Service committee. Some of her money has gone toward wages of persons whose services she does not actually need but who otherwise would be on charity. Small loans to numerous persons starting small businesses have also taken their share of her earnings.

"If such loans—some of which may be paid back later—could be called investments, then I have made investments," she continued.

London, Nov. 7.—After Royal Air Force bombers had hummed over Berlin once again as well as more than a dozen other points in Germany, Holland and France this morning and last night on their tireless errands of destruction of the enemy military machine, the British government served notice today that Rome may soon be added to the British airforce targets.

The Crusade Goes On

Martin Urges Party to Continue Fight for Willkie's Principles

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., of the Republican National Committee, last night called on Republicans to "continue the fight" for the campaign principles of Wendell L. Willkie.

As another State, Michigan, nosed into the Willkie column, Martin claimed Republicans only narrowly missed victory.

The eleventh-hour Michigan shift, by a margin of only 1,571 votes, cut the President's electoral college ballot to 449 in 38 States, and gave Willkie a total of 82 in ten States.

But it was the popular vote, breaking all Republican Presidential records, that Martin said would show the country "how very close we came."

With only 6,910 precincts uncounted, the Roosevelt popular vote stood at 26,147,727 to 21,750,030 for Willkie, or a margin of 4,397,697 votes.

Willkie planned to take the radio Monday to talk to this minority, the largest any defeated Presidential candidate ever had.

Martin, meanwhile, announced that the fight will go on because "a crusade such as we have started cannot be stopped by this temporary setback."

"We are for national unity," said Martin. "We are for a strong defense. We shall support the President when not in conflict with the great principles for which we fought in this crusade."

The Martin statement on national unity followed Nation-wide bipartisan expressions for a post-election national cooperative effort to meet the world crisis.

As Willkie prepared to take the radio to restate his position, reports were current here that one of the first acts of the President may be a plea for united national action to meet "the troubled days ahead."

The President at the White House was receiving many assurances of cooperation in an American united front, and some reminders of the closeness of the vote.

Among the latter, Roger W. Babson, economist and Prohibition Party candidate, sent "hearty con-

Argentina Seeks $100,000,000 Pump Priming Loan From U.S.

By the United Press

Buenos Aires, Nov. 7.—A financial mission will leave for Washington tomorrow to seek an estimated $100,000,000 loan in connection with the Argentine government's plan to rush through a vast financial and economic recovery plan to save the country from a serious crisis.

The mission, headed by Dr. Paul Prebisch, manager of the Central Bank, includes Edgar Grumbach, chief of the Central Bank's foreign exchange department, and Roberto A. Verrier, chief of the economic study department. They will be accompanied by Christian M. Ravndal, second secretary of the United States Embassy.

The government is anxious to secure Washington's full cooperation in the recovery program worked out by Finance Minister Frederico Pinedo.

A general outline of the recovery plan was revealed last night when the government felt Mr. Roosevelt's reelection assured the continuity of the good-neighbor policy and close economic cooperation with Latin America.

President Roosevelt's reelection was said to have been the "go" signal for the government's drastic plan to save this country from financial and economic stagnation caused by the loss of European markets.

Threatened Colored Driver

Police Hunting 'Sniper' Seize Suspect in Assault Case

Discovery of a .38-caliber gun in the home of a District man charged with assaulting a colored motorist yesterday aroused police speculation that the subject might be connected with Washington's four sniper slayings.

Although the lone witness to the last sniper killing failed to identify the subject, police turned the pistol over to Lieut. John Fowler, ballistics expert, to determine whether it is the same one used by the sniper. The last three victims of the sniper were pierced by .38-caliber bullets.

Near midnight Tuesday, Raymond Quigley, colored, of 929 Twenty-sixth Street Northwest, was threatened with a "black gun" by another motorist at New Hampshire Avenue and Corcoran Street Northwest, he reported to police. As the assailant brandished the weapon Quigley raced his auto away, but not before noting the tag numbers of the other car.

Police immediately went to the home of the person recorded as owner of the tags and he, according to the detectives, denied accosting Quigley. Looking around the apartment, in the 900 block of Twenty-third Street Northwest, the investigators found two .32-caliber pistols and two shoulder holsters, they said.

Soviet Fete Held; War Stops White House Reception

Washington's Diplomatic Corps, including high ranking officials of the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Italy, Turkey, China and Japan, found a common ground last night. They jammed the Soviet Embassy for a reception celebrating the 1917 Russian revolution.

But such a mingling of emissaries whose countries are at war, or fear war, or have experienced conquest, will not be attempted at the White House this winter, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt announced yesterday that the annual diplomatic reception has been call off "to avoid embarrassment."

In contrast to last year when the Soviet affair was virtually boycotted because of Russian-American differences and Russia's war on Finland, more than 900 persons, including Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles, attended the two-hour event.

Stocks Soar in Best Day Since Sept. '39

Some Issues Gain Nearly $8; Bond, Crop Prices Spurt

By Claude A. Jagger
Associated Press Financial Editor.

New York, Nov. 7.—Shares of major corporations and prices of Federal and municipal bonds, together with those of leading farm crops, shot upward in today's markets in the wake of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's statement foreshadowing huge Government borrowing and spending.

Prices in the New York Stock Exchange had the sharpest advance in more than a year. Gains of $2 to nearly $8 a share made it the widest gain since a surge of war buying on September 5, 1939.

Wheat in the Chicago Pit rose 3 to 3⅝ cents a bushel, the grain for December delivery touching 87¾ cents a bushel, coming within ⅛ of a cent of the six-months top reached a fortnight ago. Cotton at New York rose 70 cents to $1.05 a bale, and wool, hides, rubber and most other staples traded in futures exchanges were higher.

Treasury Bonds Gain

Despite the expectation the Federal Government would issue many more billions of bonds, the Treasury issues were heavily bought in Wall Street at sharply rising prices. Demand for several existing issues was spurred by Secretary Morgenthau's statement he would ask Congress to remove from all future issues the tax exempt feature.

Some of the Treasury bonds gained $10 and more per $1,000 par value, a number reaching the highest prices since they were issued. Demand also spread to tax exempt municipal issues, New York City bonds reaching new highs.

Many Wall Street analysts saw inflationary implications in the Secretary's statement. (Inflation means roughly a larger increase in the circulating medium—money and bank checks—in a given period than the corresponding increase in the production of goods, resulting in rising prices.)

However, some noted the markets did not follow what analysts regard as a strictly inflationary pattern, for fixed income securities such as bonds rose along with staples and industrial shares, and a nearby threat of inflation would normally be expected to depress fixed income issues.

Treasury to Ask Debt Limit Boost

Won't Be Retroactive

Morgenthau gave the assurance that he will not ask that the removal of the tax-exemption feature be made retroactive.

This fact, he said, meant that revenue from this new source would be small the first year, but would increase gradually.

There was little likelihood that Congress, which has turned down similar proposals innumerable times, would act on the tax-exemption removal before the Seventy-Seventh Congress meets next year.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, informed of Morgenthau's determination to press speedily for a new fiscal program, said he did not see "why those things cannot be carried over for six weeks."

An amendment, sponsored by Senator Brown (Democrat), of Michigan, for reciprocal taxation of Federal, State and local securities, was rejected by the Senate September 19 during action on the excess profits tax bill.

Morgenthau gave no indication of how large an increase in rates of general taxation he might request, saying only "we will need more taxes."

The Treasury Secretary definitely rejected suggestions that national defense be paid for on a "pay as you go" basis, terming it "impossible."

He interjected, however, that the Treasury expects revenues to rise as industrial production mounts.

The danger of inflation, leading to a higher cost of living, was uppermost in the Treasury chief's mind as he announced the Government's schedule for greatly increased lending and spending.

"I do not fear inflation," Morgenthau said. "Not with Mr. Roosevelt back in the White House," he added.

"Wherever any particular commodity gets out of line I feel that with Mr. Roosevelt here we can take steps to adjust it, but it has to be watched every single minute."

Morgenthau also said that he would ask Congress to remove restrictions now placed on issuance of $4,000,000,000 of securities above the technical debt limit of $45,000,000,000. The extra four billions must be in five-year bonds for national defense, Congress prescribed. The Treasury finds this restriction onerous, and would like to have its present borrowing authority of $45,000,000,000 subject to uniform rules.

Issuance of Treasury bills, Morgenthau indicated, would be gradually discontinued if Congress increases the debt limit. As the usual short-term Treasury bills run out the Treasury is issuing national defense bills, the first such issue being announced yesterday. It comprised $100,000,000 in 92-day bills, sold on a discout basis to the highest bidders.

Public Support Sought

When broader authority is secured, the Treasury plans to issue notes instead of bills, for its short-term financing.

Evincing determination to muster public support for his plan to pay the cost of defense, Morgenthau said the Treasury intended to use publicity "to bring to the attention of the public that we need an increase in the debt limit and that all securities should pay taxes."

Senator Byrd, a constant advocate of economy in government, counseled that any increase in the debt limit, if it must be granted, should be made piecemeal and not in a $20,000,000,000 lump.

"The Congress should keep its control of the statutory debt limitation," he stated, "by authorizing only such increases as are found to be necessary from time to time to meet the urgent needs of the Treasury.

He pleaded for reduction of non-defense expenditures by the Government, a plea which was often made during the recent session of Congress but which received scant attention from the legislators.

Democratic Gain Over G. O. P. In House Is Set at Seven

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

With a probable net gain of seven seats, the Democratic majority increased its total House membership to 268, late returns from doubtful Congressional districts indicated last night.

The Republicans apparently dropped to 162, with a net loss of eight seats, while the Progressives picked up one seat from the G. O. P. to boost their membership to three. One Farmer-Laborite and one American-Laborite complete the roll.

Prior to election day, the Democrats held 258 seats; the Republicans, 167; the Progressives, 2; Farmer-Laborites, 1, and American-Laborites, 1. But there were six vacancies, three formerly held by Democrats and three by Republicans.

In the Senate, final reports gave the Republicans a net gain of four seats to a total of 28, the highest figure for the G. O. P. since 1934. The Democrats dropped from a total of 69 to 66; and the Farmer-Labor representation disappeared with the re-election of Senator Henrik Shipstead, of Minnesota, former Farmer-Laborite, as a Republican.

Senator LaFollette, (Progressive) of Wisconsin, who won after a hard fight; and Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, bring the Senate total to 96.

In the 34 gubernatorial contests, the Republicans had won in 15 States (including Maine, which held its election in September), the Democrats in 17, and two, Kansas and Washington, were undecided. Incumbent governors included 15 Republicans and 19 Democrats.

In Kansas, Democrat William H. Burke held a slight lead over Gov. Payne H. Ratner, Republican; while in Washington, which is now governed by a Democrat, Republican Arthur B. Langlie had the edge on former Democratic Senator Clarence C. Dill.

The only House race still in doubt was that between Representative Knute Hill, Democrat, and Frank Miller, Republican, in Washington's Fourth District. But late yesterday, the incumbent held a lead of some 2600 votes, with two precincts missing.

Virtually complete returns show that the Democrats won 22 House seats and lost 15, while the G. O. P. picked up 15 and lost 23. The Democrats won four seats each in Connecticut, Ohio and Pennsylvania; two in Rhode Island; and one in Delaware, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Although Democratic Representative Joseph W. Byrns, son of the late Speaker, was defeated in Tennessee, his "Independent Democratic" successor, J. Percival Priest, is expected to caucus with the majority party.

Despite President Roosevelt's victory in the State, the G. O. P. defeated six incumbent Democratic Representatives in Illinois. Other Republican gains were in Colorado and Missouri (two each); and one in California, Indiana, Minnesota, New York and Oklahoma. The Progressives took one seat from the G. O. P. in Wisconsin.

The last Senate contest to be decided was the struggle between former Gov. William Langer, Republican; Independent Representative William Lemke, and Democrat Charles J. Vogel for the seat held by Republican Senator Lynn J. Frazier. Late returns gave Langer the victory.

The exciting race in Indiana between Senator Sherman Minton, New Deal stalwart, and Republican publisher Raymond E. Willis ended with the incumbent 15,500 votes behind. In Illinois, Republican C. Wayland Brooks defeated Democratic incumbent Senator James M. Slattery, 2,037,871 to 2,020,928.

Wins Short Term

Denver, Nov. 7 (AP).—William E. Burney, Pueblo insurance man, may sit in the National House of Representatives for a month unless Congress adjourns.

Unofficial returns today showed Burney, a Democrat, was elected to the Third Colorado District vacancy created by the death last December of Representative John A. Martin, Democrat.

However, Burney cannot claim the seat until about December 1, after the official canvass and issuance of an election certificate. Then he could serve only until January 3, when J. Edgar Chenoweth, Republican winner of the regular two-year term, will take office.

Both Burney and his opponent, Henry Leonard, Republican State chairman, were nominated by write-in votes after their parties declined to designate candidates for the vacancy. Burney won, 66,169 to 63,771.

President To Speak Twice Armistice Day

Arlington, Naval Medical Center Exercises on Schedule

President Roosevelt will observe Armistice Day by speaking at Arlington Cemetery at 11 a. m. and laying the cornerstone for the Naval Medical Center in the afternoon, the White House announced yesterday.

The President's address Monday at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier will feature the customary anniversary services sponsored by the American Legion. The address will be broadcast nationally.

At 3:30 in the afternoon the Chief Executive will make an address at the future home of the Naval Medical Center on the Rockville Pike, just across the road from the National Institute of Health, which he dedicated last week.

The new Medical Center, now just a framework of steel and concrete, will cost $7,000,000 and be ready for occupancy January 1, 1942.

The center is to include a hospital with 500 beds, a medical school, dental school and schools for laboratory, dental, X-ray, electrocardiographic and other technicians.

The Navy Medical School, now housed in an old building at Twenty-third and E streets northwest, is the only important school of naval medicine in the Western Hemisphere.

Its new structure, said to have been designed by President Roosevelt personally, features a 250-foot tower topped by a beacon light to guide airplanes.

Jutting out from the base of the tower will be wings and wards, three to four stories high. The structure will be surfaced with a composition called aggregate, containing broken quartz and rock.

Enlisted men on duty in this area, officers on duty in this area and transferred here, and retired officers will qualify as patients.

Rear Admiral Harold W. Smith (M. C.) is in command of the center.

Coincident with the announcement of the President's speaking plans, the White House disclosed that its grounds and downstairs apartments would be reopened to tourists today for the first time since July.

Visiting hours from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. on weekdays will be re-established, and pedestrians again will be permitted to use the front lawn and driveway as a crosscut. These privileges were suspended during the summer, while the White House was being renovated and repainted.

President Roosevelt will spend Thanksgiving—November 21—at his Hyde Park, N. Y., home, it was announced. Due to the international situation, he will be unable to spend the holidays at Warm Springs, Ga., his custom in other years. Warm Springs, it was explained, is more than 24 hours from Washington and the President does not wish to be that far from his desk in these troubled times.

gratulations" but observed that "one per cent of the vote properly allocated would have elected Wendell Willkie.

"Therefore know you will work for coalition, both with Republican and minority parties," said Babson. "Please keep well. Four great years ahead."

The Congressional outlook, left at virtually a stand-off by a Democratic net gain of seven House seats and a Republican pick-up of four in the Senate, was expected to be the subject of a leadership conference at the White House next week.

November 18 was discussed at the Capitol as a tentative sine die adjournment date, but a decision on disposal of pending minor business will await a full session of both houses Tuesday. There remained a possibility that the present session might be asked to meet Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's request to make available for general financing the $4,000,000,000 which it authorized for special defense borrowing.

Martin's statement last night made no reference to adjournment but asserted a Republican Party purpose "to take full advantage of the new and progressive leadership and support that has come to us in this campaign."

The Republican national chairman and House minority leader said he was "naturally disappointed," but had the comfort of knowing the Willkie-McNary principles "were approved by nearly 23,000,000 voters."

Thanking the Republican organization, Willkie volunteers and Democrats-for-Willkie, he said:

"I hope all who joined us in this crusade will continue their interest in our cause. We shall keep up the good fight and in 1942 we will elect a Republican Congress and prepare the way for a greater victory in 1944. A just cause cannot be stopped."

Wellesley, Mass., Nov. 7 (AP).—Roger W. Babson, defeated New Prohibition Party candidate, today congratulated President Roosevelt on his reelection.

"Hearty congratulations," said Babson. "A defeated statistician, however, humbly reminds you that 1 per cent of the vote properly allocated would have elected Wendell Willkie. Therefore know you will work for coalition, both with Republicans and minority parties. Please keep well. Four great years are ahead."

Babson asserted in an interview later that the Republicans "are altogether too blue and have an inferiority complex," and suggested that "instead of reading the headlines, they should study the statistics."

Elaborating on his statement that a 1 per cent shift of vote would have elected Willkie, he said that 500,000 votes distributed in States where the outcome was close would have given the Republican standard bearer a winning margin.

Willkie, he said, could have been elected with an electoral college vote of more than the required 266 if approximately the following number of voters had shifted in these States: Massachusetts, 70,000; Idaho, 10,000; Minnesota, 18,000; Wisconsin, 11,000; Illinois, 47,000; New York, 125,000; Ohio, 75,000; New Jersey, 34,000; Kentucky, 63,000, and Missouri, 45,000.

Contracts Signed In U. S.-Bolivia Tin Smelting Plan

By the United Press

Boliva and the United States embarked yesterday on the long-heralded plan whereby Bolivan tin ores would be smelted in the United States, a measure designed simultaneously to serve national defense interests and to promote inter-American economic cooperation.

Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, announced that contracts were signed November 4 between the Federally-financed Metals Reserve Company and tin ore producers in Boliva for the purchase of tin ores and concentrates sufficient to produce 18,000 tons of fine tin a year for the next five years.

Bolivan tin producers participating in the deal are the Compagnie Aramayo de Mines en Bolivia, the Compania Minera de Oruro group, Compania Minera Unificada del Cerro de Potosi, Associacion Nacional de Mineros Medianos and Banco Minero de Bolivia.

Turkey Reported Rounding Up Spies

Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 7 (AP).—The arrest of nearly 100 spy suspects was reported tonight in foreign circles, but there was no official confirmation.

There were rumors that Italians, Germans and Bulgarians were among the suspected potential "fifth columnists" detained.

Willkie Plans Talk to Nation

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie announced tonight he would make a radio speech Monday because "I feel an obligation to state my viewpoint of the obligations and position of the millions who voted for me."

The networks donated time for the broadcast, to be carried from 10:30 to 11 p. m. (E. S. T.) Monday by N. B. C., C. B. S. and M. B. S.

The Republican standard bearer told a press conference that he had received "stacks and stacks" of mail and telegrams and that virtually all urged him to restate his views "during this period, in view of the election"

"In view of the fact that between 22,000,000 and 23,000,000 people voted for me," Willkie said, "I feel an obligation to state my position. I feel I owe that to those who voted for me, and I also want to talk to the Nation."

Willkie said there was "general discussion" on the election, but that no discussions regarding the future were reached.

Drill Shows What's In Store for Selects

Fort Myer Soldiers Set Up Machine Gun In Record Time

By George Thorpe.
Post Staff Writer

A preview of the life awaiting Washington selectives—the transformation from civilian artisan to hardened soldier—was observed yesterday in a cavalry demonstration staged for The Washington Post at Fort Myer, Va.

The mounted squad that went through machine-gun drill with clockwork precision was partly made up of men who have little more than 16 weeks' training figured to turn drafted men from the Third Corps Area into "soldiers"—but not the finished cavalryman, it was emphasized.

Strength of the Third Cavalry, "Washington's Own" regiment, is to be brought up to the full war strength of 1,342 by the addition of recruits and selectives. Many of the latter are expected to come from Washington.

Routine Exercise

Typical of the training in store for the drafted Capital men was the gun drill. It was one of the routine exercises repeated until every man knows his special role and the combat unit performs as a letter-perfect machine.

A score of soldiers wriggled across a rough stretch of ground, dragging heavy .30-caliber machine-gun parts. Tripods were set up and the guns, their barrels circled by the hose of water-cooling apparatus, were assembled and dismantled.

This type of weapon furnishes the main fire support for advancing troops, officers explained.

The drill was climaxed by a mounted squad maneuver, exemplifying the performance expected of trainees after six months or so of Army life.

A squad of six privates, led by a corporal, urged their horses down a slope behind post headquarters, and galloped the animals 200 yards across the field.

Behind the corporal came the No. 1 and No. 2 gunners and the ammunition carrier. To the rear three men drove pack animals bearing dismantled guns and tripods, fire boxes and ammunition cases.

At a signal from the corporal, the squad dismounted, set up and assembled the machine gun. If enemy troops instead of an expanse of Virginia countryside had faced the cavalrymen, the gun would have been fired—by stop watch timing—32 seconds after the dismount signal.

Selectives called to service at Fort Myer will be formed into one of the newer Army units, a special weapons troop which fires .50-caliber anti-tank and anti-armored car guns. These can be set up in firing order on the ground as quickly as the .30-caliber machine guns. The guns are carried on pack horses in the same manner.

Visiting at Fort Myer yesterday was the former leader of this country's cavalry, Maj. Gen. Leon B. Kromer, retired. The officer's answer to the much debated question, "Will motorized cavalry replace horse troops?" was an emphatic no.

Preparations Pushed.

"Versatility is the keynote of an army. We must have different weapons just as a football team has to have a repertoire of plays. The machines can't go all the places the cavalry does, and the cavalry moves faster than the infantry."

Meanwhile, the local draft officials pushed preparations necessary to equip the Fifth Marine Reserve Headquarters, 458 Indiana Avenue Northwest, as induction center for local selectives now that the leatherneck unit has departed for Quantico, Va.

Equipment will be moved into the building the middle of next week. Twelve physicians and 18 enlisted men are to comprise the personnel attendant to the physical examinations and swearing-in process November 27 and 28. Administrative duties are to be handled by three officers and 15 men. All are to be appointed by the War Department.

Local Draft Board No. 23 announced that members of the registrants advisory committee will be at Burrville School, Division Avenue and Hayes Street Northeast, 7 to 10 p. m. today in order to assist registrants having difficulty filling out questionnaires.

At the same time, Clarence A. Dykstra, Selective Service chief, called on employers to give their employes who volunteer for military duty the same job protection granted those who are drafted.

Dykstra said that his organization had heard suggestions that private employers and agencies might not consider employes who volunteered as eligible for job protection as those called up for military service.

The Selective Service Act, said Dykstra, "does not differentiate in this regard and men who volunteer for service and are inducted into the armed forces are entitled to the same job protection as men actually called up for training by their local boards."

Officials pointed out that the Selective Service Act guarantees permanent Government employes return of their jobs after military service, and setup the same policy for private employes "unless the employers' circumstances have so changed as to make it impossible to restore the worker's job."

U. S. Detention Of Baltic States' Ships Disclosed

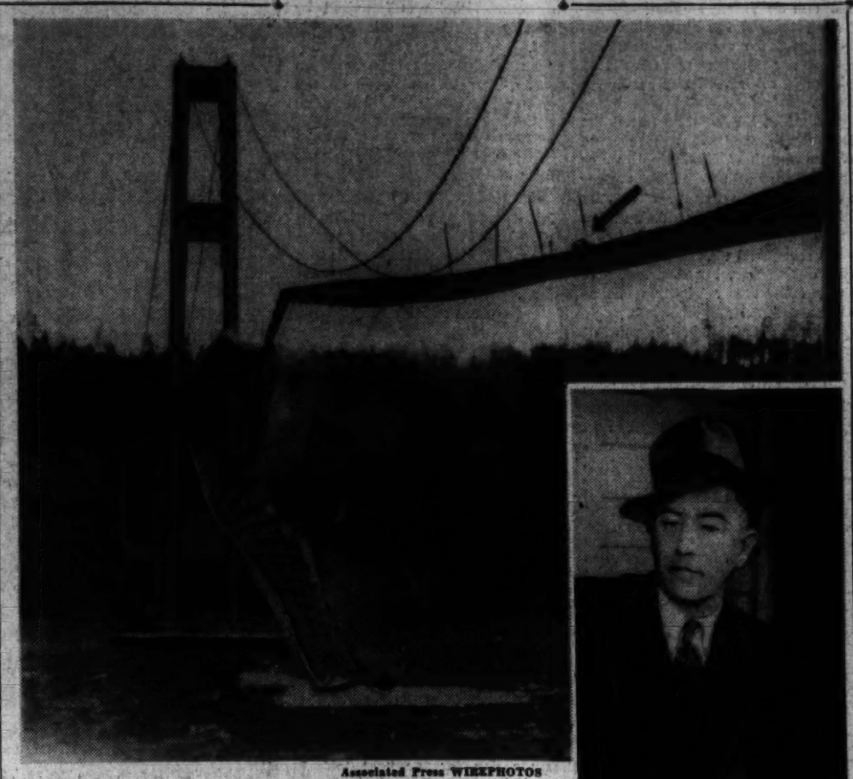
Detention by the United States Government of nine Latvian and Estonian ships which were at anchor in American ports when Soviet Russia annexed those Baltic republics, was disclosed here yesterday.

Soviet demands for their release have been parried, officials said, on grounds that the vessels are included in the assets frozen by the Treasury when the annexations occurred last July.

Diplomatic exchanges are continuing, however, with the ultimate disposition of the ships an open question.

In a public statement upon the annexations at the time, Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, denounced the Soviet action as a "deliberate annihilation" of the republics' [illegible]. He added the United [illegible] would continue to recog[illegible]ity

Great Bridge As It Plunged Into Sound



Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

DISINTEGRATES BEFORE THE EYE—A great section of the Tacoma Narrows Bridge, whipped about like a hammock by the wind, plunges 190 feet into Puget Sound after its twisted steel cables snap. Arrow points to a car abandoned by Leonard Coatsworth (right), newspaper reporter, who crawled off the span to safety. Note how his shoes are scraped and the knees torn out of his pants.

Reporter Describes Escape on Bridge

Crawled 500 Yards As Span Cracked, Shivered Under Him

Editor's note: Leonard Coatsworth, Tacoma News Tribune reporter, barely escaped death today as the Tacoma Narrows Bridge—third longest in the world—crumbled and fell into Puget Sound. Here is his story:

By Leonard Coatsworth
Tacoma News Tribune Reporter
(Copyright, 1940, by the Tacoma, Wash., News Tribune)

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 7.—I saw the Narrows Bridge die today, and only by the grace of God escaped dying with it.

I have been near death many times in my life, but not even in my worst experiences in France did I experience the feeling of helpless horror that gripped me when I was trapped on the bridge this morning.

Before starting over the bridge I had driven underneath the approach to watch the motion. The undulations were more rapid than I had ever seen before. This, however, was the only difference I saw from other times when a strong breeze was blowing.

I started across. In the car with me was my daughter's cocker spaniel, Tubby. Not until I reached the first towers did I realize something was terribly wrong.

Either just as I reached the towers, or just as I drove past them, the bridge began to sway violently from side to side. This was something new in my experience with the bridge. Heretofore, the noticeable motion has been up and down.

Hurled Into Curb

Before I realized it, the tilt from side to side became so violent I lost control of the car. I jammed on the brakes and got out, only to be thrown onto my face against the curb. I tried to stand and was thrown again. Around me I could hear the concrete cracking.

I started back to the car to get the dog, but was thrown before I could reach it. The car itself began to slide from side to side of the roadway. I decided the bridge was breaking up and my only hope was to get back to shore.

On hands and knees most of the time I crawled 500 yards or more to the towers. I became aware of another man, across the roadway from me, alternately crawling and then running a few steps in a crouched position.

My breath was coming in gasps, my knees were raw and bleeding, my hands bruised and swollen from gripping the concrete curb. But I was spurred by the thought that if I could reach the towers I would be safe.

Finally my breath gave out completely and I lay in the roadway, clutching the curb until I could breathe again, and then resumed my tortuous progress.

Toward the last I risked rising to my feet and running a few yards at a time. The man on the other side gained the towers before I did and I envied his better endurance.

I believe that right to this minute what appalls me most is that within a few hours I must tell my daughter that her dog is dead, when I might have saved him.

Half-Mile Tacoma Bridge Collapses

said it would be rebuilt immediately.

C. E. Andrew, chief engineer of the bridge, said the collapse probably was due to the fact that flat, solid girders were used on the sides of the bridge, offering resistance to the wind. He said originally plans called for open trusses but that plans were changed by another engineer.

[PWA officials in Washington said they did not know who the engineer who changed original plans was.]

Officials said the structure was insured against "all risks" and that the State and bondholders would not lose. The span, completed only last July, was built by the State Toll Bridge Authority, a division of the State government. It was financed originally through a $2,900,000 PWA grant and $3,520,000 in bonds sold to the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

[Federal Works Administrator Carmody announced in Washington last night that he had ordered an immediate investigation of the Tacoma bridge collapse. PWA, a spokesman said, is ready to share the blame for the catastrophe.

[The agency, an official explained, reviews plans of structures before authorizing a grant of funds and then assigns an engineer to make continual inspections of the actual construction. In addition, PWA engineers test materials supplied by manufacturers to make sure they meet contract specifications.

[There had been recent reports of swaying and unusual vibrations in the Tacoma bridge, the spokesman said, but engineers were working to correct them and the PWA understood that the defects had been remedied.

[PWA would not need to be reimbursed for its grant of funds for the Tacoma bridge, the official said, since the grant was an outright gift with no provision for repayment.]

The bridge shortened the distance between the mainland and the Olympic peninsula.

The wind was blowing at about 35 miles an hour when the bridge started to disintegrate.

Shortly before noon the giant structure's two 1,000-foot approaches on either end began to give way, cracked up in small pieces and fell.

A 100-foot section was the first to drop, followed by a weird roar as the rest of the suspension cracked and fell into the water.

The entire bridge, except the two 425-foot steel towers sunk deeply below the water, collapsed.

Since its opening the bridge had been nicknamed "Galloping Gertie" because of its strange weaving motion in the wind.

Cheering Throngs Welcome President of the reception.

"My old friends of Washington," the President began. "This means a great deal to me, to Mrs. Roosevelt, and to Mr. and Mrs. Wallace, because it isn't as though we were new to Washington. Your turning out in this way means that we get along together pretty well.

"You all know how much Henry Wallace and I like farm life, but of all the cities in the world, we'd rather live in Washington than any other place.

"Thank you all from the bottom of our hearts. We are glad of the results of two days ago and of the prospects of staying here just a little longer."

As the President's motorcade turned south into Delaware Avenue, to the refrain of "Happy Days Are Here Again," hundreds of schoolchildren raced away from the plaza to give a running ovation to Mr. Roosevelt.

Still clasping their texts and notebooks, they cut across the park between the Capitol and station to keep pace with the White House limousines turning into Constitution Avenue.

There were thousands of adults as well as children trotting along the sidewalks bordering the President's route until the big touring car came into Pennsylvania Avenue, where dense crowds finally halted Mr. Roosevelt's breathless escorts.

The storm of cheering moved on up "the Avenue," rising from crowded sidewalks and the windows of "the Federal Triangle," office buildings, stores and hotels.

Children shouted "One-Two-Three-Four, Who are we for, Roosevelt, Roosevelt, Rah, Rah, Rah." Men flourished placards reading, "Welcome Home, Champ." On lapels there were Roosevelt and Wallace buttons and "I Told You So" badges.

At the White House President Roosevelt found his entire staff waiting to congratulate him. On the north lawn, opened to the public yesterday for the first time since July, a crowd of 5,000 was chanting, "We Want Roosevelt."

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt paused only a few minutes in the White House before stepping out onto the portico. Bareheaded, the President waved repeatedly in response to the cheers from his front yard.

When Mr. Roosevelt went back into the White House the crowd thinned out, but hundreds stayed on to sing "God Bless America" and clamor for another Presidential appearance. About an hour after his arrival at the executive mansion the President came through the door again for a final salute to his Washington neighbors.

In the whole morning's demonstration there was only one touch of formality, supplied by the morning coats worn at Union Station by the District Commissioners. Others who welcomed President Roosevelt in his private car, as soon as the special train pulled in from Hyde Park, were Secretary Hull and half a dozen other Cabinet members with their wives, Gov. Price of Virginia, several members of Congress, Chairman Norman Davis of the Red Cross, and Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who had come to Washington Wednesday, was the first to greet the President. She was followed into the train by Vice President-elect Wallace and his wife.

The two successful candidates and their wives then posed for photographs on the back platform, with Mr. Roosevelt aiding the cameramen in their pleas for a more animated gesture from Wallace.

Outside the station the waiting crowd was diverted by cameramen who encouraged cheers and handwaving for focusing purposes. When the Government dignitaries, Secret Service men and reporters accompanying the President had all taken seats in automobiles the Presidential procession numbered close to 25 cars.

Police, firemen and National Guardsmen held back the crowds behind cables along the President's 2-mile route to the White House, which took 20 minutes to travel. As the crowds broke behind the last of the official limousines, there was a wild surge toward bus and streetcar lines. Police said traffic was normal throughout downtown Washington by 10 a. m., less than an hour after the President's car had passed into the White House grounds.

White House aides later yesterday described the President as "perfectly delighted" by his welcome and very grateful to the District Commissioners for their part in arrangements.

Plans for the record-breaking reception, drawn up in 12 hours Wednesday, were carried out without a hitch. Only "incident" of the day was the arrest of two young men distributing leaflets in East Executive Avenue.

Roosevelt Confers With Defense Board

Copyright by New York Times

The priorities board of the National Advisory Defense Commission held a prolonged conference yesterday immediately following a conference of 2 hours and 15 minutes between members of the defense commission and President Roosevelt at the White House.

No official information on the subject discussed was given out beyond the statement of William S. Knudsen that the priorities board had on its docket President Roosevelt's request for 12,000 more airplanes for Britain.

The belief was general that the matter of additional palnes for England had been at least one of the topics' discussed at the conference with the President, but the official spokesman for the defense commission asserted flatly that the British plane project had not been discussed at that conference.

This project was first publicly broached by the President in his campaign speech at Boston on October 30, in which he said such a request had been laid before the priorities board and that he had accompanied it with a suggestion that it receive the board's "most sympathetic consideration." These 12,000 additional planes would raise this country's commitments for planes to Britain to 26,000.

Speculation that the 12,000 planes for Britain project was under discussion at the defense commission's conference with the President was encouraged by the fact that Arthur B. Purvis, chairman of the British Purchasing Commission, and Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy called on the President today.

Purvis arrived to say farewell before his departure for England, and his call and the Defense Commission's conference may have been purely coincidental. But it is generally assumed here that Purvis is taking to London definite information on concrete subjects.

In circles familiar with defense problems, considerable doubt is expressed at the ability of American industry to furnish Britain airplanes on the ambitious scale now proposed—in the near future, at least.

It is said on good authority that fewer than 2,000 motors for fighting planes—that is motors of 500 to 2,000 horsepower, and averaging 1,200 horsepower—are now being built a month by American engine builders.

Light Current Fails In Nearby Virginia

Hawkins declared, were used as quickly as possible to supply power to the Naval Radio Station at Arlington, Fort Belvoir, Lorton, the Alexandria Torpedo Station, and downtown Alexandria. Most of the affected area was without power for 56 minutes, according to Hawkins, with all lights on in the remote regions by 11 p. m.

As to interruption in electrical service Wednesday night, officials said that was due to the wind snapping a transmission line.

Affected were about 12,000 homes in Arlington County, 10,000 in Alexandria, and 3,000 in Fairfax County up to Herndon, altogether an area of 140 square miles. Fort Belvoir was also in darkness.

Hospital Provided For

Alexandria Hospital, which has an emergency storage battery, escaped the general blackout, but the Alexandria Fire Department, to be on the safe side, rushed a spare generator to the hospital.

More than 2,000 calls flooded the Alexandria office of the power company in the first two hours, according to the chief operator. Homemakers complaining about cold electric stoves and furnaces with the temperature at 40—eight degrees above freezing—folks missing their favorite radio programs, and beauty shop operators besieged the various police and fire departments by phone to demand action.

Despite the fact that traffic lights went out in Arlington County and other sectors, police reported no accidents or unusual incidents during the period of darkness. In Fairfax, the lights went on at 7:40, and went out again for another stretch at 9:17.

Part of Arlington County, especially Rosslyn, across the river from Georgetown, is supplied by the Braddock Light & Power Co., and thus suffered no interruption.

Justice Black's Wife In 'Fair' Condition

Mrs. Hugh L. Black, wife of the Supreme Court justice, was reported in "fair" condition last night at George Washington Hospital, following an operation there.

Dr. Paul Dickens, her physician, said it was a major operation but not an emergency operation, performed Tuesday morning by Dr. Howard Kane. Mrs. Black was admitted to the hospital Monday.

British Recapture Gallabat in Sudan

Town Taken in 45 Minutes; R. A. F. Bombs Naval Base

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Nov. 7.—The British announced today their first notable offensive thrust of the Sudanese campaign and reported a heavy R. A. F. raid on Brindisi, naval base at the heel of the Italian boot.

Just on the British side of the frontier between the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and Ethiopia, the British middle-east command asserted, British troops surprised and recaptured the town of Gallabat, imprisoned part of the garrison, and held the position through a stiff Italian counterattack and two heavy bombings.

The assault, it was declared, took only 45 minutes, and was launched early Wednesday morning by a mixed detachment of British and Indian troops supported by tanks, artillery and planes.

An unstated number of prisoners was said to have been taken. It was announced that 17 soldiers of the Italian force deserted during the engagement.

Gallabat is a main trading post.

The Italians occupied the town, which is some 75 miles west of Ethiopia's big Lake Tana, source of the Blue Nile, shortly after Italy entered the war.

[The Italian high command, covering yesterday's operations, reported fighting continuing at Gallabat, but did not acknowledge loss of the town.]

The reported raid on Brindisi was the first, although Naples, across the peninsula, has been bombed thrice since the Greek campaign began.

Assab, Eritrea, also was raided, the communique said, the bombs starting a fire visible 40 miles away. The army command likewise reported land pressure by a British mobile force on an Italian detachment on the Sudanese-Eritrean border, near Kassala.

The R. A. F. acknowledged that Italian planes had damaged Perim Island in the Red Sea.

British Can't Use Irish Ports As Bases, Says De Valera

By the Associated Press

Dublin, Nov. 7.—Prime Minister Eamonn de Valera emphatically rebuffed tonight the suggestion that Irish ports be opened as refueling bases for British warships and planes patrolling Atlantic commerce lanes.

Solemnly, De Valera assured the Dail (Parliament) that there could be "no question" of handing over or leasing the ports to Britain "under any conditions whatsoever" as long as Ireland remains neutral. Applause greeted his statement.

He asserted Ireland's intention to stay out of war, but declared, "we shall defend our right, whoever shall attack us."

The Irish leader said his statement was prompted by a British press campaign—"reechoed in the United States"—following Prime Minister Churchill's complaint Tuesday that the ban against British flotillas in Irish ports was "a most heavy and grievous burden" on the British effort to combat U-boats.

Commenting on accusations against Ireland, De Valera said, "It is a lie to say that German submarines or any other submarines are supplied with fuel or provisions in our ports." Such charges, he said, have been called false by the British government.

A "most extensive system of coastal observation has been established," De Valera asserted, but implied that the Free State's ability to protect itself was impaired by difficulty in obtaining military supplies.

"We tried to get armaments in Britain, America and even on the continent," he said, "and it is no fault of the government if our armaments are not even several times stronger than they are."

Anger in Ulster

Belfast, Nov. 7 (INS).—Viscount Craigavon, prime minister of Northern Ireland (Ulster), tonight sharply assailed Prime Minister Eamon de Valera for his Dublin speech rejecting the idea of permitting Britain the use of Irish ports. Lord Craigavon said:

"It has been evident that Eire is accepting concession after concession from Britain, but intends to give nothing in return.

"Eire clings to her neutrality, creating difficulties for the power to which she owes her present immunity from German attack."

Hope Roosevelt Intervenes

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

London, Nov. 7.—Following the blunt refusal tonight by Eamon de Valera, Prime Minister of Eire, to return or lease to the British government three Irish ports as naval bases, hope was expressed unofficially in London that President Roosevelt would try to persuade De Valera to a change of mind.

British Indicate Raids on Rome

Italian capital and home of the Vatican, should be bombed was brought up in Commons today. Sir Stanley Reed, who asked Richard Austen Butler, undersecertary for foreign affairs, whether, in view of Italian assertions that their men and machines had been taking part in air raids on London, should Rome be considered an open city free from aerial bombardment.

Replying, Butler said:

"The government has taken note of the Italian statement that Italian men and aircraft have participated in the bombing of London, and must accordingly reserve full liberty of action in regard to Rome."

British fliers made a number of long-range as well as short flights over enemy points this morning and last night, and all but two planes returned, according to the air ministry.

Places bombed during the night included Spandau, a suburb of Berlin, big gun emplacements at Cap Gris-Nez, Cuxhaven, Leuna, Homburg, Duisberg, Dusseldorf, Halle, Pretch near Cologne, Salzbergen, Haamstede air field at Hamm, Mainz, Ludwigshaven, Mannheim, and Den Helder, where a convoy of eight or nine motorships, each averaging 4,000 tons, was attacked. What success the R. A. F. bombers had in bombing the convoy was not divulged.

In the Spandau district of Berlin the target selected was an important airplane engine factory. The raiders there had to fly through heavy clouds and severe rainstorms.

Italians Bridge Raging River to Attack

By the Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 7.—Over and beyond the angry Kalamas River, by a notable feat of wartime engineering, the Italian armies in northwestern Greece attacked the defenders of Epirus with mounting force tonight.

More and more planes blasted the Greek defenses to try to clear the way to Ioannina (Janina), from 10 to 20 miles from the flooded, winding stream.

Some 100 miles farther north, Italian officials said, Greek troops entrenched in the approaches to Phlorina were harassed by bombs and machine-gun bullets. These defenses, the high command said, lie mainly along the southern shores of Lake Presba, where the Greek frontier meets Albania and Yugoslavia.

Heavy rains had turned the Kalamas River into a snarling torrent 200 feet wide in places with the water rushing between the steep walls at the rate of 20 feet a second.

At one point a bridge had to be built across a rugged gorge 900 feet deep.

While this was going on, the engineers transformed mule paths into roads over which the Italian tanks and motor lorries, loaded with troops, now are passing, officials stated.

1-3 of British Shipping Lost, Nazis Say

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Nov. 7—Authoritative German quarters forecast tonight an even fiercer counterblockade of Britain, claiming at the same time that considerably more than a third of the shipping space available to the British at the outset of the war already had been destroyed.

In the aerial phase, bomb hits were reported today on 11 ships, one of them a cruiser, and one of the merchant ships sunk.

New construction and use of foreign ships are insufficient to cover Britain's growing ship losses, said the commentary Dienst aus Deutschland.

Through use of planes, submarines and surface raiders, the claimed rate of destruction now stands one-fourth higher than that of the unrestricted World War campaign against ships of Britain, her Allies and friends.

The aerial phase was illustrated in a report that German bombing planes smashed today at four convoys off the British coast with the following results:

Northeast of Norwich: Six ships hit, two fired.

Off Harwich: A 5,000-ton ship hit by two bombs.

South of Eastbourne: A convoy attacked with results unknown.

Thames Estuary: A British cruiser seriously damaged; a 4,000-ton freighter hit and an armed escort vessel of about 10,000 tons bombed.

The "retaliatory" bombardment of London continued, with attacks also on other objectives up and down England and in Scotland and Wales, despite persistently bad weather. Militarily important objectives were hit, it was reported officially. Three British fighting planes were listed as shot down and one German plane was missing.

Dienst aus Deutschland declared that a stepping up of the air-sea counterblockade could be expected.

high explosives, according to the familiar Nazi tactics. As the evening wore on, the enemy noose appeared to tighten around the capital until this typewriter was shaken from bomb blasts.

The raid gradually eased off to a prolonged lull broken by occasional blasting interruptions, and the "all clear" signal was sounded earlier than usual today.

Among places hit were an ambulance depot, a shelter, a previously-bombed hospital, a block of apartments and a number of private dwellings.

Only a few hours after the intensive air attack of the previous night and while rescue gangs were still searching for people trapped in the wreckage, the first of three waves of raiders nosed into the Thames Estuary yesterday bound for the Capital.

A squadron of British fighters went up to intercept them but three German planes slipped through. One dipped low over the heart of the city, stopping traffic and scattering pedestrians before escaping in the clouds. The other, a Messerschmitt 110, was caught by two Hurricanes over the Capital and fell in wreckage from a height of six miles.

The second and third German formations delivered "unsuccessful attacks," according to a joint communique by the air ministry and ministry of home security, on the Portsmouth area in the afternoon. No damage or casualties have been reported.

Other raiders visited two east coast towns, a town in East Anglia not many miles north of London, the southeast coast and Liverpool, where King George VI and Queen Elizabeth yesterday were visiting on their tour of bombed areas in the Midlands.

Seven German machines, according to the latest official count, were brought down in the course of these daylight raids. Five British planes were destroyed, but all the pilots were reported safe.

From dusk to midnight heavy bombers flying at a great height and fighter-bombers which came in low over the city—presumably to draw the fire of British guns—showered flares, incendiaries, oil bombs and high explosives over a wide metropolitan area.

Two London churches were bombed during the night. In the crypt of one church from 500 to 600 people were singing "Annie Laurie," when a bomb tore a hole in the pavement alongside the shelter, wrecking an adjoining office and blew out the windows of the church.

Covered with dust and with eyes smarting, the people stopped singing for a moment. The pianist, who visits the crypt each night turned around and said:

"Let them get on with it. We'll sing up." He then resumed his playing.

A second church was wrecked by a bomb which passed through the roof and burst in front of the altar. Today only the front wall remained standing. Five people sleeping in the cellar were rescued unhurt.

Safe Conduct Denied U. S. Ship by Reich

Refusal Follows Italian Approval of Repatriation Trip

Germany has refused to grant a safe conduct to an American ship to go to a port on the west coast of Ireland to repatriate American citizens who wish to leave the British Isles, the State Department announced yesterday.

The German refusal followed the granting of a similar request by the Italian government, which, according to the formal State Department announcement, "very promptly responded favorably."

In making its reply the German government said that it was "not in a position to furnish any sort of assurance of the nature required" because "the areas around England are areas of military operations."

1,200 in Ireland

The State Department has been trying to arrange to send the United States liner Manhattan to Ireland to bring back about 1,200 Americans who are stranded in the British Isles and wish to return to the United States. However, in view of the refusal by the German government to grant a safe conduct, it is believed in official circles that the attempts to send a ship will be discontinued, because of the dangers which would be involved if the safe conduct were not given, and there was no guarantee that the ship would not be attacked.

The department's statement was as follows:

"The Department of State announces that a request was made of the German government and of the Italian government to grant a safe conduct for an American vessel to proceed to a port on the west coast of Ireland to bring home about 1,200 American citizens still in Great Britain. The Italian government very promptly responded favorably. A copy of the Italian reply was furnished to the German government with the suggestion that the Government of the United States would be glad to receive similar assurances.

German Reply

"After a considerable delay the following note, dated November 6, 1940, has been received from the German government:

"'The Foreign Office has the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the notes of October 27 and November 1 regarding the voyage of an American ship to repatriate American citizens from an Irish port.

"'On the basis of the previous statement of the German government to the effect that the areas around England are areas of military operations the Reich government is not in a position to furnish any sort of assurance of the nature requested.'"

The present episode recalled the somewhat similar case last summer of the United States Army transport American Legion which the Germans refused to grant a safe conduct from Petsamo in Finland, to New York through waters near the English coast despite a request by the American Government at the time.

It made port safely, but only after considerable anxiety on the part of the United States Government, and after repeated requests by the Third Reich that its course be altered to one further north in the interests of the safety of the passengers and crew.

a year increase to a maximum of $2,400, the chief butcher got a new maximum of $1,800 a year, a $200 boost, with smaller boosts for their aides.

In announcing the new wage schedule, the Navy Department pointed out that the order did not apply to clerical, professional and custodial workers whose salaries are fixed by the Civil Service classification act.

The wage order has been in the making for nearly a year. Purpose of the wage review is to bring Navy civilian wages in line with the wages paid by private industry in the same localities.

Members of the board who drew up the final new schedule included Capt. J. A. Furer, senior Navy member; William G. Bergman, chief clerk of the Navy Department; F. W. Dyer, the Navy's chief of employe relations; W. A. Calvin, secretary-treasurer of the A. F. L. metal trades department; Jacob Baker, president of the C. I. O.-affiliated United Federal Workers of America, and Guy McPherson, chief of the Navy's classification and efficiency division.

Accidents More Likely to Befall Women on Relief

A housewife on relief is more likely to suffer an accident in the home than a housewife in comfortable circumstances.

Falls are the most common type of household mishap.

Home accidents cause more deaths than diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough and measles combined, more than appendicitis and nearly as many as diabetes.

The above are among the points brought out in a report published yesterday by the Public Health Service, based on analyses of accident data collected in 700,000 city households throughout the country. A total of 2,498,180 white and colored persons was covered in the study, part of the National Health Survey.

It was found that the home accident rate for women is half again as high as that for men, but the Federal statistician emphasized that this is due in large part to greater exposure on the part of the former, both in terms of time and activity about the house.

Chest Drive Volunteers Hear District's Needs

MASS MEETING—Approximately 1,500 Government workers, volunteers for the forthcoming Community Chest campaign, gathered in the Departmental Auditorium to hear Mrs. Roosevelt and Chest leaders outline the District's human needs

$2,000,000 Goal Represents Absolute Minimum Necessary, Chest Workers Told; Mrs. Roosevelt Stresses Vital Role of Agency

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Community Chest leaders yesterday challenged a meeting of approximately 1,500 Government employes, volunteers for the coming Chest campaign, with messages on the human needs of a community which falls short of being a "model city."

The $2,000,000 total goal for the campaign is a "rock bottom figure," Joseph B. Eastman, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, told the meeting of the Government Unit in the Departmental Auditorium, after pointing out the scope of welfare problems here.

"This community falls considerably short of being a model city," he said, mentioning its slum sections and problems that must be alleviated "among thousands who need our help."

Eastman, vice chairman of the unit, said the goal is set at so low a figure that "there must be no thought of less than 100 per cent."

Mrs. Roosevelt in a brief talk pointed out that the Chest is filling an "absolutely vital" need. She referred to difficulties in the welfare situation here because some institutions are "below the standard we would like to see them have."

She added that "we hope every institution in the District will be brought to such high standards" that they will be models for other localities, but "at the moment we can't do that."

Ernest G. Draper, Federal Reserve Board governor, who heads the Government Unit, told the meeting that "by taking care of our own neighbors, we are filling a large share in making democracy succeed."

The $850,000 quota of this unit is slightly higher than its last year's goal. After the meeting Col. Robert H. Fletcher, who presided, explained that the quota is based on a percentage of the annual pay roll which has risen since last year.

Herbert L. Willett, jr., director of the Chest, capped his talk saying that "we ask two things about every gift, that it be voluntary and that it be generous."

Among the civic leaders on the platform were Commissioner David McCoach, Maj. Chauncey G. Parker, jr., chairman of the Chest drive; Coleman Jennings, president of the Chest.

The Junior Board of Commerce concentrated on the Community Chest at its luncheon at the Annapolis Hotel yesterday, when George E. Bigge, of the Social Security Board, spoke. He pointed out that since the board is a Government agency, it has to depend on legislation to shape its work, and that there were other needs which the Chest must fill.

About 150 persons attended the luncheon, at which the following Chest leaders were special guests: Major Parker, Adelbert W. Lee and Paul Sleeper.

Meanwhile, the campaign committee today will hold its last meeting before the start of the drive next Wednesday. Reports on readiness for the campaign will be made at 4 p. m. by leaders at the office of the chairman, Maj. Chauncey G. Parker, jr., beginning tomorrow. Headquarters for the more than 9,000 volunteers in the drive will be open on the second floor of the Willard Hotel.

The Rev. Noble C. Powell, dean of the Washington Cathedral, today will address a meeting of more than 100 volunteers in areas one of the group solicitation unit.

Parliament Hears Blast At Admiralty

Commander Bower Doubts Competence Of High Officers

By Raymond Daniell
Copyright by New York Times

London, Nov. 7.—Just back from three months afloat in convoy work, Commander Robert T. Bower, who is also a Conservative member of Parliament, voiced outspoken criticism in the House of Commons today of Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, first sea loard of the admiralty, and the whole board of admiralty.

Among the men who man the ships of the Royal Navy, this critic said, there was "very grave disquiet" at the whole conduct of naval operations in Norway, where H. M. S. Glorious was lost with 1,200 men, at the lack of coordination between naval and air operations and about the competence of the board of admiralty as a whole.

These somewhat embittered remarks by Bower, who said he had been "victimized" for earlier criticisms voiced in letters to First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander and Prime Minister Churchill when the latter was first lord, were less important intrinsically than for the light they shed on the degree of freedom of expression and the latitude of censorship still existing here, where political issues are involved.

Although Bower made several caustic references to "Gestapo methods" intended to help establish the first lord as a "Pinchbeck Hitler with a tinpot staff," there was no effort made to deprive him of the floor or to suppress publication of his opinions at home or abroad.

"The evacuation of Norway," Bower said, "was considered for reasons hitherto undisclosed to be of such a secret nature that none of the higher officers were informed. Cooperation between the admiralty, the Royal Air Force, the coastal command and the vice admiral in charge of submarines had consequently failed."

Bower said he was on duty with the coastal command at the time and that he could say from first-hand knowledge that neither his outfit nor so highly-placed an officer as the director of operations of the admiralty knew anything about the sinking of the Glorious or the details of what was happening in connection with the evacuation of Narvik."

Rumor of Bomb On Ship Fizzles

New York, Nov. 7.—An official Army investigation of the incident involving a reported bomb thrown smoking from the United States Army transport Republic while at sea on October 19 was completed today and apparently established only that some object had been discovered on the ship by Henry F. Dodd, master at arms, and had been thrown by him into the Pacific.

Capt. C. J. Powers, master of the ship, was inclined to believe that the whole incident was a hoax.

Soviet Defies Invasion on 23d Anniversary

Army's Picked Units Parade Past Stalin in Red Square

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Nov. 7.—Soviet Russia poured new guns and formations across Red Square today on the twenty-third anniversary of her revolution and her defense commissar announced "at any moment the Red Army is ready to deal a crushing blow to anyone who dares to violate the holy frontiers of the U. S. S. R."

The army, which paraded its choicest units past Joseph Stalin and his lieutenants, has been reorganized in the last six months. The progress of its artillery—completely mechanized—was particularly conspicuous today.

Long range naval guns, howitzers, antiaircraft pieces and a new cannon slightly larger than the standard 75 mm. gun appeared in the two-hour procession, while overhead, the bright wings of new low-winged fighter planes glistened in the sun.

Defense Commissar Speaks

Before the parade, the troops heard Semeon Timoshenko, defense commissar, declare that they would be called upon to crush any attack on Soviet borders, and key them to "maximum vigilance in an exceptionally alarming international situation."

It is under Timoshenki that Soviet Russia has built up her new military machine in the last six months while the other great European powers expended their men and machines on the battlefield.

Women pilots marched in the parade, behind the banners of a regiment of civil aviation. Infantrymen with bared bayonets shouted hurrahs for Stalin as they moved past the tribune atop Lenin's tomb.

High-speed tanks dashed across the square, too, and there were thick formations of armored cars.

Following the troops, civilian groups marched, all day long, across the square. Describing the younger groups, Tass, the Soviet news agency said: "Many of them have become pilots and parachutists, chauffeurs, riders and snipers, without interrupting their daily work."

Accord on Use Of Pacific Bases Reported

U. S., Australia, Britain Are Said to Agree in Principle

By Frederick Kuh
United Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 7.—The United States, Britain and Australia have agreed in principle on defense cooperation in the Pacific, including the use of bases, it was reported reliably tonight.

The agreement in principle, reached after conferences among the three nations, was said to be such that an emergency decision might be taken on short notice.

Details were not divulged and officials were reticent regarding possible use of the great British base at Singapore by the United States Navy.

Some observers here would not be surprised to learn that without formal advance commitments, an understanding had been reached which in certain circumstances would make Singapore and Australian bases and facilities available to the United States fleet.

While authentic information and details were lacking, observers wondered whether British warships might enjoy reciprocal advantage at United States bases in the western Pacific.

Authoritative sources indicated that the "outline" agreement had not been embodied in any formal document. They assumed that discussion of details would be resumed when the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, returns to Washington from a trip to this country.

No Decisions

Copyright by New York Times

When the State Department's attention was called yesterday to a London report that Great Britain, the United States and Australia had informally agreed upon a basis for cooperation, the answer was that conversations were continuing among the three governments, but that there have been no suggestions, requests or decisions.

Observatory Set Up

The only observation station in the Washington area for recording solar radiations is being installed on the roof of Hurst Hall, American University, by Dr. Walter F. Shenton and Dr. Edward Engel, university professors, it was announced last night.

Vichy Warns Press European Harmony Is Still Its Aim

By Lansing Warren.

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Nov. 7.—After waiting for a consultation with Marshal Henri Philippe Petain this morning after his trip south, Vice Premier Pierre Laval left for Paris today to resume negotiations on the details of European cooperation agreed upon by Chancellor Hitler and Marshal Petain at Montoire.

These negotiations have been marking time since the first talks were begun after the momentous interview, but the interval, as the marshal's reception in Toulouse and Montauban showed, has enhanced the prestige of the position that he took.

U. S. Election Noted

Meanwhile, there is still reserve in official quarters in the attitude toward the American elections, which at first inspection would seem to have little connection with the negotiations in progress. That there is such a connection, however, is plainly indicated in the broadsheet of official guidance to French newspapers today, which declares:

"Interest in the American election should not divert the attention of France from the conviction that the future improvement so desired by all in the relations of the United States with Europe can only be achieved in a durable fashion to the extent that the European continent succeeds in completely reorganizing its economy. It should be shown that the political relations of this or that European nation with the United States should not be allowed to divide Europe in a way that would be harmful for the continent as a whole.

"On the contrary, it should be shown that a rational organization of Europe should permit the reestablishment of normal and fruitful economic relations between the two continents. It is, therefore, toward problems of an economic order that French opinion should be oriented."

The endeavor of the present talks which have been prepared by the French envoy to Paris with ambassadorial rank, Fernand de Brinon, would be to obtain an accord on some economic questions to ameliorate the situation in France. There is nothing to indicate what political counterpart would be necessary to secure these benefits.

De Gaulle Names Envoy

San Salvador, El Salvador, Nov. 7.—General Charles De Gaulle, French leader who continues support of Britain in the war, has named Emilio Detruit as representative of the Free French government at San Salvador. M. Detruit is a popular member of the French colony here, the majority of which is supporting Gen. De Gaulle.

Japanese Complain

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Nov. 7.—A rapid growth in Indo-China of the French party which supports General Charles De Gaulle, and has its headquarters at Saigon, is reported by the newspaper Asahi. The Japanese inspection committee at Hanoi demanded the Governor General Jean Decoux take action against Saigon on the ground it is assisting the Chinese who are fighting Japan. General Decoux refused an immediate answer.

Yugoslavia Tries to Calm Public Anger Over Air Raid on City

Copyright, by New York Times

Belgrade, Nov. 7.—Government circles sought tonight to restore calm in the critical situation created by the bombing of Yugoslav territory, the resignation of the war minister and growing fears that Yugoslavia is drawing nearer to the Balkan war.

Semiofficial sources declare that the army commission's report on the Bitolj bombing had not yet been delivered to the war ministry and that therefore those responsible for Tuesday's air raids were not yet officially known.

The Soviet Legation here held its first reception since its establishment early this morning. Discussion turned almost immediately to the subject of the aerial bombardment and the change in the war ministry. Assurances were given in many responsible quarters that the two events were linked only inconsequentially. At the same time hints were dropped that the government might find it impossible to identify the nationality of the bombing planes.

The censored Belgrade press carried the official communique reporting the resignation of Gen. Milan Neditch and the appointment of Gen. Petar Pesitch as the new war minister. The Belgrade Politika printed further details of the bombing, adding editorially: "We anticipate that these victims will be the last, for after the attack on Bitolj our armed forces have taken measures, as is mentioned in the official communique."

South Serbia remains blacked out tonight, according to Skoplje reports, and the population remains aroused and indignant. Yugoslav chaser planes went aloft several times today over Bitolj and antiaircraft batteries were strengthened throughout the vicinity. Army leaders stated that the first planes to violate Yugoslav neutrality will be shot down.

Dickinson's Mentor Dies After Friend's Defeat

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 7 (AP).—Grove M. Rouse, 64-year-old political mentor of Gov. Luren D. Dickinson, died today approximately 24 hours after he learned his friend Dickinson had been defeated seeking reelection.

Rouse, legislative agent for bus interests and long-time underling in State government, was credited by political gossips with persuading Dickinson to enter the race for lieutenant governor in 1938. A decision which placed him in position to succeed the late Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald 20 months ago.

Macklin, Son Drowned on Trip

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 7 (AP).—The drowning of Paul M. Macklin of New York, vice president and general manager of the Wickwire Spencer Steel Corporation, his son and a fellow corporation official while on a hunting trip in Maine was reported here tonight.

Irving B. Barrows, a member of the hunting party, informed Mayor William A. Bennett by telephone that Macklin, George W. Nelson, and Macklin's son, John, were lost from a canoe yesterday in frozen ocean lake, about 80 miles north of Greenville.

Cromwell Admits Estrangement

Spring Lake, N. J., Nov. 7 (AP).—James H. R. Cromwell, former United States minister to Canada, said today that he and Mrs. Cromwell, the former Doris Duke, were estranged, but added he had no knowledge of any plans of her instituting divorce proceedings.

CROMWELL

Cromwell who was defeated Tuesday as Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, said he had not seen Mrs. Cromwell since June 4—his birthday—at a party in New York.

Mrs. Cromwell

Cromwell is staying at the Spring Lake home of his mother, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury. He said he had been making his home there the past few months, after moving from Mrs. Cromwell's estate at Somerville.

The former minister said he planned to spend the next week in New Jersey after which he would go to Florida for a short vacation.

Mrs. Cromwell is in California, en route to her home in Honolulu.

She'll Get Her Alimony From District

COURT RULES IN HER FAVOR—Mrs. Henrietta Montgomery and her daughter, Elaine, 12. Justice Laws ruled in District Court yesterday that the pension check of her former husband—a retired, disabled policeman—is liable to be sequestered to secure alimony payments

Pension Checks of Police, Firemen May Be Held Up and Diverted to Secure Alimony Payments, Justice Laws Declares

Justice Bolitha J. Laws ruled in the District Court yesterday that the pension checks of retired policemen and firemen here are liable to be sequestered to secure alimony payments.

Justice Laws rejected an exception claim filed by the District government in behalf of Theodore O. Montgomery, whose wife claims he is $350 behind on her alimony.

Montgomery joined the Metropolitan Police November 2, 1921. His wife, Mrs. Henrietta Montgomery, 2827 Seventh Street Northeast, won a divorce for desertion on February 26, 1937. The court allowed $50 a month for the wife and one daughter, Elaine, now 12.

Montgomery was retired from the police force October 31, 1939, with a disabled left shoulder. Mrs. Montgomery's attorney, Abraham Chaifetz, told Justice Laws the husband left the District to evade the alimony payments and has concealed his exact address. Chaifetz urged that the pension checks be held up and diverted to pay the alimony.

Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Lauderdale pointed out that the salaries of public employes generally are exempt from garnishment and other court processes. He urged that it would be against public policy to hold up Montgomery's pension checks.

Chaifetz retorted that it also was against public policy for a man to stop making his alimony payments, and said this might make the wife and child become public charges.

Justice Laws commented that the court would not be disposed to favor a man who would be liable to be held in contempt if he were in court and dismissed the District officials' objections.

U. S. Probes Brooks Victory in Illinois

Slattery Protests Last-Minute Turn In Senate Race

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 7.—United States District Attorney J. Albert Woll announced today he was making an investigation of the eleventh-hour victory of C. Wayland Brooks, Chicago Republican, over James M. Slattery, in the Senatorial race.

Woll said Slattery, a Democrat who has been serving as Senator since April, 1939, under a temporary appointment, had requested the investigation on the ground that Brooks' last-minute spurt into the lead indicated the possibility of irregularities in certain precincts.

The district attorney reported that Slattery had told him his suspicions were aroused because the precincts came in "quite late" and were contrary to the trend which had kept him ahead for 19 hours after the polls closed.

The latest tabulation of the Senatorial vote, with only one downstate precinct missing, gave Brooks 2,037,541 and Slattery, 2,020,706, a Republican plurality of 16,835.

Brooks said: "It seems strange to me that the plundering Democrats should be crying about vote fraud. I can assure you that I had nothing to do with the time that the count was turned in."

Jury Calls Party Leaders

Philadelphia, Nov. 7 (AP).—Leaders of the two major political parties went before a Federal grand jury today to tell, in the secrecy of the jury room, how much Republican and Democratic money was spent in Tuesday's election.

The grand jury, convened a month early, is investigating alleged violations of election laws.

"This, it seems to me, is a fishing expedition for mythical fish," said Jay Cooke, Republican city chairman and defeated candidate for the United States Senate, as he entered the jury room.

"There wasn't as much money spent as usual," said John B. Kelly, Democratic city chairman. "I think this jury prevented anything like that. I expect this jury to investigate disfranchisement of 25,000 voters in the city, 90 per cent of whom were Democrats."

The first witness called was Joseph N. Pew, jr., Republican financial backer. He emerged in five minutes.

Birthday Balls Net Paralysis Board $3,774,000

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Basil O'Connor, of New York, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, reported tonight before a meeting of medical research workers that the organization had received a total of $3,774,000 from the President's birthday balls of the past three years.

Half of the money contributed in dimes and dollars went to local organizations, including $54,000 from the Will Rogers Memorial Commission and miscellaneous donations. Out of the total, the foundation approved grants and appropriations totaling $1,181,000 for research, investigations and operating expenses.

Marche Triomphale

The warm welcome home given here yesterday to Mr. Roosevelt after an absence of scarcely more than two days was something quite unique in American history. To be sure, a momentous thing had happened to Mr. Roosevelt and to the Nation in those two days. But the President himself came close to putting his finger on the significance of the occasion when he said, "It isn't as though we were new people."

The welcome, like the election, was in contradiction to the oft-noted tendency of democratic peoples to weary of their heroes. Ingratitude and envy have been described as the vices of republics. Washington at the end of his second term left office laden with the contumely of his countrymen, and the Lincoln cult did not exist in Lincoln's lifetime.

Some exceptions to this historical tendency can, of course, be noted. The most conspicuous exception is the attitude of the Athenian democracy toward Pericles. Increasingly hated by the aristocratic party, warmly championed by most of the intellectuals, Pericles was voted again and again into leadership of the state by the people to whom his persuasive eloquence and grace of manner remained irresistible. To this extent the analogy to Mr. Roosevelt is striking, though it would be most inappropriate to carry it any further.

Yesterday's demonstration was almost wholly spontaneous. Upwards of 300,000 persons of all ages—about one-half the population of the District of Columbia—shivered at the curbstones as they waited for nothing more than a fleeting glimpse of the President and the Vice President-elect and their wives, and for the opportunity to open their throats. It was proof that Mr. Roosevelt will carry with him into his third term a loyalty and affection which, if by no means as universal as in the "honeymoon" days of 1933, is, among those who share it, not a whit less intense.

But it was something even greater than a tribute to a winning personality. Cheering with the others must have been many, who, only last week, ardently desired and worked for Mr. Roosevelt's defeat. But the election has made Mr. Roosevelt something more than the head of a party, more than even the head of a Nation. He has now become, as Mr. Wilson became for those few brief months in 1917, a symbol of hope to a people beset by the harassments of a warring world.

Vice President-Elect

For the great majority of Federal officials the election means continuation of their authority and responsibilities. To Henry A. Wallace, however, it will bring a completely new experience. His shift from the post of Secretary of Agriculture to that of Vice President—with only the campaign and now a breathing spell between—will be the most important change in the Administration resulting from the balloting on Tuesday.

As Mr. Wallace shared in the hearty welcoming reception accorded President Roosevelt yesterday, Vice President Garner was in Uvalde, Tex., debating whether or not he should return to Washington for the remainder of the present session of Congress. The complete break between President Roosevelt and Mr. Garner was underlined by the fact that the Vice President did not vote this week. With the inauguration of Mr. Wallace, complete harmony between the President and Vice President will be achieved for the first time since Mr. Roosevelt began his second Administration.

It may well be also that Mr. Wallace's presence on the dais of the Senate will produce a more cordial relationship between the White House and that body. Certainly his genial disposition will be an asset in winning the confidence and respect of the Senate. And the fact that he was the personal choice of the President for this new position should make his services as a liaison official particularly valuable.

On reading the election returns from his own State of Iowa as well as other parts of the Middle West, Mr. Wallace may reasonably conclude that the Senate is a more hospitable place than the farm belt. At any rate, he will have a clean slate to work on in the Senate, and his experience of controls over the last eight years may not come amiss to him in his new role as presiding officer. Certainly he will not risk unpopularity by putting Senators under rigid production quotas. Nor is there any danger of further depressing the price of the only product which the Senate customarily turns out in superabundance.

What Must Be Done

Time did not stand still during the recent Presidential campaign.

The months that elapsed between the holding of the national conventions and Tuesday's great and decisive plebiscite saw the tide of war spilling over into Egypt, Indo-China, Greece. In that period Rumania was partitioned and occupied, and Great Britain was subjected to an intensive and continuous aerial attack. Those months also saw the aggressors of Europe and Asia pooling their forces in a combination openly directed against the United States.

The meaning and significance of these world-shaking events have not been lost on the people of the United States. The war remained very much in the forefront of the American consciousness even during the heat and turmoil of the closing days of the campaign. So much was this the case that the customary inhibitions that operate in an election year were overcome.

Important steps were taken to build up our productive capacity for defense, far-reaching agreements were made with the other republics of Latin America and with Canada to bolster the security of this hemisphere, aid was rendered Great Britain and China, and steps taken to slow down the American arming of Japan. To no small extent these measures were made possible because the two major candidates were in fundamental agreement on foreign policy.

The election has eliminated whatever dangers (and they were greatly exaggerated) that a change in Administration would make for temporary confusion. However, the measures that should have been taken in furtherance of our defense efforts but were held up because of political exigencies must now be rushed forward.

Of these by no means the least important is that of additional aid to Great Britain. Hitler's failure to invade that country, the lack of success he has had in reducing the British to submission by a program of indiscriminate bombing, have tended to create the illusion that Great Britain is now safely out of the woods, that we need do no more for her than we have been doing to insure her ultimate victory.

Such complacence is extremely dangerous. The British have revealed a magnificent capacity for resistance, the German war of attrition by air and on the sea is having its effect, at least in material destruction. The Greeks have performed miracles of valor, but it is hardly likely that they will prove a match against the far more numerous Italians who have enormous advantages in the air. With Greece occupied, with the Germans established in the Balkans, and in a position to push on toward the Near East, the British, moreover, may find themselves in a worsened position, strategically.

It is imperative, therefore, that everything be done by the United States to reinforce the British through the dispatch of an increasing volume of supplies. The problem of what to do and how to do it deserves an immediate canvassing. For instance, it may be that a further sale to Great Britain of surplus war equipment will prove to be advisable. And the speeding up of our aircraft production would undoubtedly be a great boon. But a canvass will show what needs to be done, and the opportunity has now returned. For Secretary Hull has pointed out in his statement of Wednesday: "Our Nation can now go forward with the fullest measure of practical teamwork by the Government and the people in the firm continuance of [our] foreign policies. This course offers the greatest contribution our country can make toward the restoration of stable international relations which are so essential to the vital interests of this Nation and of all nations."

Without Music

Ignace Jan Paderewski, first premier of Poland, has again been forced to abandon his art to serve his country. He arrived here Wednesday still in his official role of speaker for the refugee Polish Republic's national council, though a deputy has been appointed in his absence to do the actual work. And, even if he were not acting in this capacity, the venerated artist would probably not play the piano in recital, since, according to his secretary, Mr. Paderewski has not had the heart to touch the keys since his country fell.

In this land Paderewski, now 80 years old, will find rest and sunshine on his California ranch. He will find freedom to think and act. He will find a receptive ear to his pleas for the suffering Poles. He will find company if he desires it, and solitude if that is what he prefers. But, above all, Mr. Paderewski will find returned in full measure the affection which, as he put it in a statement on arrival, he has always borne toward humanity.

An Emotional Reaction

The decline in stock quotations on the day after the election was chiefly an emotional reaction reflecting disappointment over the outcome, and the recovery of yesterday is no doubt the result of soberer second thoughts about the business outlook. For whatever ill-luck the distant future may have in store for the business community, there is good reason for optimism about the immediate prospect.

The stimulating effect of the defense program is rapidly gaining momentum, and for a long time to come business will continue to benefit from the outpouring of defense funds. Both candidates for the Presidency had pledged themselves to push execution of that program as rapidly as possible, and the election of Wendell Willkie would not have altered the situation even temporarily. For the time being, therefore, the long-range considerations that have made a Roosevelt victory unwelcome to business and financial groups seem comparatively unimportant, marketwise.

This view is strengthened by the business indexes. According to the Federal Reserve Board, October industrial production, measured by its production index, reached an all time peak of 127 per cent of the 1935-39 average. October steel output was also of record proportions. Pronounced increases in employment are reported by the industries engaged on defense orders for Great Britain and the United States. Moreover, the reabsorption of workers into other manufacturing lines is proceeding at an accelerated pace.

This business upturn has occurred in advance of any unusually large outlays by the Government itself for defense purposes. For the fiscal year to date, Federal expenditures for all purposes are just about equal to those for the corresponding period last year. However, nearly $8,000,000,000 of defense contracts have been awarded since early summer, most of them in September and October. Though expenditures under these contracts will be spread over several years, their placement, nevertheless, has already resulted in increased demands from manufacturers for materials and for capital with which to expand plant capacity.

With the defense program just getting under way, and with war orders coming from abroad, an extraordinary stimulus to business appears to be provided for a long time to come. The indirect stimulus of large-scale deficit financing for defense purposes will, moreover, be communicated—indeed it has already spread—to many lines of industry not directly related to the defense program.

From the viewpoint of the practical businessman, these are the factors to take into account in appraising earnings prospects.

A Confused Pattern

Those who are looking for a consistent pattern of political trends in this week's election will not readily find it. On the whole, of course, it was a notable Democratic victory. But that triumph is not as sweeping as it first appeared to be.

Probably the most striking aspect of the returns to date is the large number of cases in which honors have been divided between the two parties. Nine States which cast their electoral votes for President Roosevelt also selected Republican Governors. Illinois, Ohio and Minnesota showed their preference for Mr. Roosevelt and at the same time chose both Republican Governors and Senators. Four other States in this group, Massachusetts, Delaware, Missouri and Montana, cast Democratic electoral votes, elected Republican Governors, and voted in Democratic Senators. Wisconsin gave a majority to a Democratic President, a Republican Governor and a Progressive Senator.

Nor did the Republicans make a clean sweep in the ten States that went for Wendell L. Willkie. Three of those States—Indiana, North Dakota and Michigan—gave majorities to the Democratic gubernatorial candidates. In addition, Kansas, which showed the strongest preference for Mr. Willkie, appears to have elected a Democratic Governor. Mr. Willkie and Senator Vandenberg finally won out in Michigan, but the G. O. P. lost the governorship to Murray D. Van Wagoner.

Republicans will hold 28 seats in the Senate when the next session meets in January, the largest number under control of that party during the last six years. In the House the Democrats gained five seats, and several contests remain to be decided.

Thus it is evident that voters indulged in a good deal of scratching this year. Presumably they gave more attention to individual candidates and placed less emphasis on party labels. When this practice leads to division of State offices between the two major parties, it may create many administrative difficulties. Nevertheless, it indicates that voters are showing a good deal of discrimination in casting their ballots for State officials and members of Congress, regardless of their preference in the Presidential contest.

The United States is a strange country in which everybody talks and nobody listens.

Fooled By Noise

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Candidate Willkie last midnight predicted his certainty of election upon the assurances of support that he said were reaching him by all means of communication and from all directions, it reminded me of a story from real life that my father used to tell when I was a boy. While the election returns are not yet in, I think the story fits.

My father was raised up near Penn Yan, N. Y., and one of the diversions of the town was to go to the station when the train came in. One day the Erie agent told a crowd of boys that he had a letter from the chief steward of the Hoffman House, New York, saying he was trying to find a place where he could order frogs' legs in large quantities on short notice. The boys assured the agent that the ponds around Penn Yan were teeming with frogs and that they could fill any order on any notice.

A few days later, the agent told the boys he had an order by wire for 18 dozen frogs' legs to be shipped the next day. The boys assured the agent that this was "duck soup" for them, and the agent accepted the order. The next day the boys, fatigued from a night in the swamps, shamefacedly appeared at the station with 18 frogs' legs.

"You've let me down," moaned the agent. "It was 18 dozen frogs' legs that I had to furnish—not 18 frogs' legs."

"Yes," said the chagrined boys, "we understood, but there ain't no more. We were fooled by their damn hollerin'."

Who Is Sovereign

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that the campaign is over, and the question of "My ambassador" is no longer partisan, though it remains important, may I suggest a thought to Ambassador Cudahy? In a recent campaign speech, he was very positive that "an ambassador is the personal representative of the President." Is he?

According to diplomatic rules, fixed by treaty, an ambassador is the personal representative of the sovereign of a nation.

Necessarily the operative sovereignty must be expressed in some practical way, but: Who is sovereign of, and in, the United States?

For An Amendment

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that if the election of a President for a third term has been fraught with so much danger to the people of the United States that this so-called danger would have been removed years ago by an amendment to the Constitution. It is too late to lock the stable after the horse has gone out, but you can secure the next horse.

The precedent set by Washington and Jefferson in refusing to accept reelection at the end of two terms has thus far been effective in limiting the President's term of service to eight years. But this was only a precedent and an unwritten law, that was subject to disregard or abuse because there was no restriction.

Now since this precedent or tradition has been broken by the reelection of President Franklin D. Roosevelt by an overwhelming majority, the Congress should, as early as practicable, adopt an amendment that would put teeth in this tradition. Because there may be in the future another popular President who might rise up and the people may draft him for a third term or for an indefinite number of terms. In the next four years let us hope for the best and be ready for the worst.

For A Boycott

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please call attention to the women and girls of America that the continued buying of silk stockings could easily be called un-American. We all know where the silk comes from. Do we always have to travel to the last ditch before we pull up and realize we are wrong?

I have always felt that death would be better than being "caught out" with anything less than 100 per cent silk, two thread, hose on. Not so any more, my friends.

Quite by accident I discovered some lovely hose at one of Washington's best department stores. They are a very fine mesh hose and most durable. But, the most wonderful thing of all, they are cotton and they look like silk.

Defends Use Of Esperanto

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Jeffers' letter in The Post of October 29 on new words in English was quite interesting, and surely worth the space you gave it. It contained, however, one misstatement damaging to a movement in which I am interested. I hope that you will grant the space necessary for a correction.

Mr. Jeffers rejects, somewhat dogmatically, the manufacture of new words in English, "as the artificiality of Esperanto is unpopular." While his conclusion is probably correct, the reason he gives is, to anyone at all acquainted with Esperanto, laughable.

As a matter of fact, over 99 per cent of the Esperanto dictionary is directly derived from some national language or languages, and easily recognizable as such. This is the foundation of the entire Esperanto vocabulary and the source of its great superiority over its predecessors. The fifteenth rule of the 16-rule Esperanto grammar states: "The so-called foreign words, that is, those which the majority of languages have taken from one source, undergo no change in Esperanto, beyond conforming to its orthography."

Finally, let me quote a sentence in Esperanto as a demonstrative proof. "Esperanto estas la solvo de la problemo de internacia lingvo Esperanto estas facile lernebla kaj praktike uzebla en korespondo, komerco, scienco, literaturo kaj radio." Anyone with a slight degree of linguistic knowledge can easily recognize every word in the above sentences, which in translation mean, "Esperanto is the solution of the problem of an international language. Esperanto is easily learnable and practically usable in correspondence, commerce, science, literature and radio."

I feel sure Mr. Jeffers' blunder was due to ignorance, but that is all the more reason why it should not go unchallenged. In parting, may I remind Mr. Jeffers of the vitreous character of his dwelling, by asking him to account for the etymology of the popular words "quiz" and "gas."

Hawaiian Population

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My attention has been called to certain portions of a dispatch printed in The Post of August 23 under the headline, "U. S. Wages Fifth-Column War In Japanese-Infested Hawaii," in which certain errors are apparent.

I refer to the paragraph:

"Of the total population of the Hawaiian Islands of 411,485, there are approximately 63,000 residents born in Japan and another estimated 90,000 born here of Japanese parents."

In order that you may have the latest information available regarding the population setup of the Territory of Hawaii, I am inclosing a digest of the annual estimates of the June 30, 1940, Bureau of Vital Statistics of the Territorial Board of Health, based on the compilations of the Federal decennial census as of April, 1940.

On page 6 you will note that the population of Hawaii now is 426,654, of whom 156,849, or 36.76 per cent of the whole, are of Japanese origin.

The table on page 8 shows that, of the 156,849 individuals of Japanese origin, 122,188, or 77.90 per cent, are citizens of the United States by virtue of their birth under the American flag—not "another estimated 90,000 born here," as stated in your dispatch. The same table shows 34,661 aliens of Japanese origin, or 22.10 per cent of this group—not "approximately 63,000 residents born in Japan," as stated in your dispatch.

While these discrepancies may appear to be slight to a resident of the mainland, they are very serious indeed to us of Hawaii who fear that they will only serve to increase the already too-prevalent misconception, misunderstanding and downright ignorance extant on the mainland of our common country regarding this integral part of the United States and conditions herein.

In connection with the sentence beginning "Thousands of Japanese who have never become naturalized," need I point out that no individual of Oriental ancestry can become a naturalized American citizen?

JOHN SNELL,
Executive Secretary, Hawaii Equal Rights Commission.
Honolulu, Oct. 26.

Unity Now

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The President has received a vote of confidence from the American people. He has a mandate to continue most of the policies he has followed up to now. But does he sense the valuable mandate in the sincerity, patriotism, and integrity of that great cross-section of America which opposed him and failed?

Will he not, then, seek to prosper and help develop to its utmost the natural strength of our Nation which consists largely in its business, enterprise, and industry? Will he not gain a deeper respect and sense of responsibility toward our American traditions and our Constitution? And will he not work to promote more understanding and cooperation between the varied classes of our society—whose interests can clash only under incompetent leadership?

As we enter one of the most dangerous and vital periods in our history, we are blessed with one of the finest Presidents this century has seen. Here—now—is our chance to develop a unity and strength such as our Nation has never seen before. Let us hear no more "New Deal," "Conservative Democrat," or "Republican." We are Americans and well aware that we will soon have to do something more than thanking God for our good fortune.

The Post Impressionist

My Best Seller

IT IS NEARLY 2 inches thick, and numbers 372 pages—which is slightly less than the number of days it took to write. The title is straight from Job. It is dedicated to the girl who was willing to marry me in spite of the fact I was late for our wedding rehearsal because I was telling a publisher what an excellent book it was.

A first novel usually contains all of a writer's heart, a good bit of his intestines and too little of his mind. I don't know whether heart, intestines or mind started me. All kept me working.

In my senior year of college I wrote a short story which won a contest. The editor of a publishing firm who was a judge in the contest urged me to spin the theme into a novel. He was seconded by a professor of English who has done some writing. So following the advice of Mary Heaton Vorse, I applied the seat of my pants to the seat of a chair in spare moments of time for nearly 400 days. The result was a picaresque tale of the wanderings of an evangelical clergyman over a section of Pennsylvania in our time.

I have often wondered what made anyone write a book. Now that I have written one I still am not sure. I know that I often wrote when I didn't want to, that I was sometimes inspired, but that my inspiration resulted in cloudy prose. The bulk of the work was done on my two days a week off from my job when I was living alone in a furnished room. There were many things such as sailing a boat or riding horseback which I should have preferred to writing. But on a salary of $25 a week I could not afford such luxuries.

So writing was at first an economical way of passing time. Then it absorbed me like a drug, and I was miserable when I did not write at least two or three pages a day. Finally I began to believe that I had something to say in this book, that there was a purpose in my labor. I had a sense of finality in my work. I believed I was recording permanent truths instead of the inconclusive facts of human nature which I must record in my job as a fledgling newspaper reporter.

At last the book was done, and I was very full of my secret. For no one but the girl and the college professor and the publisher knew I was writing a book since I detest people who tell you they are creative. I rewrote it when the first draft was completed, before sending it off to the New York publisher.

When two, three, four weeks pass and an editor does not return your manuscript you reach the illusion stage in this business of writing. Until the manuscript was in the mail it had not occurred to me that I might make money from writing a novel. Then it was I recalled the writers I had heard of who own town houses and country houses and horses and yachts.

So with great confidence I tore open the letter that came one day from the publisher. He wrote:

"I regret to say that my reaction to the manuscript is negative. I feel that the subject is an extremely curious one and that its focus is intellectual rather than emotional. That is always dangerous as the basis for a novel. In the second place, I have grave doubts as to the advisability of the picaresque form which you have adopted. It seems to me that a young writer should attempt not the most difficult but the easiest form in his first novel. Above all, you should focus your interest on character rather than ideas.

"You are definitely a writing man, and should go on to other projects, etc. etc."

The girl who was now my wife helped me through the period of rationalization. You know about that if you've ever sent a paragraph out for publication: George Bernard Shaw wrote eleven years before selling a word, and Sinclair Lewis quit trying a dozen times. Of her own accord my wife sent the manuscript to the college professor. He replied that it was "magnificent" and that he recognized himself on page 87—although I'm sure I never put him there. He said he was sending it on to Blank, "the dean of American editors."

About a month later "the dean of American letters" sent his reaction in a bold longhand scrawl:

"First of all you can write. Secondly, you are too young to write a novel. Thirdly, you don't seem to give a damn about what the public wants to read, and that's fine.

"Young man, you're playing with big, fundamental ideas of religion and its place in America today. Your picaresque form for this is excellent; it's the easiest form for a beginner. Then why do you clutter your ideologies up by dwelling on a group of wholly delightful characters who are not integrated with your basic theme? etc. etc.

"Now sit down and write another novel and send it to me, etc., etc."

By this time my stubborness was aroused. The manuscript was returned in the morning and I sent it out again in the afternoon. It bounced in three days with a printed form stating that Blackball & Blackball "regret our publication schedule is filled for the coming season."

Once more I tried. This time the reply was on green stationery under a gold letterhead of the sort you smell before you read. It was signed by a woman—hell, call her Sappho.

"I have read your thoroughly delightful tale, etc., etc.

"I fear the conclusion would disappoint most readers. Now really, life isn't all like that, is it? If you would play up your romantic interest . . ."

I don't think I ever read all of that letter. The novel has at last found a place. For a long time I had been troubled by a squat lamp on a table that was too low to read by. Reinforced with cardboard, the manuscript makes a firm base and raises the lamp to allow me to read more easily. Lately I have also been troubled by an itching in my typing fingers.

"This lamp isn't quite high enough yet." I said to my wife the other evening. "Perhaps if it were raised a couple more inches—with a firm base, you understand . . ."

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

The Spirit Of Mr. Landon

I REGRET THAT every newspaper in the United States did not publish in full on their front pages, the speeches made at Carnegie Ha on the night after the election—in a rally to bury hatchets and start out again together.

Raymond Gram Swing, who possesses one of the finest political minds and one of the most magnanimous and courageous spirits in this country, is chairman of the Council for Democracy, which called the meeting, and Mr. Swing's speech belongs among the masterpieces of American public addresses in time of peril.

Stephen Vincent Benet's beautiful speech, as uttered by Raymond Massey, ought to go into school textbooks.

Honesty, magnanimity, cooperation, a high Americanism, a total lack of rancor, marked every speech, from that of Mr. George M. Harrison, representing the railroad brotherhoods, to that of Mr. Howard Coonley, representing the National Association of Manufacturers. The spirit of a Republicanism that has nothing to fear from the President, and from which the President has nothing to fear, breathed through the addresses of Newbold Morris and of Mr. Landon. The spirit of a democracy from which the Republicans have nothing to fear was expressed in the speech of Mr. Robert Jackson.

If that spirit prevails we shall conquer our own animosities and, having conquered them, be unconquerable.

MR. LANDON, once Governor of Kansas, a State that this year went Republican, and, in 1936 candidate for the Presidency of the United States, spoke, I am convinced, for a majority of Republicans when he said, over the radio from Topeka:

"As soon as the election is over, Republicans and Democrats will rally in the Nation's interests to the support of the President of the United States. This vital and dominant attitude in American political life will not be changed by the bitterness of this campaign. Whoever is elected will be my President for the next four years . . . A successful defense program requires the utmost cooperation from all of us. Nothing could be more demoralizing within a nation than a constant campaign of hate . . . We should permit a wide range of disagreement as to policy, should throttle down all demagogic appeal to emotions, and hold steadfastly to a rational exchange of ideas . . . There is in the world tonight the unity of the machine gun. And then, there is the inspiring unity of a free people, behind a leader who is honest, and truthful, and frank as to the toil and hardships ahead . . . The world must see us at our work, and know that in the heat of the campaign we toss epithets about, but grin and go back to work when the campaign is over, citizens all of a great Nation."

He who cannot say amen to that is no friend of this democracy and of this republic.

The President, in his Cleveland speech, the last speech of his campaign; said this:

"The progress of our country, as well as the defense of our country, requires national unity. We need the cooperation of every single American—our workers, the great organizers and technicians in our factories, our farmers, our professional men and women, our workers in industry, our youth—all the men, all the women, who love America just a little bit more than they love themselves."

IS THERE ANYONE who does not respond to that? Should we not take the President at his word? I do the President the honor to believe that he meant it. I do him the honor to believe that this passion for America which fills your heart and mine, fills his to certainly no lesser degree. I do him the honor to believe that his intelligence tells him that we cannot do what we positively must do in order to survive, without all the brains, and all the hands, and all the emotional power of affectionate fidelity resident in this great society.

At the extreme right and at the extreme left are Catilines. Yes, they are there. They have no love for this democracy, no faith in this democracy, and they plot its ruin. If we, the vast center, of which they are merely a periphery, stand together, they will perish of inanition. They can only draw strength from an unhealed cleavage. But if the cleavage is not healed, they will draw great strength, for they have the consequentiality of fanaticism. They, who know what they are about, which is the task of destruction, will find it easy if the building they would wreck is cracked across.

The youth who emerged for the first time into political life in the Republican campaign, as crusaders against political corruption, who are full of energy and zeal, must not go back to spiritual unemployment. They must not be expected to remain on ice for four years because their side lost. Their zeal was for America, and America is still here, and America needs them in a very constructive way. The criticism that expended itself violently in this campaign must not be allowed to sour in frustration. It must be given an opportunity for national expression and constructive action.

I MEANT NO OBLIQUE or direct thrust at my Republican friends when I spoke of the necessity of synthesis between the realistic spirit of the "right" and the idealistic spirit of the "left." We are all, to some extent, realists and idealists, some with more emphasis in one place and some with more in the other. The New Deal must be more realistic and efficient; the Republicans must learn to be more humane.

There is absolutely no room left for wounded personal feelings, for irascible egos, for spoiled child attitudes, for loftly withdrawals, or for the crowing spirit of "I told you so." Those of us who were in the thick of this campaign took a lot on the chin, no matter which side we were on. Well, Americans have strong chins, and they will need them in the future. We had better shake our heads a couple of times to get the cramp out of our necks and then settle them steadily again above our shoulders. The time has come to burn the mail—all the adverse and abusive letters and all those filled with fulsome praise as well.

We want neither a continuation of the militant and intransigent spirit that would make storm troopers out of the opposition, nor of an attitude that would turn victory into arrogant conquest.

We need to say to the opposition: "Cheer up! You're among friends!" And prove it.

For this country is a great country, and a good country, and it is in peril.

Fair Enough

Wrongs Still Exist

SOME OF THE APPEALS for unity, now that President Roosevelt has been elected for a third term, suggest that those who make this plea were dishonest in their opposition during the campaign or would abandon principles for the sake of comfort.

The wrongs which the Willkie campaign attacked are as wrong today as they were last week, and President Roosevelt's methods and associations have not changed. A President who would use the office of United States Attorney General for a petty momentary political advantage, as Mr. Roosevelt did in obtaining a timely deportation order against Earl Browder's wife, may be expected to misuse that high office or any other high Government post again and again. That was a small incident in the fight and was overlooked by many, but it was very important as a sample of the morals of the New Deal.

The same deportation order could have been issued months ago or deferred until after election, but the New Deal had decided that the Communists had become a political embarrassment, and the mechanics of the scheme to deodorize the Administration began to unfold several days before the President, in Brooklyn, finally disowned them and tried to put them into bed with Willkie.

FIRST the national committee called attention to the fact that Browder had been convicted of a passport fraud by the New Deal. Next the Attorney General came through with the deportation order whose political timing was obvious. Then the President completed the play in Brooklyn.

Prior to that the Internal Revenue had been used repeatedly for purposes of political harassment, and labor organizations, including that of Sidney Hillman, had resorted to the most flagrant coercion of citizens who are compelled by this Administration to be members of the unions.

I have a card issued by Local 163 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, of Troy, N. Y., actually commanding the members to attend a political rally for James M. Mead, the New Deal Senator, on October 22.

"ALL MEMBERS must attend and be on time," the command read, but the local organizer denied that the meeting was to be political in character, yet announced that those who failed to show up to hear the New Deal Senator would be fined $1.

Ironically, although the union members showed up to hear Mead, he failed to present himself. These people are members of these unions by compulsion of the Government, and now they find themselves under orders from the union bosses to pay political tribute to the party.

That sort of thing was wrong on October 22, and it is still wrong, and to yield the point now in the name of national unity would be to promote the kind of unity that Hitler has and by similar methods.

The practice of maintaining a kennel of trained political polecats in high Government office for the purpose of abusing every citizen who has the honesty and courage to oppose any political or executive outrage against minority rights and the Republican form of government is an important issue still. Officers and employes of the Government have certain duties prescribed by law, and they should be deferred from using the prestige of their positions to persecute or harass citizens who happen to oppose policies of the Government.

WILLKIE SAID it all when he remarked at the close of the struggle, "that the principles for which we have fought will prevail is as sure as that the truth will always prevail. Don't be afraid and never quit."

The popular vote shows that more than 18,000,000 American voters ain't reconstructed yit.

SECRETARY KNOX

He hit the New Deal harder than Willkie ever did, says Ernest Lindley discussing the question whether the defeated Republican candidate should be given a Cabinet post

A Sign Of Unity

By Ernest K. Lindley

Put Willkie In Public Office

THERE IS MUCH sentiment in the Roosevelt Administration for asking Wendell Willkie to accept appointment to an important public office. It exists even among some who have been identified as out-and-out New Dealers—although it is regarded as unthinkable or impracticable by others in this group.

Three jobs, in particular, are being mentioned for the employment of Mr. Willkie's prestige and talents:

1. Chairman of the National Defense Advisory Commission.
2. Secretary of War.
3. A temporary ambassadorship-at-large to visit the Latin-American Republics and possibly other nations where the appearance as a representative of the United States of the defeated nominee for President and the titular leader of the opposition would impress those nations and the world generally with the unity of American purpose with regard to the paramount questions of foreign policy and defense of the Western Hemisphere.

THE DESIRABILITY of bringing Mr. Willkie into the Administration began to be discussed by aides to the President before the election was held. The President's victory was more embracing than most of them anticipated. Mr. Willkie, nevertheless, was the choice of more than 20,000,000 voters. It is argued that nothing could prove more quickly and more emphatically the President's preeminent desire to obtain national unity than the issuing of an invitation to Mr. Willkie to take an important post concerned chiefly with national defense or foreign affairs.

The inclusion of Willkie in the Administration would be a gamble on the part of both principals. If the President and Willkie found themselves unable to get along it would probably create disunity worse than if the experiment had not been attempted.

Professional politicians usually recover from the verbal excesses of a campaign more quickly than their more intensely partisan supporters. Willkie, although totally inexperienced in public office, was not a political novice even when this campaign began, and by now may be classed as a veteran. Nevertheless, even experienced professionals may come to believe some of their own more extreme statements concerning their opponents. A period of grace and relaxation might be necessary even if Willkie were eventually to take a post in the Administration.

NO ARRANGEMENT for Willkie to enter the Government would be feasible unless Willkie accepted wholeheartedly the election result and surrendered, temporarily at least, his right publicly to criticize the Administration. This is a right—and perhaps even a duty—which Willkie, as titular leader of the opposition until the next Republican national convention, probably would not lightly forego. On the other hand, Willkie's leadership is only titular To several million voters he is more important than the Republican Party. But out of public office, he, like other defeated Presidential candidates, probably will find that the real leadership is gradually assumed by Republicans in the Senate and House. Although he made a better race than Landon did, and although he is a more dynamic man, he might find himself, under the best of circumstances, reduced by 1944 to the uninfluential popularity which surrounded Landon in the Republican preconvention and convention contests of 1940.

OF THE THREE specific proposals, the chairmanship of the Defense Commission is the least practicable. The members of the present commission have no reason to look up to Willkie. Several of them have had far more business experience than he has had. Also, this post would bring him into direct contact with certain domestic questions, including the protection of the rights of labor, on which working men have just registered an overwhelming verdict.

The Secretaryship of War would be more feasible. This would bring Willkie into the Cabinet but he would not be responsible for domestic social policies. After all, he didn't hit the New Deal as hard as Frank Knox, present Secretary of the Navy, did as the Republican Vice Presidential nominee in 1936.

A temporary diplomatic assignment probably would be the public duty into which he could enter with the least difficulty—just as Alf Landon went to the Lima Conference.

The obstacles, political and personal on both sides, to bringing Willkie into the service of the Government, are high, but there is a pronounced feeling in the Administration in favor of making the attempt.

Books And Things

FRANK CASE'S "Do Not Disturb" (Stokes, $3) is a pleasant postscript to Frank Case's "Tales of a Wayward Inn." It includes the names of more than 200 of Mr. Case's friends, patrons of his Hotel Algonquin, and the best stories about them that Mr. Case did not include in his "Tales of a Wayward Inn."

There is, for instance, the story of Wolcott Gibbs, of the New Yorker. Mr. Gibbs was visiting a newly rich friend in the country and was a bit bored at the ostentation of the tennis courts, swimming pools and stables. Finally his friend pointed to a tree on the terrace and said, "See that tree? It stood for 50 years on top of that far hill. I had it moved in here just to shade the terrace."

Mr. Gibbs studied it. "That just shows what God could do if he had money," he said.

There is the story of Ashton Stevens, who was tenderly lifting the leaves of an artichoke, one after another, and gently, reminiscently, remarked to Mr. Case: "Frank, are you old enough to remember when women wore petticoats" . . . And there is Frank Case's own confession that he has no use for artichokes except to dip up good hollandaise sauce (he gives his recipe for good hollandaise, too), and that he can dip it up just as well with pieces of blotting paper.

There are even a few reminiscences of Mr. Case's youth in the Black Rock section of Buffalo, inspired, if that is the word for it, by Henry Mencken's "Happy Days" in Baltimore: the sawdust cigarettes, the Fauntleroy suit, the milkman, and the horsecars and all that. And there is Mr. Case's Gullet Poll of the likes and dislikes of his patrons.

The best chapters are those in which he laments the good old days when hotel kitchens had smells, and complains of modern sanitation; that in which he recalls his good friend and best man, Douglas Fairbanks; and that in which he tells how Hebe prepares gladioli, in her Sag Harbor garden, for the Algonquin lobby. There Mr. Case is talking shop, and he knows his shop.

Frank Case is the best-loved boniface in New York today, and one of this talk-rich town's best talkers. You can hear him talk as you turn his pages; and Soglow's illustrations add spice to it. But when a book, 320 pages of it, sounds like a stenographic record of unedited conversations, even the best conversation begins to seem amiably long-winded.

Reactions Abroad

As The World Views The Returns

THE BRAZILIAN radio, says a report from Rio de Janeiro, broadcast returns of the American Presidential election every few minutes. At moving picture theaters in that city special announcers acquainted the audience with how the election was going. And government officials stayed up to the wee sma' hours to hear the result.

This unprecedented interest in the outcome of a domestic political struggle taking place in a far off land was by no means confined to Brazilians, however. It was shared by Canadians and Mexicans, by the peoples of Central America and Argentina and the other nations to our south, by Englishmen and Germans and Spaniards and Italians, by Turks and Greeks and Bulgars, by Chinese and Japanese.

LIKE THE RESIDENTS of the District of Columbia they could play no part in determining the outcome. But they could not help taking sides just as we do in the wars of Europe and Asia. For just as we realize that these wars may have a vital bearing on our lives and fortunes, so peoples living outside our borders realize that the effects of an American election will not and cannot be confined within the borders of the United States.

That explains the carefully underlined indifference of the Axis powers, poorly concealing though it does an obvious distaste for the result: the frank concern of the Japanese: the jubilation of the British; the elation of the nations of Latin America most enthusiastically manifested in Nicaragua where, following news of President Roosevelt's victory, President Anastasio Somoza decreed a national holiday.

IN HIS STATEMENT on the election, Secretary Hull put his finger on the heart of the matter. "It is a matter of profound significance," he said, "that our foreign policies, the basic features of which were supported by both the leading candidates for President, were given . . . Nation-wide approval."

The outside world, may, to a greater or lesser extent, have been aware of the fact that the leading candidates for President were in essential agreement regarding major issues. But Mr. Willkie was to them an unknown; President Roosevelt very definitely a known quantity.

During his eight years in office Mr. Roosevelt has come to be regarded as the very archtype of democratic statesman, but of an older and stronger breed than those encountered in Europe during the fatal years between 1933 and 1940. They knew him as the unrelenting opponent of totalitarianism, as the creator of the Good Neighbor policy, as the defender of the Hull program of reciprocal agreements, as advocate of aid to the victims of aggression.

Whether their estimate is sound or not does not matter. The fact is that it is their estimate. That is why those abroad who were desperately anxious to have American foreign policy continued along Rooseveltian lines wanted the American Chief Executive returned to office; those who believed their countries would benefit by a change in Washington were eager for his defeat, however dubious they may have been regarding the policies likely to be pursued by a successful opponent.

THE WIDESPREAD and intense interest manifested throughout the world in the American election is as was pointed out here the other day, a tribute to the enormously important influence which the United States wields. It was also something above and beyond that. It was expressive of a fact which the war has made a bitter reality, namely, that no nation is fully master of its own destinies, no nation is in the full sense of the word, sovereign.

Our fate depends to a frightening degree on Britain's capacity to resist Hitler's unrelenting onslaught. Britain's fate, in turn, may depend on how well we muster our productive forces so as to supply them with such vital necessities as airplanes. And what is true of such powerful nations as Great Britain and the United States is immensely more true of the smaller and weaker nations of the earth.

MANY SUCH nations in Europe have been overrun by the invaders. The sovereignty they once enjoyed is now only a memory of pleasant days and lost opportunities. Those still at peace are fearful that the tide of aggression is still at the flood and that, before it begins to ebb, they may be numbered among the victims. But alone each of them is helpless.

No wonder, then, that the clear indication given by the American people that they favor the continuance of the Administration's foreign policy, is being hailed with rejoicing by the free peoples of the world. They regard it as a victory for themselves though in the first instance a victory for the Democratic Party of the United States. For through imperious forces of circumstances they can no longer help but regard themselves as part of us and through us of the world of free nations whose frontiers have so tragically shrunken during recent years.

Mrs. Roosevelt Tells What She Does With Earnings

But no interest has been required on such loans, and in many cases she knew when she made them they might never be paid back.

During the remainder of her conference Mrs. Roosevelt appealed for national unity, commented on the problem of trying to get food to children of France, and announced plans for a forthcoming lecture tour that went on her winter calendar six months ago.

She read excerpts from a letter dated at 1 a. m. on election day and expressing a strong plea for loyalty to the next President—whichever candidate might be elected. The letter was from the proprietress of a small laundry in the Southwest

The writer expressed the hope that the President would be reelected, "but I am bound as an American to say that if the people's vote gives Wendell Willkie the office, then we owe him the loyalty that is due any man upon whom we lay so heavy, so frightening a responsibility."

Voicing her own opinion on the subject, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"When a decision is made, we must make up our minds that the thing for us to do is to try to solve the problems confronting us with real cooperation and not have the feeling that it is hopeless, and from now on we'll just look out for ourselves. Let's think of what is at stake for the whole people."

This led to a brief discussion of what might be done to promote unity in the ranks of labor, and the First Lady said that peace in that contingent does not depend entirely on the persons at the top.

"I am constantly finding new things that are basic difficulties which will have to be cleared up before there can be any peace in labor ranks," she said. She declined to elaborate on that point.

The blockade on food sent to children in France presents a very grave problem, she said. "It seems very terrible not to feed children if they are hungry," she went on, "but war is a terrible thing and I do not believe you can ask nations fighting for their very lives to take any step which they feel might endanger their chances for victory."

Mrs. Roosevelt will leave today for New York and will start from there on a lecture trip to Illinois and Ohio. She will return to Washington on the morning of November 19, leave again that evening, and then be back on November 20.

She and the President will not follow their custom of having Thanksgiving dinner at Warm Springs, Ga., this year. Instead, they will be either at the White House or at Hyde Park.

Standard Power Plans to Simplify Corporate Setup

By the Associated Press

Standard Power & Light Corporation, top unit in a billion dollar holding company system, filed with the Securities Commission yesterday a proposal to divest itself of control over its underlying unit, Standard Gas & Electric Co., simplify its corporate structure and transform itself into an investment trust.

To simplify its corporate structure, Standard Power proposed to create a new class of common stock consisting of 800,000 shares at $5 par value which would be exchanged for its outstanding preferred stock, common stock and common stock series B.

The corporation offered three alternative plans for divesting itself of control over Standard Gas. One called for an exchange of the common stock of the company which it holds for an equal number of shares of nonvoting stock, with an added provision that it would not vote for directors of the company so long as it held any notes, debentures, prior preference stock or $4 cumulative preferred stock.

Under another plan the corporation would refrain from voting for directors of the company so long as it held any securities of the company. The third plan was that the corporation surrender for cancellation the certificates for its 1,160,000 shares of common stock of Standard Gas with the reservation that it receive an appropriate share of the company's assets whenever they should be distributed.

U. S. Cool About Chile's Claim To Antarctic Area

The Chilean government's claim to the Antarctic region lying between 53 and 90 degrees west longitude, much of which has been and is being explored by Americans, caused no surprise here yesterday.

"Chile, like the United States, had reserved its rights to the territory," said a State Department official. "Its claim was not unexpected."

A representative of the U. S. Antarctic Service said yesterday that "Little America" is not involved in the land question, since it lies more than 1,000 miles to the west.

Election Result

Well, the New Deal is to keep up dealing.

Mr. Roosevelt won not only an election but a life membership.

He is not only the peepul's choice but their Acquired Habit.

He and the voters apparently have an Axis.

Although he broke the oldest tradition in American government, busted conventions all over the lot and treated precedents and conventions like picnic leftovers, the electorate pinned the "Good Until Further Notice" sign on him.

He became the first President in the Nation's history to go after 12 years in the White House and get them.

It looks more and more as if he had won an unbreakable lease.

You could almost change the name of the country to the United States of Roosevelt.

And even those who voted against him have got to hand it to Franklin today. As a public idol he ranks with Babe Ruth, Man o' War, Christy Mathewson, Ty Cobb, the skinless all-hot, the baked Idaho potato, swing music, Clark Gable, the three-decker sandwich and the Cornell backfield.

Wendell Willkie made one of the most heroic campaigns in political history, and had everything on Franklin except the radio manner, but when it was all over it was just another breeze for the "Inspector."

Franklin gets four years more at bat. Mrs. Roosevelt gets four years more on the railroads, all the little Roosevelts get four more years on the green light and the Forgotten Man gets four more years in which to test his memory.

John L. Lewis out trying to steal home from second with the bases full.

LaGuardia safe on the hit and run play. Ten runs, fifteen hits, no new lawsuits for assault and battery.

Now that it's all over the American public will take it with its usual good will, forget the harsh words of the campaign and concentrate on the pressing problems of the immediate future, hoping for the best, trusting in God and admitting the futility of trying to beat the best radio voice in the world.

If anybody is entitled to the Laugh of the Century it is the Minsky Brothers as they look at the musical shows which are now accepted as the biggest hits on Broadway, and remember how they got jumped on year after year for doing the same things at lower admissions.

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Completely exhausted by their election activities, Truthtown socialites are rushing away for their autumn vacations. Most of them hope to get recuperated in time for the gay round of Thanksgiving festivities.

Mrs. Thornberry Flitt, who returned from the fall fashion and theater openings in New York just in time to go on a political speaking tour of two weeks in the vicinity of French Lick Springs, Ind., will now go to White Sulphur Springs, Va., to relax.

Mrs. Van Twyne Barnacle and Mrs. Hungerford Crisp, who served two days a week as volunteers at their party headquarters, have been ordered to bed for a week by their physicians. Later they will take the baths at one of the new Americans spas.

Mrs. Casper DeMenthe Bougonvilla and Mrs. Mike McPace will seek a country rest at the Old Home in the Shenandoah Valley. Mr. and Mrs. DeLancey Duffer who were married in June and took a long honeymoon cruiser, will go for a two-weeks fall vacation to Aiken, S. C. Mr. Duffer has resigned his job at the Glacier National Bank, which he took in August.

Election Party

Although police are trying to hush it up, it is understood that the annual election party Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Bartholomew Beetle, Truthtown's eccentric dowager ended in a "battle of buttons" and a near riot.

Mrs. Beetle, as in her wont, invited both her Republican and Democratic friends from among the elite and also rounded up some Socialists, Prohibitionists, Farm Laborites, Townsendites, Communists and representatives of the newly organized After Judgement Day League.

Trouble started when Chauncey Penguin, man-about-town and diner out, and a man named Mudge began pelting each other with Roosevelt and Willkie buttons. In the melee that followed, buttons literally rained in the great drawing room and hall.

Ethelbert Vanderpuffer, horse and dog enthusiast, was knocked out when accidentally hit on the forehead by a large "We Don't Want Eleanor" button. Mrs. Parmalee Pigeon, outstanding dowager, collapsed from shock at a remark made by a Socialist waiter who was serving the champagne.

Mr. Vanderpuffer could not be reached yesterday for a statement. "My husband greatly dislikes publicity," Mrs. Vanderpuffer told the press. Mrs. Beetle said she found the event "stimulating." "I have ceased giving conventional parties," she said. "I have reached the age where I can no longer be bored."

How Girl Made Herself Chic To Merit Job

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor

HERE'S a real success story, not the usual boy-meets-girl variety, but one with determination enough to inspire hundreds of case histories just like Jann Brodinsky's.

MARSHALL ADAMS

Jann Brodinsky is a Washington girl with such a practical streak in her make-up that awhile back she dragged herself into the Woman's Department of The Post admitting that she was depressed about her personal appearance. She showed us her uninteresting coiffure, her drab costume and lifeless posture, confessing that "she didn't like looking at herself these days."

What could she do, she pleaded?

Confiding that a new job had been acquired which would bring her "in competition with younger, prettier and more sophisticated women," Jann took a quick inventory and decided on an immediate remedy, but one which few women in her position would have admitted to. "She would have a thorough overhauling," she announced, and so directly was placed in the competent hands of a Washington store stylist who put her through the following paces:

Started on Figure

Starting with a firm foundation, a clever corsettier decided that the Brodinsky figure was really quite nice, neither plump nor hefty, but in need of a little control and posture straightening. It was miraculous how a little midriff control straightens shoulders and lifts chin lines, Mrs. Brodinsky discovered.

In place of tepid lines and colors, Jann was put into warm brown and beige tones, practical as well as seasonably smart. Styles, too, had a more vigorous, youthful cut than her former matronly costumes possessed. And instead of her old, uninspiring hair-do which dripped disconsolately over ears and forehead, a new up-swept effect was tried which automatically lifted features and spirits. The same moral e-building effect was achieved by a deep pore-cleansing facial and more animated cosmetic color schemes.

Versatile Wardrobe

But what about financing a venture of this type? Jann had a very limited budget, but she was frank with herself and had spunk enough to discard all her demoded togs which reminded her of her former listless self. Here is her versatile winter wardrobe purchased on less than $70 a figure usually spent on a winter coat alone by most business girls. Brown tweed suit with matching topcoat to be worn over everything. Price, $29.75.

White crepe blouse. Price, $4.95.

Pigskin gloves. Price, $3.

Restyled coiffure. Price, $1.

Revived complexion, benefit of courtesy facial.

Girdle, $5.

Total, $69.50, a meager figure for so much morale and spirit building.

A Woman's WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

Even the Neatest Housewife Seems to Run Amok in a Hotel Room, Officials Reveal

ONCE a woman sheds her household responsibilities in a hotel room, she seems to abandon her habitual neatness as well. Most hotel housekeepers will tell you that men, obedient to deep-rooted habits drilled in by mothers and wives, automatically hang up their clothes and arrange other belongings in some sort of order. But give a woman free range of a room she doesn't have to clean up, and in a trice her powder, her lipstick impressions and her cigarette butts appear everywhere

The ideal feminine guest, according to Lottie May Taylor, of the board of directors of the National Executive Housekeepers Association here, is the movie star. "She is used to servants, so she knows how to get along with hotel employes. She is accustomed to nice things. She is courteous and considerate," Miss Taylor says. As executive housekeeper of the Shoreham, she awards Oscars for etiquette to Joan Bennett, Luise Rainer, Bette Davis, Sonja Henje and Jeanette MacDonald. She admits she runs into occasional cases of temperament, but says experience helps her to spot such problem guests when they arrive; then she gives them such good service they can find nothing to complain about.

TIPS ON THE MARKET

From the D. C. Department of Weights and Measures.

Buy coal from an established dealer whose reputation you know. See that his name and address appear on the delivery truck and that you receive a ticket bearing the dealer's name, your name and address, the gross weight of the load, the tare weight of the vehicle and the net weight of the coal delivered. All established dealers follow this procedure, which is required by law. Mary Haworth's Mail

After Learning Girl Wouldn't Consider Marrying Him, Man Bitterly Upbraids Her for Accepting His Attentions; She Asks If She Behaved Unfairly

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Do you think a girl should ever go out with a man she doesn't like, simply for the sake of having someone to go with? About three weeks ago, I started going out with a man who had asked me several times. I didn't especially want to go with him, but I had no one else to go with; so we went to several movies, and he took me out dancing two or three times.

Each time we went out together, he told me how pretty he thought I was, how much he liked me, and that I was "just the girl for him." I realized he was growing fond of me and I tried to discourage him, but it didn't do much good. The last time we were together, he wanted me to promise (1) that I wouldn't go with anyone else, and (2) that I would marry him when he had saved a little more money.

I told him quite frankly (too frankly, I'm afraid) that I didn't like him nearly enough to marry him—or even to think of marrying him. He kept insisting that I could learn to like him and I was equally insistent that I couldn't. Then he said that if I didn't like him I should not have accepted his attentions and entertainment.

I knew from the first time that I didn't like him very well. But, frankly, I haven't had much experience at "dating," so in the very beginning I asked my roommate's advice. She advised me to go out with him. She said I might like him better when I got to know him, and that there was a chance I might meet someone, through him, whom I would like.

I know now that I was too blunt and tactless in refusing him; but I didn't know how to do it gracefully. I wanted to part with him on a friendly basis but he was bitter about the whole thing—leading me to believe I made a mistake in ever going out with him, since I didn't like him very well. What is your viewpoint on this muddle? I want your suggestions, for future guidance. MISS X.

Man Isn't Justified In Feeling Abused

DEAR MISS X.: My dictionary tells me that "to like" is "to be attracted toward; to wish for; to enjoy." Girls who are in the fortunate position of having a choice of suitors do select their men friends on that basis. But I agree with your roommate that it seemed only common sense for you to accept this man's attentions, since you had no alternate choice,—even though you weren't especially "attracted toward" him.

As she logically argued, there was the pleasant possibility that you would learn to like him; as well as the chance, worth investigating, that through him you might meet some positively compatible young man (or men). As has been said, "he who would have friend must show himself friendly"—and you, who have a real need for men friends to round out your social life, were taking a step in the right direction in letting this chap prove himself.

It was mere casual civility to accept his invitations, after he had persisted in calling you—and neither he nor anyone else is justified in criticizing you for going out with him occasionally, even though you well knew, all along, that you could never be truly fond of him. In my opinion, the only regrettable aspect of your behavior was your blunt lack of diplomacy in declaring your sentiments—after he had forced your hand. But even that is perhaps more to your credit than otherwise.

I have no doubt that a socially more experienced girl—if currently down to her last beau, who wanted to be her sweetheart when she didn't care for him—would have contrived to help him face the fact of her feeling without wounding his pride. With adequate truthfulness, she probably would have told him, for instance, that she had never thought of him except as just a good friend; that she did thoroughly enjoy going places with him; that he was a real refuge from loneliness and she had been grateful for that;—and that she was truly sorry if he were disappointed in this state of affairs.

Once the man had insisted on a clarification of mutual intent, the girl who was disinterested would have been quick to suggest that if marriage to her was his goal, the real objective behind his attentions, then perhaps it would be best, because most fair to him, if they stopped seeing each other. This would have lifted her immediately above suspicion, in his mind, of being a "chiseler." It would have implied, unmistakably, that she wasn't willing to accept his "entertainment," if he regarded the same as a lifetime investment.

Don't feel too badly about the man's bitter reaction. It suggests to me that he is scarcely more experienced at "dating" than you are. If he were socially seasoned and genuinely in love with you, he wouldn't have behaved so ungraciously. He would have assured you that however you felt, it was all right with him, so long as you were willing to see him occasionally. And he would have continued to make the most of every opportunity to win your heart.

As a matter of fact, socially seasoned young men don't expect girls to fall in love with them in repayment for a bit of attention. Nor do they assume that each and every girl who consents to go out with them is in love with them, or even liable to be. Indeed, such a thought would be apt to chill their enthusiasm. They prefer to think the burden is theirs to win the girl's acceptance, and they appreciate the "horse sense" and savoir faire of those young ladies who can keep them interested without taking them too seriously. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Knitted Clothes Are Favorites Of Bette Davis

Hollywood, Calif.—When Bette Davis is caught on a picture set indulging in the ancient art of knitting she is aiming at the twofold purpose of calming her nerves and turning out something in the latest knitted fashions.

While needles clicked on the set of "The Letter," Bette mulled her lines and managed to knit a full-length swagger in poudre blue yarn in a big cable stitch. That shade of blue is never missing from her wardrobe. The coat is lined with blue wool meant for wearing atop, while the yarn becomes a snug lining for nippy days.

Bette relaxes best in casual clothes and these togs always include items of her own labors. One of her handsomest sweaters is a harlequin number intricate enough to calm the most active nerves. It combines gold with brown in a diamond design.

With a classic gray chiffon evening gown pleated from shoulder to hem, she wears a fitted jacket in knitted gray wool that at first glance resembles Persian lamb. Bette adds a dressy touch in brilliant ruby and diamond clips at the neckline.

She has also done a long-torsoed slip-on in black anthracite yarn with a sparkle, appropriate for daytime or evening, depending upon the skirt she will wear.

Bette is threatening to add crocheting to her needle art now that she has been initiated into its pleasures for scenes in "The Letter." She crocheted a lovely web-shaped doilie.

After 30—Chic

Hollywood, Calif.—Matrons may thank lovely Spring Byington for chic clothes ideas for the woman past 30, as suggested by those she will wear in "Meet John Doe." One striking gown is in greenish-blue duvetyn, with shawl bodice, slender skirt and rows of shining silver hooks and eyes that appear to catch the sleeves to the bodice.

Poise an Aid To Popularity

DELIGHTFULLY poised—two popular members of the social set! Off for a gala evening, each one can rely on the other's good manners never to create an awkward moment.

At the elevator she enters and leaves first. He removes his hat, as is correct for a man when in an elevator with women, unless he's in a crowded business elevator.

Arriving at the party, they greet their hostess with a cordial "Good evening, Mrs. Jameson. It was so nice of you to ask us." When buffet refreshments are served he courteously asks his partner, "What may I bring you?" She will never start to eat her own refreshments until he has his also.

Such smooth behavior isn't a matter of guesswork. To be a favorite companion at social affairs, to be a popular guest, be sure of the simple but oh! so important rules of etiquette.

At a large party where all-round introductions are impossible do you hesitate to talk to people you don't know? Quite all right to chat without an introduction.

And do you wonder who should say "I'm glad to have met you"—the man or the woman? The man does, and the woman may reply graciously "I hope we meet again soon."

Or, finding your table in a restaurant, how conspicuous you feel if you don't know what to do! When the headwaiter leads the way the woman goes first, the man follows.

Little Touches Aid to Chic

Hollywood, Calif.—Howard Shoup predicts that "the little things" will count as fall lengthens into a winter of fabulous fashions.

He suggests a sequin-studded scarf that may be worn as an evening turban, a shawl or sash, or as a cravat with an evening suit. Brenda Marshall's black grosgrain suit for "East of the River" is made much more attractive with one of these sparkling neckties.

Have an assortment of fur bows that clip on a pair of pumps, a hat, the neckline of a dress or in the formal coiffure with equal ease.

And no array of jewelry is complete, he says, without a five-way clip similar to Olivia de Havilland's handsome "starfish," which may be separated into three smaller clips and two earrings.

CookingEasy If Planned, Model Says

Budgeting of Time, Effort Held Secret To a 'Balanced' Career and Home

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Food Editor.

When a young married woman balances a career and a home and makes a success of both you know that she has some plan of action.

Martha Ellyn

And if she cooks up some triumphant meals that are of the speedy variety and satisfying at the same time it is evident that her plan works.

Mrs. A. J. Buettner, a model in a local store, goes to work six days a week. She loves clothes, but she also is keen about having a pleasant home life. Since she is the type that always looks serenely beautiful, with never a care, I asked her how she was able to look so and yet keep the wheels of a household in motion.

"I budget both my time and my energy. And a little white pad and a lead pencil is my first aid. I make lists of practically everything I plan. I am tremendously proud of my kitchen and although I don't cook lunches or many dinners I do keep myself in practise by cooking good breakfasts. An inadequate breakfast is more likely to start one off on the wrong foot for a day at business than any one thing.

Meals Not Difficult

"I don't think it is difficult to prepare meals with all of the splendid ready-to-use foods we have today and the equipment, too. My cooking 'bible' is a book by Janet McKenzie Hill ('Cooking for Two'). It is chuck full of suggestions, and the author has a parade of breakfasts, dinners, luncheons and supper suggestions planned especially for two persons."

I asked her what she was serving these crisp autumn mornings for breakfasts and she told me her last Sunday morning's breakfast menu. Here it is:

Grapefruit Halves With Sherry
Sausage and Hominy Omelet
Broiled Pineapple Rings
Popovers Strawberry Preserves
Coffee

Mrs. Buettner's sausage and hominy omelet is attractive to both the sense of taste and that of sight. You'll like it, so here is the recipe she gave me for making it:

Sausage and Hominy Omelet

Place ½-pound sausage links in cold skillet. Add a small amount of water. Cover and steam for 5 minutes. Pour off remaining water, if any. Turn the sausages over a slow fire, until brown. Remove from skillet. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons of the fat. Add 1 No. 2 can hominy, ½ teaspoon salt and dash of pepper and heat thoroughly. Add 2 well-beaten eggs and 4 tablespoons milk. Cook only until the eggs are set. Turn onto a chop plate. Arrange links over the top.

Mrs. Buettner says that she and her husband also enjoy little sausages on a crisp fall morning, served with patties of corn meal mush, topped by cubes of currant jelly. Since more energy is required for snappy weather, and for the activities of the season, the high caloric value of sausages makes them an ideal food. They help to store up energy and heat to meet the chill blasts of wintry winds. The "staying quality" of a meal containing sausages makes it an ideal selection for those who are apt to get hungry between meals. That is one reason that it is an ideal breakfast dish. It staves off hunger until time for lunch, and keeps away that "all-gone" feeling so often experienced between breakfast and lunch by those who depend upon a light breakfast.

Many Ways to Serve

But sausages need not be restricted to the breakfast only, for it can be served in a number of ways. This meat combines well with practically any vegetable or fruit. The following are some suggestions for making sausage ensembles:

Sausage links baked with apples.

Sausage baked with noodles in casserole.

Sausage links baked in casserole with lima beans.

Link sausages are cooked in much the same way as bacon, slowly with frequent turning. It is important that link sausages be cooked slowly, as then they are less likely to burst. The frequent turning insures even browning and even cooking throughout. Sometimes they are covered with cold water which is allowed to come to a boil, then turned off and the sausages allowed to brown.

Breakfast the American Way

Mrs. A. J. Buettner's breakfast setting is as American as her homespun food. Kentucky hand-loomed mats give a background for terra rose American earthenware. Both the bread bowl and casserole containing the souffle are Argental hand-wrought aluminum, created by a native craftsman. The centerpiece follows the American theme by using grapes, apples, gourds and foliage in a crystal bowl

Aristocratic Bits Made of Angel Food

Apricot cream squares are aristocratic bits made by an angel food recipe, using but half the amount of ingredients and then served with theapricot cream mixture.

Apricot Cream Squares—Use one-half the recipe for the angel food cake, mixing the cake as directed. Four to 5 eggs will be needed. Turn the batter into ungreased 8 by 8 by 2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 25 minutes, or until done. Remove from oven and invert pan on rack until cake is cold. Serve in squares, topped with apricot cream, made as follows: Combine 2 tablespoons sugar, 2½ tablespoons flour and a dash of salt in top of double boiler; add 2 tablespoons apricot juice and mix thoroughly. Sieve drained apricots to obtain ½ cup pulp and add gradually to flour mixture, stirring until blended. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 5 to 7 minutes, stirring constantly. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice, chill. Fold in half cup cream that has been whipped. Makes 1½ cups.

Chess Tarts Win Friends

Desserts, like fashions and Government, change in the fall. With crisp, cool days families begin clamoring for real, honest-to-goodness desserts like pie and puddings. Southern Chess Tarts are the kind to win friends each time they are served. Bran forms the base, while the filling is a heavenly mixture of brown sugar, eggs, currants, walnuts and cloves. Clip this recipe and tuck it away for once used you will want to try it over and over.

Chess Tarts—Beat 2 eggs well; add 1 cup brown sugar and 1 tablespoon melted butter; mix thoroughly. Add ¼ cup milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon each cinnamon and cloves, ¾ cup chopped walnut meats, ½ cup currants and mix thoroughly. Fill tart pans lined with all-bran pastry. Bake in 375-degree oven about 45 minutes. Yield: Eight, 3-inch tarts.

Roll ¼ cup all-bran until fine; combine with 1½ cups flour and ½ teaspoon salt. Cut in ½ cup shortening. Add 4 tablespoons cold meats (more or less), a little at a time, until dough is moist enough to hold together. Roll out on lightly floured board to about ⅛-inch in thickness.

Cabbage Wedges, Creamy Egg Sauce, Dish of Character

An important part of every menu should be vegetables. If we are to eat two vegetables a day other than potatoes, new and unusual methods of serving them must be used. A creamy egg we are to eat two vegetables a mushroom cheese sauce for asparagus and an almond butter sauce for green beans all give a pleasant change in vegetable dishes.

One point to remember in preparing vegetables is to avoid overcooking, so that the characteristic texture and flavor is retained. They should be served piping hot and as soon as they are cooked. Vegetables that wait for the rest of the meal to cook or have to be reheated don't have the fresh sweet flavor of those quickly cooked and served at once.

You can make creamy egg sauce while cabbage wedges are cooking, and they will be ready at the same time.

Cabbage with Egg Sauce

Trim off the outer cabbage leaves of 1 medium-head cabbage and cut the head into thin wedges. Drop into rapidly boiling salted water and cook uncovered for 10 minutes, or just until tender. Melt 2 tablespoons flour, add 2 cups milk and cook over direct heat, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and is thoroughly cooked. Add 1 teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Cut the whites of 2 hard-cooked eggs in small pieces and add to the sauce. Drain cabbage, arrange on serving dish, and pour the sauce over it. Rub the egg yolks through sieve and sprinkle over top of sauce. Serve immediately. Serves 6.

Care of Breadbox

Once mold gets into the breadbox it is apt to infect every fresh loaf you buy. To get rid of it, empty out all crumbs, then wipe the box with a cloth wrung out in vinegar. Be sure to wipe the rim as well as all corners and crevices. As a final precaution, place the box in strong sunlight to dry.

How to Use Fall Flowers

Now that the flower season is practically over, it's time to look up something new and different for your favorite glass and pottery bowls. In Hollywood (yes, we know there are flowers there the year around, but can't the girls have a change?) fall favorites are the heavy laden sprays of scarlet and orange thorn berries.

In Carole Lombard's dressing room we saw a particularly beautiful autumn arrangement. In a lovely old blue-grey "crackle" bowl, Carole had placed one of those stubby drip candles—the kind that are about 3 inches at the base and perhaps 8 inches tall—in a matching blue. Around the candle she arranged crimson thorn berries.

What, No Butler? Tier Table Fills Gap

Adds to Ease With Which Dinner May Be Served

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

HOW TO SERVE a dinner of dignity without benefit of butler . . . answer to that in a nutshell is a tier table, also called a dumbwaiter table. A pair of these, one at the left elbow of both host and hostess, not only enables them to serve graciously but adds great charm to the design of the dining room.

This is but one of the changes in the stereotype arrangement of a dining room which helps take it out of the doldrums. Another genial change is the use of upholstered chairs for the head and foot of the table in place of matching pieces all around; these are used in ensemble with plainer dining side chairs. The imposing breakfront cabinet, more usually found in living rooms, is also being introduced most successfully for dining rooms.

Just now, regency and modern are the styles most dramatized in current exhibitions of dining rooms. Regency of course has the widest appeal due to its cousinship with familiar and well loved eighteenth century English styles. Not only is it an enduring selection for a dining room to be furnished completely new but it is about the best choice we can think of for additional pieces to revive an eighteenth century dining room that is beginning to look a little bored with itself.

Lacquered Surfaces

Modern for dining rooms as exhibited by some of the more spectacular decorators is for those courageous souls who like the rhythm and the adventure of the present day American scene. It is scaled to suit the sizes of actual dining rooms that people have; it is built to hold our contemporary choice of possessions; it is designed to fall in with our vernacular of living and entertaining.

Among the less ordinary finishes are lacquered surfaces, leather covered pieces, woods grained with special photographic markings of exotic effect, unusual woods and versatile finishes of familiar woods. Mirror, plastics, metals, leathers, all contribute fresh detail.

The next most important trend in styles for dining room furniture is the revival of less familiar types of European provincial furniture. But these are not to be confused with peasant types of provincial.

Manor House Furniture

The spirit that pervades provincial revivals this year is a prosperous middle class formality that has its own sort of unpretentious self-respecting charm. Among the most favored of this furniture, is the French provincial, more properly called the French manor house furniture, for it has a cultivated abundant air about it which makes it highly suitable for the simple yet sophisticated pattern of life in our country today.

Another important trend in provincial furniture revivals is that toward English country furniture, likewise with a certain dignity and a fine feeling of line that takes it entirely beyond any comparison with crude peasant styles.

This furniture as well as the French provincial mentioned above are slated to take the place of early American in style news. Not that they will replace it ever in our affections—it's simply that early American has become such a classic that it no longer makes news. It is no less satisfying for that, no less widely used.

Ickes Submits Resignation To Roosevelt

Asks Others to Follow His Example, 'to Give President Free Hand'

"Honest Harold" Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, submitted his resignation to President Roosevelt yesterday, urging all Presidential appointive officials to do the same to "give the President a free hand."

Ickes' action touched off an orgy of speculation, with no holds barred, on what changes President Roosevelt might make in the personnel of his Administration, now that the elections are over.

Rumors involving big names were batted back and forth across The Avenue all day with complete unconcern, and sometimes a rumor even met a counter-rumor in head-on collision.

Rumor No. 1, of course, was that Wendell L. Willkie would be asked to accept a high Administration post, perhaps in the Cabinet, or perhaps chairmanship of the Defense Commission.

McNary May Get Invitation

The usual "informed circles" gave little credence to that rumor, but one political observer offered the gossip that Charles L. McNary, Willkie's running mate, might be asked to join the Cabinet in the interests of national unity.

Another leading topic of conversation among those "in the know" was the speculation that Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, 78, might retire from the Supreme Court. This rumor galloped through downtown Washington, even though Hughes has told friends that he intends to remain on the bench as long as his health permits. He is reported to be in good physical condition.

Retirement of the Chief Justice, if it should materialize, would leave the way open for a Presidential triple-play, according to the same "informed sources:"

Attorney General Jackson would rise to the Supreme Court, Solicitor General Biddle would become Attorney General and Thomas G. Corcoran, former "brain truster" who left the Government to take part in the Democratic campaign, would get Biddle's job.

Kennedy Visit Stirs Rumor

A visit that Ambassador Joseph E. Kennedy paid to the White House to congratulate the President on his triumph at the polls produced—in a matter of minutes—the rumor that Kennedy, who is reportedly tired of serving in London, would be offered a Defense Commission job.

Among the more hoary rumors that were trotting out of desk drawers yesterday was the one that Jerome Frank, who is known to be hankering for judicial robes, would leave his chairmanship at the Securities Exchange Commission, to be replaced by Ganson Purcell, now head of SEC's Trading Division.

Corridor prophets also said yesterday that Leon Henderson, SEC Commissioner who is Defense Commissioner, as well, would leave the former post, take a $10,000-a-year secretaryship at the White House, and continue serving at the Defense Commission.

Much speculation centered around the Labor portfolio in the Cabinet, with many observers expecting Secretary Perkins to resign, perhaps to be replaced by Sidney Hillman or Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York.

Another LaGuardia Possibility

Rumor experts also had their eyes on the War Department, reporting that Secretary Stimson would resign to make way for a younger man, perhaps Mayor LaGuardia, who was said to be more disposed to taking the War than the Labor job.

Few Cabinet positions would be changed, it was felt. Administration intimates believed that Secretary Morgenthau at Treasury, Secretary Hull at State, and Secretary Jones at Commerce were in office "for the duration." There was less certainty about Agriculture Secretary Wickard and Postmaster General Walker.

Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic national committee, stepped hard on rumors that he would be named to a Cabinet post.

Flynn said in New York, according to the Associated Press, that there was "positively no justification" for such rumors, that "my plans are arranged for me to remain as national chairman."

Chamber Concert Scheduled Sunday

A newly formed group, the Chamber Music Guild, is sponsoring a series of string quartet concerts this season, the first being scheduled for Sunday night at 8:45 in the small ballroom of the Carleton Hotel. Mrs. Edwin M. Watson (Frances Nash), wife of President Roosevelt's military aide, is president of the organization, and other officers are Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Mrs. Foster Adams and Mme. H. de Sokolov.

The string quartet is composed of Frank Gittelson, former concertmaster of the National Symphony Orchestra; Alexander Levin, Benjamin Sosner and Marcel Ancher. Their first program consists of Haydn's D minor quartet from Opus 76, and Dvorak's F major ("American") quartet. Later concerts will be given November 26, December 17 and January 21.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and "cure" it afterward. Find out what's giving you the trouble.

Chances are it's simple if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: meat, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" producing food—such a one as the crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal, Kellogg's All-Bran. Eat it often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Russian Embassy Party Attracts Diplomats Anxious to Find Favor With Soviet Regime

Polite, Unofficial Wooing of U. S. S. R. Takes Place at Affair Celebrating 'Great October Socialist Revolution'

By Hope Ridings Miller

OVER VODKA or champagne and sturgeon from the Volga, Capital officialdom did some polite wooing of the Soviet Union yesterday afternoon.

A reception at the Soviet Embassy in celebration of the "Great October Socialist Revolution" was the occasion, and between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock, the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Oumansky greeted approximately 800 guests. In the throng were a sizable number of Government officials, scores of Army and Navy notables, and representatives of all nations across the Atlantic and Pacific except the Netherlands, Portugal, Switzerland and Thailand—none of which have established diplomatic relations with the U. S. S. R.

In contrast to last year's revolution reception from which capitalites stayed away in droves, yesterday's fete drew as many prominent Washingtonians as the average diplomatic reception.

The Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones, Mrs. Stanley Reed, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Lewis Compton, Mrs. George Marshall, wife of the Army Chief of Staff, and Mrs. William E. Borah were among those climbing the red-carpeted stairway to attend the party.

Working their way through barrage of photographers gathered at the embassy entrance were British, Canadian, Japanese, Chinese and Turkish diplomats, who put in an early appearance. The only top hat on parade was worn by the British Charge d'Affaires, Nevile Butler, who arrived early with Mrs. Butler and stayed for more than an hour.

The German Charge d'Affaires, Hans Thomsen, accompanied by Frau Thomsen, lingered just as long, and members of his staff seemed to be there full force. I saw the German Military Attache and Frau von Boetticher threading their way through the crowd that formed a phalanx around the lavishly laden table centering the dining room. The German Naval Attache and Frau Witthoeft-Emden came early and stayed late, as did the First Secretary, Wilhelm Tannenberg, and Frau Tannenberg. Herbert von Strempel, accompanied by his wife, chatted at length with the Italian Assistant Naval Attache, Count Ettore Filo della Torre di Santa Susanna (yes, that's all one name).

Prince Colonna, the Italian Ambassador, paid his respects early and was soon on his way home, but other members of his staff stayed on until the end.

Centers of much favorable attention were Mr. and Mme. T. V. Soong, the former of whom is president of the Bank of China. Mme. Soong wore a Chinese robe of handsome peacock blue silk, trimmed with narrow bands of cerise braid.

Finnish Minister Is Popular Guest

Finnish Minister Hjalmar Procope, who was the first diplomat to arrive at last year's Soviet reception, came during the latter half of yesterday's party. Accompanied by Mme. Procope, he was completely surrounded by friends when I saw him in the crowded dining room.

Meanwhile, the host and hostess, standing in the center of the huge, richly furnished drawing room, were greeting a continuous line of guests. Mme. Oumansky wore a floor-length frock of sapphire blue velvet fashioned with net sleeves and a yoke of the same material, outlined in sequins. A shoulder corsage of orchids accented her costume.

Guests ascending the stairway passed in review before a mammoth picture depicting the battle that led to victory in the historic October revolution. Portraits of Stalin, Trotsky, and Lenin looked down from paneled walls of the dining room. Red roses brimmed from silver bowls on the table that groaned beneath an outlay of sturgeon, caviar, sliced turkey, ham, and a variety of tea-time dainties.

Rigid System of Checking Guests

At a small bar in the room known as "the gallery," champagne, vodka and other drinks were served. Upstairs there was another buffet and another bar and a crowd almost as large as that on the floor below.

By 7 o'clock the throng had thinned considerably, but half an hour later a couple of hundred guests were still enjoying the party. Traffic in front of the embassy was congested as a long line of automobiles pulled up to the door to take care of departing guests. A continuous line of guests inside was either depositing wraps or getting them back during the entire party.

A rigid system of checking guests was carried out at the door. Cards of admission were demanded of each person as he entered, and anyone who had forgotten his hammer-and-sickle-crested invitation had to give his name and be identified on the long guest list.

Among the first persons to arrive was Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, of the Smithsonian Institution. Mrs. William E. Borah came in a few minutes later, paid her respects quickly and left early. Mrs. Henry F. Grady and Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck arrived together. Mrs. Adolf Berle was there; as were Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Duggan and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke.

"Such an INTERESTING party" . . . "Did you EVER see such a crowd?" . . . "Wonder WHO all these people are" . . . "I DO hope everybody comes." That's the type of talk you heard on all sides as the party began to grow into one of the largest fetes of the season.

Mrs. Richard Casey, wife of the Australian Minister, came in with Mr. and Mrs. Alan Watt, of the Australian Legation. Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, just back from New York, was there, as were Mrs. Wilbur Carr, Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Sayers, Admiral Emory S. Land, Admiral and Mrs. Benjamin Dorsey and their pretty daughter, Achsah; and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richberg.

Col. and Mrs. John Alden Crane were seen in the crowd; also, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Frank Hines, Ralph Totten, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Horgan, Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Stanley White, Col. and Mrs. Grady G. Ruttencutter, Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, and Mrs. Eldon King.

Still others there were Baroness von Below, who held a court all her own in the music room; Mr. and Mrs. Goerge Bonesco, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hogue, Mrs. Thomas Anthony Wadden, Mrs. Mackenzie Davidson, Mrs. Tomas Cajigas and her daughter, Anita, and Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Rutherford, the latter of whom wore with her trim black frock a handsomely decorated silver belt, made in Russia and given to her by Zimbalist.

The Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun were in the diplomatic contingent arriving during the first half of the party. The Yugoslav Minister and Mme. Fotitch were among those present; also, the Hungarian Minister and Mme. Pelanyi; the Rumanian Charge d'Affaires, Brutus Coste; Mme. Bostrom, wife of the Swedish Minister; Dr. Vladimir Rybar, Yugoslav Counselor; Robert Webster, of the South African Legation, and several members of the British Embassy, including Sir Owen Chalkley, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Bramwell, and Anthony Rumbold.

White House Ball to Honor Sub-Debutante

Roosevelts to Fete Joan Morgenthau With Dance December 26

For the second time in the Roosevelt Administration, the stately East Room of the White House will be the scene of a gay debutante dance when the President and First Lady entertain December 26 in honor of Miss Joan Morgenthau. The daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau is still a schoolgirl, and isn't making a formal debut this season, her mother announces. But the two Eleanors—Roosevelt and Morgenthau—have been close friends since long before White House days, and the First Lady thought it would be fun to give a dance for Miss Joan.

The last debutante party at the White House was two years ago this Christmas, when the President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave a ball for the latter's niece, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, of Dedham, Mass. The party was attended by young people from local residential and official society and by many from other cities.

Miss Morgenthau, who is tall and dark, is enrolled at the Madeira School in nearby Virginia. Her outside interests include horseback riding, which is popular with the entire Morgenthau family, and tennis.

Mary Corby, Mr. Channing Are Married

Couple to Reside On Connecticut Ave. After Wedding Trip

Decked with lilies and white chrysanthemums, St. Alban's Church was the scene of the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Mary Ellen Corby and Charles Edward Channing, jr. The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock with the Rev. Charles T. Warner officiating.

The bride, who made her debut here several seasons ago, is the daughter of Mrs. George Calvert Bowie. Mr. Channing is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Channing of this city.

Given in marriage by Mr. Bowie, the bride wore traditional white satin. The gown was made on simple lines with a high neckline, and long, tight sleeves. The full skirt fell in a swirling train. From a coronet of heiroom, rosepoint lace, a long tulle veil fell the length of the train. She carried a spray of white orchids.

Miss McDowell Maid of Honor

Miss Elizabeth McDowell, of Sharon, Pa., was maid of honor. She wore a peach gown fashioned of velvet and taffeta. A bolero jacket of velvet was worn over the frock and the full skirt was edged in velvet. She wore a matching calot, with a round veil, and carried a bouquet of blue delphinium and token roses.

The remaining attendants were Mrs. Thomas P. Bones, jr., Mrs. Gardener Dove, Mrs. H. Franklin Kreuzburg, Miss Dorothy Johnston, Miss June Thomson, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. George Story, of Chicago. They were dressed in sky blue gowns made like that of the maid of honor, and carried bouquets of roses and delphinium.

Karl Corby, brother of the bride, served as best man. Ushers were Harold McGinniss, Edward Castle, Calvert Bowie, Philip Bowie, William Worthington, of Charlottesville, Va.; Serena Merrill, of Baltimore; Andrew Cox and Bolling Hobbs, both of Charlottesville, Va.

Reception Held At Bowie Home

Following the ceremony there was a reception at Mrs. Bowie's home on Edison Lane. Palms, chrysanthemums, carnations and white snapdragons were used throughout the house. Mrs. Bowie wore a blue crepe gown trimmed in blue fox fur and a cluster of white orchids. Mrs. Channing had selected a burgundy ensemble with white orchids.

When the couple left for their honeymoon, the bride wore a British tan traveling suit and dark brown accessories. She had pinned a cluster of white orchids to her ensemble. Upon their return they will live at 3100 Connecticut Avenue. The bride attended Ogontz School in Philadelphia. Mr. Channing was graduated from the University of Virginia and is now studying law at Georgetown University.

About the Town

DUDLEY HARMON

AMONG THE newcomers to Congress will be two determined souls who, in the best Kipling tradition, at first didn't succeed, so tried, tried again — and this time it worked. One's a Republican, the other a Democrat, and both have served in Washington before. Two years ago each ran for the House and was defeated.

They are Charles Dewey, of Chicago, and Thomas Eliot, of Cambridge, Mass., and their return to the Capital will interest a great many Washingtonians. Mr. Dewey, the Republican, was at one time Under Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Eliot, the New Dealer, wrote the Social Security Act at the age of 27.

IN HIS CAMPAIGN Mr. Dewey was assisted by his wife, Suzette. Previously a home and four children had occupied most of her time, but she suddenly found herself making daily speeches and very able ones, too. When Mr. Dewey ran two years ago his wife wrote several articles describing how it felt to be a candidate's wife.

When he is not running for Congress Mr. Dewey is occupied with banking. He at one time served as financial advisor to the Polish government. Their youngest son drove an ambulance in Europe last winter for the Polish Brigade. He returned here late in the summer and is now studying law at the University of Virginia. The oldest daughter, named Suzette for her mother, is married to Frederick Alger, of Detroit.

Mrs. Dewey is small, brown-eyed and friendly. She and her husband are expected here this week-end to visit his brother, Albert Dewey. The latter predicted yesterday that the new Representative and his wife will probably take a house in Washington.

MRS. Thomas Eliot has been another helpful campaign wife. But she confined her efforts to clerical work and public appearances with her husband, rather than speaking. Young Mrs. Eliot could probably make a good speech if she wished, as she has always been an active sort. At Smith College she was president of student government and later, for several years before her marriage, worked with Dorothy Detzer at the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

In the very earliest days of the New Deal Mr. Eliot came to Washington fresh out of Harvard Law School. (He is a grandson of the late Charles Eliot, perhaps the most famous president Harvard ever had.) At law school he won the Ames competition and otherwise distinguished himself. In Washington though only 26, he was named assistant solicitor of the Labor Department. In 1935 he moved on to the general counselship of the Social Security Board. Followed an assistant professorship of history and government at Harvard. After his defeat for Congress two years ago he was named regional director of the Wage and Hour Division of the Labor Department.

MR. DEWEY'S election on the Republican ticket from a district which includes the stockyards surprised many. Mr. Eliot's was astounding, as in his territory is conservative Brookline, Boston suburb rated the wealthiest city in the United States. This is only the second time since the Civil War that this district has sent a Democrat to Congress.

• • • •

VISITING the Capital is David Wills, English newspaperman and correspondent for the London New Chronicle. His wife, who is an American, is with her family in Boston. Before leaving London Mr. and Mrs. Wills stored practically all they owned in one of the best-known warehouses there. They have just learned that the place and everything in it was blown to bits.

Glasgows Coming For Visit Soon

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Graham Glasgow, originally of Richmond, Va., but residents of London for a number of years, will arrive in Washington tomorrow and will be at the Shoreham Hotel for two weeks.

Returning to this country shortly after the beginning of the war, they spent the past summer at Newport and will go from here to Palm Beach where they have recently purchased a home. They plan to spend the winter in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Glasgow have a host of friends in Washington, many of whom hope to entertain for them during their visit.

Mrs. Dial to Fete Mme. Ertegun At Luncheon Today

Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, will be guest of honor at the luncheon to be given today by Mrs. Nathaniel Dial at her home.

Other guests will include Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, Mrs. Edward Rhodes Stitt, Mrs. William S. Dennis, Mrs. Wilton J. Lambert and Mrs. William George Drum, of San Francisco.

Mrs. Garrett Attends Ball In New York

Local Head of Bundles For Britain Is Present At Fete to Raise Funds

Mrs. George A. Garrett, head of the local chapter of Bundles for Britain, was among the Washington guests at the huge ball given at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York last night to raise funds for the Bundles group.

The ball, which was in preperation for many weeks, topped off an evening of special importance to members of society as it followed the opening night of the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden.

Lord Lothain, the British Ambassador, didn't return from London in time to be present at the ball, but was represented by the British Counselor, Nevile Butler. Mrs. Butler was also an honor guest. Before the ball they dined with Mrs. Wales Latham, national president of Bundles for Britain.

At the gala affair, a jeweled gold cigarette case donated by Queen Elizabeth was auctioned off. An extensive program of entertainment was presented under the auspices of the Theater Authority, Inc.

In the brilliant throng at the opening of the horse show earlier in the evening was Col. Pedro Zanni, Air and Military Attache of the Argentine Embassy. The Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Cabero will attend the closing night of the show, Wednesday.

Col. Guggenheims Will Entertain Roger W. Strauses

Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Straus, of New York, brother-in-law and sister of Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, will arrive in Washington today to spend the week-end with Col. and Mrs. Guggenheim.

The visitors will be feted at a dinner given by the Guggenheims this evening at their home on Macomb Street. There will be 24 in the party. On Saturday the visitors and their hosts will spend some time duck hunting down the Potomac.

Col. and Mrs. Guggenheim will entertain at another dinner on November 12.

Lieut. Gildarts On Way to Panama

Lieut. and Mrs. William J. Gildart are en route to Panama, where Lieut. Gildart will be stationed. They sailed on October 15, aboard the S. S. Leonard Wood.

Mrs. Gildart was the former Miss Edith C. Fitch, daughter of Mrs. William R. Fitch, of this city. The couple was married last June.

Round Table Discusses Harlan County Project

Several Speakers Describe Kentucky Community Enterprise At Wardman Park Hotel Session

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

The community project organized last spring in Harlan County, Ky., for the solution of the problem of rural youth, was described yesterday at a round-table discussion at the Wardman Park Hotel, called by Mrs. Stanley F. Reed and wives of State society presidents.

Dr. Latham Hatcher, founder of the Alliance for the Guidance of Rural Youth, was here from Richmond to conduct the round table and representatives of various agencies concerned with the problem participated in the discussion. The Council of State Societies for the Advancement of Rural Youth cooperated.

Dr. Raymond S. Ward, field supervisor of junior placement for the Bureau of Employment Security, told of the work in Harlan County, where the mine operators, Harlan County Planning Council and town and county boards of education have joined hands in meeting the problem.

A comprehensive survey revealed that, even with the development of latest opportunities for new industries in the county, there would be a labor surplus, he said. Facing this, plans are being worked out to afford training for the youth in vocations in which they can most readily find employment. Before the training is complete they will be required to register with the nearest employment office. Employers in nearby cities will be directly contacted and will soon turn to the employment service for trained employes to fill vacancies, said Dr. Ward.

This plan is expected to help solve the problem of rural youth drifting aimlessly to cities for employment without training or direction.

Dr. Hatcher pointed out that the peope of Harlan County, "worn out with being known as blood shedders, are anxious through this project to bring out the best in them."

Dr. Howard H. Dawson, director of the rural section of the National Education Association, emphasized the value of the plan from the standpoint of arousing the people of the community to cooperate in the solution of their own problem. The Harlan County experiment is expected to serve as a basis for similar projects in other sections, and State societies will aid in promoting interest in them.

Dr. Katheryn McHale, director of the American Association of University Women, urged that effort be directed toward raising the whole standard of literacy and developing creative talents in the youth.

Mrs. Reed asked what attention was being given the girls and suggested that they be trained in doing handwork such as had formerly come to this country from Europe but is no longer available because of war. Dr. McHale suggested for them flax raising, weaving and work in plastics.

Others participating in the round table were Col. Heber Rice, chairman of the Council of State Societies; Dr. Louise Stanley, of the Department of Agriculture; Miss Gertrude Warren, of the 4-H Clubs; Miss Pearl Kline, Mrs. Geline Bowman, of Richmond, and Mrs. Howard Bell, local chairman of the alliance. Among others were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ely, Mrs. Frank Goodspeed, Mrs. W. M. Ritter and Mrs. Leland Olds.

Century Club Hears Lindley

Ernest K. Lindley, columnist of The Post, addressed the Twentieth Century Club yesterday at its November meeting at the Y. W. C. A., giving an impartial resume of the results of the electon.

The upturn in business, progress in national defense, the unity of the National Defense Advisory Commission, and the Administration's handling of foreign affairs were the chief factors he listed as contributing to Democratic success. He declared that, in his opinion, if any member of the Defense Commission had said he could not work with this Administration, had resigned and come out for Willkie, it would have resulted in Willkie's election.

He also pointed out that it had been definitely shown that no man, no matter haw influential, could transfer votes.

Miss Elizabeth Messick, occupational therapist with the crippled children's division of the Health Department, who has charge of the occupational therapy ward at Gallinger Hospital, also spoke. She told the club members what is being done in the room the club furnished at Gallinger. Mrs. Lawrence Martin, the president, presided.

Russell Anderson To Be Heard

The program, which marks the resumption of a custom of former years, will be given at 4:30 p. m. in the Grafton Hotel studio of the league.

Mr. Anderson is formerly of Washington and a former member of the choir of Christ Church in Georgetown. During the summer he sang as a member of Fred Waring's Glee Club, at the World's Fair Aquacade. He was featured soloist with the Radio City Music Hall Glee Club last week.

B. P. W. Clubs To Offer Aid In Defense

Dr. M. L. Moffett Announces Survey Of Members' Skills

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs is inaugurating a survey of its membership and of communities where its clubs are located to determine what place they can fill in the national defense program, according to Dr. Minnie L. Maffett, the national president.

Dr. Maffett, whose home is in Dallas, Tex., came here yesterday from the federation's headquarters in New York to attend the conference at the Women's Bureau of the Labor Department on "Training and Absorption of Women in the Defense Operations." She was accompanied by Miss Louise Bache, of New Rochelle, N. Y., a member of the national board. She will leave by plane this morning for New Orleans, where she will attend the South Central regional conference of the federation. Both women were honored at a dinner given last night at the A. A. U. W. by the board of the local club.

Dr. Florence Schneider, an alumna of Bryn Mawr, is in charge of the research project, said Mr. Maffett.

"The federation has placed at the disposal of the Government all of its resources—the services of 75,000 trained women who will aid in any capacity either individually or as a group," Dr. Maffett said. "The executive committee of our organization was given authority at the Asheville convention to act on any question which needed prompt decision. But, we are making an effort to remember it is for defense and not war we are preparing; to keep heads cool—feet on the ground."

Silver Tea Today

The Falls Church Women's Club will sponsor a silver tea this afternoon, at 3:30, at the home of Mrs. Ward Freeman, with Mrs. T. P. Walsh as assistant hostess. A musical program will be presented by Mrs. A. D. Neal, pianist. The club's business meeting will be at 2 p. m.

WE HAVE A TALENT FOR THE ART OF FIGURE-LINING

IF YOUR FIGURE NEEDS SLIMMING

It's amazing how our corset fitters can distribute weight to bring a figure into line. Take Mrs. A. who came to see us several days ago. She had two problems, an absentee waistline and prominent shoulder bulges. We put her into this Riteform Foundation with firmly boned front panel, and built-up lace straps. Her center spread was distributed into a slim, unbroken line. Her shoulder bulges were completely smoothed by the wider shoulder support. She went from our Corset Shop to our Dress Shop and returned to show us how beautifully her new dress fit her!

Off to Camp, Marines Bid D.C. Adieu in Review

Fifth Battalion Goes to Quantico For Outfitting

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Five hundred strong, gold and scarlet guidons snapping in the wind, the Fifth Battalion, Marine Corps Reserve, yesterday morning bid formal farewell on the Ellipse to Washington.

Two ours later it stepped from a train at Quantico, Va., and, under the eyes of hardbitten and critical professionals, swung off to its barracks. It was off to service afloat and ashore, to training, to guard this Nation's interests in faroff places.

At 10 a. m. the battalion, led by Lieut. Col. Harvey L. Miller, marched from its armory at Sixth Street and Indiana Avenue down Constitution Avenue to the Ellipse. To the blood-warming beat of "The Halls of Montezuma," played by its own band, it snaked with the easy swing of men trained to march across the south end of the Ellipse and drew up in battalion front facing the reviewing stand.

4,000 See Them Off

Certain formalities, dear to the military heart, done with, the battalion in column of platoons marched past the reviewing stand. Out in front, taking the review, stood District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding the District National Guard; Representative Melvin J. Maas (Republican), of Minnesota, a lieutenant colonel of Marine Corps aviation; Col. John W. Oehmann, commander of the 121st Engineers, District National Guard; Capt. Leon Brustloff, Marine Corps Reserve; Capt. Gordon Hittenmark, District National Guard, and Capt. C. B. Rhodes, District Guard.

Once more the battalion passed in review, this time in mass formation, then moved in behind its band to stand facing the reviewing and the crowd of 4,000 come to see it off. Without a signal, almost without a sound this huge crowd suddenly swept through the light ropes bordering the north end of the Ellipse, streamed across the field and in a moment was in the battalion's ranks. There were a few minutes of good-by for men going away, then a bugle rang above the crowd and the battalion sprang to attention with the faint rattle of equipment ever a part of men under arms.

The band struck up "God Bless America," the solid lines in forest green moved off the field with their gold and scarlet banners. And a little fellow about 14 years old, unable to watch them any longer, wept on his mother's shoulder and chewed the collar of his blue mackinaw, while his father stood embarrassed and helpless.

Follow Band to Barracks

While the citizen marines formed ranks before their armory and loaded baggage onto big green Marine Corps trucks, their commander in chief was arriving at Union Station, a few blocks away, cheered by 300,000, met by other citizen soldiers who will go off to camp in a few more weeks. The marines marched to their review through traffic that filled broad Constitution Avenue from curb to curb, traffic bearing to their jobs Government workers back from their part in the triumphant welcome to the man who will guide their destinies, marines and civilians alike, for the next four years.

At Quantico, from which thousands of other young men in the forest green of the United States Marines have made ready to defend the Nation, they followed their hand along the post's concrete streets to their new brick barracks. It was a barracks vacated not long ago by Regular Marines who are now standing guard over touchy spots in the Caribbean, along the flanks of the Panama Canal.

It is one of 23 Marine Reserve battalions called into active service in recent weeks, one of which, the Seventh (artillery), from Philadelphia, arrived in Quantico a few minutes after the Fifth. At Quantico the battalion will be completely equipped, given a course on the rifle rnage, and its Company D, commanded by Lieut. Clifton A. Woodrum, son of Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, will be outfitted as a heavy weapons company.

Autos Kill Two Boys in D. C. Area

Brother of One Lad Sees Tragedy In Lee Highway

Two boys, one 4 another 7, were killed by automobiles in Washington and Fairfax County yesterday.

Four-year-old Clyde Charles Dickerson, son of a District National Guard lieutenant, was killed in the Lee Highway near Fairfax. James Wood, 7, of 2007 Evarts Street Northeast, died in Casualty Hospital soon after he had been struck by two cars at Hamlin Street and Mills Road Northeast.

The Dickerson youngster, en route to the grocery for his mother, darted in front of an oncoming car while trying to cross the Lee Highway with an older brother, Gordon, 8. Witnesses said Gordon safely crossed the busy thoroughfare, turned and called to Clyde. The younger boy became confused and halted in the path of the automobile. He was hurled 25 feet, police said.

James Wood, according to Washington police, ran into the street, was struck by one car and hurled into the path of a Washington Gaslight Co. truck. He died soon after reaching the hospital. Police said the driver of the car which first struck James was John J. Rubino, 1550 Hamlin Street Northwest. The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wood.

James was in the second grade at the Langdon School. Surviving, besides his parents, is a brother, Louis, 14.

According to Virginia State Policeman R. H. Lester, the car which struck Clyde Dikerson was driven by Frank Mulvey, 34, of 236 Fourteenth Street Northeast. He was en route to Bland, Va., taking Mrs. Irene Russell, 1643 West Virginia Avenue Northeast, to see her ill father, W. D. Eagle, 72, former sheriff of Bland County.

After issuing a verdict of involuntary manslaughter, Coroner T. B. McCord, Fairfax, ordered Mulvey held in bond of $1,000 for a hearing November 13.

Policeman Lester and Chief R. Carl McIntosh, of the Fairfax police, said the Mulvey car skidded 136 feet before striking the boy and came to a halt 59 feet beyond the point of impact. The Dickerson boys live less than three blocks from the accident scene on Route 2, Fairfax.

Clyde was the son of Lieut. and Mrs. Clyde Charles Dickerson. His father is now on duty at Fort Belvoir with the engineer corps as part of the Government's defense training program.

Washington Highlands Elects Nair Head

Walter E. Nair last night was elected prsident of the Washington Highlands Citizens Association.

J. C. Juergens was named first vice president; Walter P. Hilderbrand, second vice president; Betty Jane Nair, secretary; Murray T. Warren, treasurer; C. J. Wall and W. E. Nair, Federation delegates.

Resolutions were adopted calling upon the District Highway Department to resurface First and Second Streets Southwest, between Xenia and Atlantic, and Mississippi Avenue, between First and South Capitol Streets Southeast.

Nair reported on progress of the committee promoting the construction of a bridge or tunnel across the Anacostia River in line with South Capitol Street. He pointed out that copies of resolution pointing out the strategic value of such a project from the standpoint of national defense was sent to 13 different groups.

Citizens Group Assails D. C. Bus Service

Bus service was in for another lacing last night at the Connecticut Avenue Citizens' Association meeting as the group sided with new complaints reported by Harry Frantz and Miss Vivian Moore.

The complaints charged that service along Connecticut Avenue has become increasingly poor and a shortage of buses forces many to stand while riding to and from work. More buses were asked by the group.

The name of a former member of the association, the late Major Daniel J. Tobin, was brought up when A. J. Driscoll introduced a resolution that was adopted which requested that the association send a letter of consolation to the late member's family.

The civic work of Senator William H King (Republican), as a member of the District Committee was recalled by Frantz who moved that a letter be sent King, who was defeated in the Utah primaries, thanking him for his services to the District.

Miss Elizabeth Groves initiated a resolution calling for the association to give $10 to the Community Chest and $5 to the Tuberculosis Society of the District. A resolution by Mrs. Isola R. Dodic asked the group to donate $5.50 to the Children's Theater project.

Various features of the Selective Service Act were outlined by Earl Edwards, lawyer.

New committee heads appointed for the year by Henry C. Grove, president, were: Dr. William H. Ross, zoning committee; Leonpretz Feider, law and legislation; Miss Elizabeth R. Groves, printing; A. J. Driscoll, publicity; Dr. Charles G. Shoemaker, jr., public utilities; Miss Susan Frasier, public health; David Babp, streets, alleys, sewers; Mrs. Isadore Dodic, public welfare; Charles L. Curtiss, traffic; C. B. Whaley, police and firemen; Mrs. Thomas B. Weigel, entertainment, and Mrs. S R. McClurd, schools and playgrounds.

5 American U. Coeds Named for Queen

Nominees are Germaine Coffey, Alpha Phi; Esther Henvis, Sigma Phi Delta; Virginia Hozier, Alpha Chi Omega; Beatrice Wyman, Delta Gamma, and Marion Mattes, Phi Mu.

Civic Groups' Parley Urges New Bus Route

The Northeast Conference of Citizens Associations last night appointed a committee to work for the establishment of a bus line from the extreme Northeast area of the District to the Northwest section and Bethesda, Md.

Appointed to the committee were F. E. Harrison, of the Burroughs Association; L. M. Green, of the National Gateway Association, and Thomas Joy, of the Chillum Heights group.

The conference recommended that the personnel of the Traffic Bureau be increased. In a letter to the conference the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association refused to join the group.

Midway Citizens

George W. Johnson was elected president of the Midway Citizens Association for a third term last night at the Morgan School, Eighteenth and California Streets Northwest.

Elected vice president was Arthur W. Jackson. Other officers included Ursula Jackson; Eunice Quander, corresponding secretary; James D. Campbell, treasurer; Joseph Jenkins, treasurer, and Everett Brown, sergeant at arms.

Working for Washington

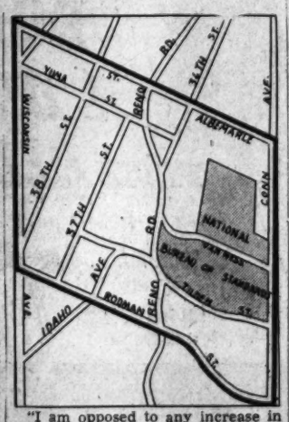
North Cleveland Park Citizens Have a Secret for Success

The secret of the North Cleveland Park Citizens Association's success in getting results is very simple, President J. B. Dickman, jr., explained yesterday. "We never ask for anything unless funds are available."

Following this policy since the unit's formation in 1926, members have obtained a playground for the Cleveland Park area, at Thirty-seventh and Tilton Streets Northwest; the Phoebe Hurst Elementary School, secured with the cooperation of the Richmond Park Association, and a bridge across Thirty-sixth Street bringing traffic from the west part of Chevy Chase, to mention but a few accomplishments.

Serving a purely residential area, the association has long opposed apartments and row houses in the sector. The neighborhood was first known as Devonshire Downs and so was the citizens association until the name was changed in 1931.

President Dickman, whose father once served as the unit's president also, believes that the vote should continue to be outlawed in Washington and that all District employes should be required to live within the District boundaries and pay taxes here.



"I am opposed to any increase in taxes and think the Federal Government should pay a more proportionate share of District taxes, commensurate with the area of the city occupied by Federal buildings," he said.

Aside from a continuous battle to keep property values up by protecting the residential status of the neighborhood, the association is conducting no major drives just now, the president reported. "Minor" projects which the body is pushing include more through streets from Connecticut to Wisconsin Avenues between Van Ness and Abemarle Streets and 7-minute bus service in Van Ness Street, he added.

President Dickman, a patent attorney who has lived in Washington since he moved here from Ohio at the age of 5, and his father, who returned to Ohio Tuesday to cast his sixtieth Democratic ballot, both serve as delegates from the unit to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Other officers include Wilbur A. Gallahan, vice president; Mrs. Edna Walsh, secretary, and William J. Howes. Regular meetings, interspersed with frequent card parties, are held on first Tuesday of the month in Windom Hall, at Wisconsin Avenue and Windom Place Northwest.

'Y' Signs Up 1,520 Members In Record Drive

By enrolling an additional 555 members since last Friday, the Central Young Men's Christian Association signed up a total of 1,520 new members in its annual membership campaign concluded yesterday, it was shown in reports last night at a final meeting of campaign workers in the building, 1736 G Street Northwest.

The campaign goal of 1,350 new members was exceeded by 170, to establish an all-time record for the number of new members signed up in a single membership drive.

The division of campaign workers headed by Col. Thomas J. Frailey, enrolled a total of 431 new members during the drive and led all other divisions in the total signed up. For its success it was presented a silver cup, donated by Floyd D. Akers. By signing up 151 new members the team captained by Tom Dobson led teams in the campaign and its leader was presented with a desk set. Lee Barbash and Dobson each signed up 63 members to lead all individual workers in the campaign, and each was presented with a lamp.

Charles H. Hillegeist, the campaign director; Leonard W. DeGast, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and Earl Nash, director of a former membership campaign for the "Y," praised the workers for their success.

DeGast urged the workers to continue to serve the "Y" in its work of creating a "better way of living." He presented Hillegeist an electric clock in behalf of the board of directors as a token of appreciation for the work he did as campaign director.

Flowers were presented to women of the "Y" who helped in the campaign and to the wives of a number of the campaign leaders.

Local Partners Lead in Bridge League Match

By Marian H. Barre
The Post's Bridge Editor.

Starting off with a record enrollment in three separate events, the Washington Bridge League's tenth annual tourney opened yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel. Women players finished the first session of their game in the afternoon round, while "mixed" pairs and intermediate pairs held the stage in the evening session. Finals of the women's and the mixed games will be played today, the intermediate event to be carried over until Saturday evening.

The defending champions, Mrs. J. E. Folline and Mrs. A. J. Rosenbloom, of Richmond, finished in seventh place among 35 teams enrolled in the women's contest. The leaders were Mrs. H. G. Campbell and Mrs. Frederick Eberson, a local pair who had never played together before. Mrs. Campbell is the wife of a former officer of the Federal Bridge League of Government Employes; Mrs. Eberson, a former Californian, is a member of the Pacific Coast League. Scoring 319½ match points, the pair had a 19-point lead over Mrs. Lester Gibson and Mrs. Harold Young, also of Washington.

Third place went to Mrs. J. R. Belt and Mrs. Jack Bennett, with 297½ points. Mrs. Edward Behrend and Mrs. D. H. Mott finished fourth; Mrs. D. de St. Aubin and Mrs. Burton Palmer, fifth. The leaders are all local women with the exception of Mrs. Behrend, who lives in Baltimore.

Frank Morgan Raises A 'Hullabaloo,' at Capitol

New Louis K. Sidney Production for M-G-M Is a Goofy Item With Touches of Novelty; 'Pan-Americana' Revue Inspiring Flag-Waver

"HULLABALOO" is the perfect title for it. That is precisely what is whipped up during the greater part of the footage of the musico-farcical whimsy yesterday unfurled for the first time in Washington on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater.

BELL

It is a gay and titillating trifle, this "Hullabaloo," romped through by a notable Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer cast seen in assignments a little away from their accustomed grooves.

With overtones of Orson Welles' "Martian invasion" broadcast and John Barrymore's recent stage vehicle, "My Dear Children," this initial production of Louis K. Sidney's for M-G-M concerns itself with a fading actor who is fired from his radio job when he scares the daylights out of the gullible populace with a too realistic simulation of an irresistible attack from the sky, in the behalf—of all things—of Perkins Pills, guaranteed to soothe the nerves! Pestered by more creditors than his erstwhile sponsor had pills, and lacking something like 80 cents of having a dime, Frank Merriweather is behind an eight ball as big as a balloon. He is about to woo the rich and otherwise undesirable half-owner of the pill foundry when in barge his three former wives, with their respective offspring, in urgent quest of 16 years back alimony.

The hullabaloo that straightens all this out is strictly a hullabaloo, during which Mr. Merriweather pulls off a radio program that seems to be participated in by Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Hedy Lamarr, Mickey Rooney and Claudette Colbert, much to Mr. Perkins' rhapsodic delight. Thinly laced through the lunatic proceedings is a slender romance between Merriweather's oldest daughter and the golf champion who is trying to be a radio announcer. All very goofy, but at the same time speedy, spontaneous, tuneful and, at times, hilariously amusing.

In the role of Merriweather, Frank Morgan has a field day as the "artist" who has triumphed—to hear him tell it—in everything from medicine shows to grand opera. He bears down most heavily upon his ability as a song-and-dance man and impersonator. His scene from "Boom Town," in which he assumes the roles of all the stars already mentioned—save Mickey Rooney, who wasn't in that picture—marks the high point of his comic achievement. It ought to, since the sound track has been lifted bodily from the lusty epic of the oil fields and it is really the voices of Gable, Tracy, Lamarr and Colbert that spring so convincingly from the Morgan lips. In the same test broadcast, little Leni Lynn, youthful soprano extraordinary, sings "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair" beautifully, to be followed immediately by Virginia O'Brien, swinging into a deadpan, rug-slashing version of the same number. As a further surprise, Charles Holland, a colored lad in the guise of a bellhop, but with the voice of a Gigli, "stops the show" with a splendid interpretation of that old wheelhorse among tenor arias, "Ridi Pagliacci." And that's the way it goes. Billie Burke, Sara Haden, Virginia Grey, Dan Dailey, jr., Reginald Owen, Donald Meek and Nydia Westman for what is left.

With the election just over and Armistice Day just around the corner, Gene Ford's flag-waving "Pan-Americana" stage revue breaks out three patriotic "production numbers"—"For America," "Ballad for Americans" and "Democracy's Awake." The piece de resistance of the stage bill, of course, is the "Ballad for Americans," rousingly sung by Fague Springman and a chorus of 40 to round after round of applause. The Pan-American aspect of the program is emphasized by the presence on the rostrum of Don Alfonso Zelaya, the robust, pianistic comedian; the Boyd Triplets, in Spanish songs and dances, executed with highly professional grace and effectiveness, and Don Francisco, a slack and tight wire smoothie who makes both a ballroom and a gymnasium out of his precarious footing.

The Capitol's elaborately diversified new bill is additionally augmented by "Eyes of the Navy," a heartening recapitulation of naval aviation as taught and practiced at Pensacola, San Diego and at sea; the Fox Movietone News, with Lew Lehr having fun with a bathing-beauty contest, and Sam Jack Kaufman's orchestra reverting to dignified stature in Carlos Gomes' exacting "Il Guarany" overture.

Movie Background

Oscar Levant, Broadway wit who is playing in "Rhythm on the River," started working in Hollywood productions in 1929 as writer and actor. He has a top featured role in support of Bing Crosby, Mary Martin and Basil Rathbone, stars of the new feature.

Perhaps the Cause of It All Is in That Bottle!

FRANK MORGAN, DONALD MEEK, DAN DAILEY, Jr., NAN GREY as they will be seen in an obviously amusing scene in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Hullabaloo," which opened yesterday on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater. Billie Burke, Nydia Westman, Reginald Owen and other tried and true funmakers also are in the cast. The film is Louis K. Sidney's first production effort

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York Nov. 7.

ENTERPRISE: The major newsbeat of the war concerned the British attack against the French fleet at Oran, in Algiers. The first newspapermen to learn of this were H. R. Knickerbocker and Vincent Sheean, who then were sipping grape with Alfred Duff Cooper at his London house. Cooper, the minister of information, received a message reporting the battle of Oran, and read it to his guests. Sheean thereupon urged him to release the story immediately. "If you hold it up," he warned, "the Germans will release their version of it first to stir up anti-British feeling among the French." Sheean pleaded for two hours, but Duff Cooper refused to be convinced, refused to release the story—and so Sheean left.

LYONS

KNICKERBOCKER, now alone with Cooper, renewed the plea, and finally, with dawn rising over London, he convinced his host to release the story. "Phone your office," the newspaperman suggested, "and tell them to let my story go through." The minister of propaganda phoned his office, and directed that Knickerbocker's dispatch be permitted to pass . . . The correspondent immediately wrote his story—an exclusive one which was not to be shared with Vincent Sheean. He finished it, sent it off and it was passed by the censor. The next day Knickerbocker realized that his newsbeat, the most important one of the war, would not be exclusive. For the afternoon papers which print his stories, were not publishing that day—that fourth day of July, 1940.

CHANGE: This is the story of Dorothy Thompson's conversion to supporting President Roosevelt in the campaign . . . After Miss Thompson returned from Europe, a mutual friend took her to the White House. There Miss Thompson spoke of what she had seen during her trip, but no mention was made of the campaign . . . Just as they were leaving, the friend said: "By the way, Mr. President, Dorothy may switch, and support you in the campaign" . . . "Dorothy," the President told her, "I don't want your support, unless you're with me completely" . . . Miss Thompson smiled, made her farewell, and the next day wrote her column supporting F. D. R.

FAME: Alison Smith and her husband, Russel Crouse, were on their way to a musical this week. "Who wrote the music?" she asked. Crouse told her, and Alison said: "Never heard of him. Who wrote the lyrics?" . . . Crouse told her, and she said: "Never heard of him. Who wrote the book?" . . . Crouse told her, and Alison said: "I never heard of him either . . . In fact, I never heard of so many people I never heard of before."

ϟϟ

DEMOCRACY: Garson Kanin, who directed "They Knew What They Wanted," is lamenting the fact that too late—much too late—did he think of a scene which he could have included. He thought of it last week, but that scene never can be used in a picture any more . . . It was to show a couple, seated at a corner table in a cafe. The camera approaches them, showing him whispering affectionate phrases into her ear. As the camera nears, it shows their hands clasped under the table . . . they kiss tenderly. The camera comes closer, closer—until it shows, in his lapel, a Roosevelt button, and on her dress, a Willkie button.

Columbia

That westerner with the sang-froid of a comedy of manners and the red-blooded vigor of fabled Texas reopened yesterday morning at the Columbia after two previous stanzas at the Palace. Appropriately enough, "The Westerner" is its title and in the leading roles Gary Cooper and Walter Brennan evolve two characters that are as individual as they are traditional.

Cooper is the not-so-talkative hero, that type of fearless rider familiar to readers and film-followers alike. Lanky Cooper brings a dry humor to the part as well as a tellingly-pitched sincerity. "Judge" Roy Bean is the fellow whom Brennan must bring to life—as likeable a villain as any twentieth century mayor. Together they lead a distinction and humor to the film that makes it outstanding of its genre. Nearest thing to such a witty "Western" in recent days has been "Stagecoach."

"Judge" Bean was a ruthless dictator of frontier Texas. As a cattleman, he fought the rights of the farmsteaders and around this "The Westerner" weaves its story. That and his all-important passion for the touring Lily Langtry! Doris Davenport, a new Samuel Goldwyn discovery, is the leading lady and Forrest Tucker, a Washington youth, has one of the pivotal roles.

Altogether, "The Westerner" is a wild-woolly opus, plus the fine art of that steady showman, Producer Sam Goldwyn.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Philadelphia, Nov. 7 (INS).—In every town we've played "The Great Dictator" is breaking records and every fan I've talked to has asked me "What will Charlie's next be?" Up until a few hours ago I couldn't truthfully answer that question. Charlie is the most secretive star-producer in the world and hates to have his plans leak out. So don't say I told you, but—

PARSONS

Chaplin's next feature-length film will be a musical of the London dance halls—the variety houses where Charlie himself first started up the ladder of fame. The time will be the gay 90's and it will be in Technicolor. Once again Charlie will return to his little clown character, without any message other than music and comedy.

ϟϟ

Robert Taylor and Hedy Lamarr didn't set the world on fire when they played together in "The Lady of the Tropics." But M-G-M is going to remedy that. The lightning that failed to ignite their first effort will get a chance to strike in "Episode in Lisbon," now scheduled for Hedy and Bob right after the first of the year. The story is sort of a "Grand Hotel" of the famous clipper flights between Lisbon and New York.

Snapshots of Hollywood and Philadelphia collected at random: Rita Lowe filed suit for divorce against Eddie in Los Angeles today, ending the fond hopes of their friends that they might get together; Kay Francis sails for Honolulu Friday on that long planned vacation; Philadelphia was like New Year's Eve election night and the din of horns and shrieks of the sirens lasted until dawn. Mike Frankovich announced the results from the stage. Thousands sang and danced in the streets. Had five shows and all of us were pretty tired.

Got a kick out of the room clerk at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, George North, telling me he and his wife, Diana, had been on the radio and in the movies in Hollywood before coming here; Paulette Goddard wires that Bob Taplinger is tossing a dinner party in honor of her house guest, H. G. Wells; heard from Connie Bennett in Reno that she's getting a good rest—but oh, will she be glad to get home! She's lost several big pictures because of the necessity of remaining six weeks in Nevada getting her divorce.

Lew Parker, master of ceremonies on the Laurel and Hardy tour, is spending all his money on Colette Lyons, current start of La Martinique in New York.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Nov. 7.

'Tis whispered about Paramount that Clark Gable has been borrowed to play the lead in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," Hemingway's latest. He'd be wonderful. He wants to do it—I know that. Well—?

HOPPER

Doug McPhail just sent a recording of his song "It's a Great Day for the Irish" back to Larry Tibbett. They became great friends last year when they met at a party given by Ida Koverman. Larry looked at him and said, "You remind me an awful lot of a guy named Norm McPhail, who sang tenor with me in high school." Doug replied, "I should. That was my father."

Ralph Bellamy is taking a 12 days' vacation in Bermuda before going into "Footsteps in the Dark."

Now that Warners have most of their players back in the home roost, all sitting pretty in fine parts, I still wouldn't be surprised if they gave Ann Sheridan the second lead with Bette Davis in "Far Horizon" (which was called "January Heights," then "Women of Today"). But now that everything is peace and harmony, they'll have a little trouble with Eddie Albert, who insists on going back to Broadway to do a play. After all, it's in his contract—but at their convenience, not his. "But," says Eddie, "this is the time."

Incidentaly, Eddie and Claude Rains and a baby have stolen the picture "Four Mothers." In trying to persuade Eddie to remain in Hollywood, they used the argument, "What would have happened if Dr. Ehrlick had given up?" "I don't know," said Eddie, "I haven't been going to the movies lately."

Now that the Lane sisters will act no more as a team, Warners have already got themselves another—Joan Leslie, who is definitely going places, and who's just 15, and her sister, Mary Brodell (they'll undoubtedly change her name to Leslie, too), who has just been signed up. Mary's 21.

What a reception Connie Boswell will get when she joins Bing Crosby's "Music Hall"—and quite right, too. There's a girl who has never for a moment let a physical handicap dampen her superb spirit or voice.

Henry Fonda sings, if you can call it that, for the first time on the screen in "The Lady Eve." This is not his first whack at vocalizing. His first stage break was in "New Faces." After that closed, Producer Dwight Wiman wanted to send him to a singing teacher. Hank said, "Who—me?" That was the end of his warbling, until the bathroom scene in "The Lady Eve."

Have you ever heard of an actor buying a town? Brian Donlevy has. It's called Willow Springs, not far from Mojave, in the center of the mining district. Donlevy plans to transform the old houses into a dude ranch and set out tourists instead of cacti on his 300 acres. Well, Adrian turned a hen house into two of the most beautiful guest rooms I've ever seen. Don't tell me he didn't—I slept there.

"One Night in the Tropics" is chuck full of foolishness, with those zanies, Abbott and Costello, stealing everything in sight. Sure, it starts off with a story, but do they sidetrack that when it interferes with the fun! And you never—well, hardly ever!—miss it.

Mrs. Sidney Kingsley (Madge Evans to you) has her New Jersey home filled with her mother's English relatives. But I have a sneaking suspicion Madge would give anything to do another picture.

Mission Board Leader Hails Baptist 'Loyalty, Generosity'

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, Nov. 7.—A 1941 budget of $530,000, an increase of $17,000 over last year, was submitted to the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention at the annual meeting here today.

Of this amount, $302,000 would be set aside for mission work and other operating expenses. Next largest item was $180,000 for debt retirement, while $48,000 would be earmarked for payment of interest on existing obligations.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, president of the board and pastor of the First Baptist Church here, told church representatives assembled from 18 Southern States and the District of Columbia that they were forced to consider "grave matters" at a time "when chaos is moving upon the face of the waters around the world."

"Message of Redemption"

But, said Dr. Fuller, "we meet in confidence and faith and hope, being fully assured that God is still alive and that we represent groups of Baptist Christians throughout our Southland who bear the divine approval and whose hearts are bent upon carrying out the great commission, namely to make disciples of all the nations."

"The loyalty and generosity of our Baptist people," he added, have enabled the mission board to "surge forward with its great message of redemption" despite the "great problems" of recent years.

Various committee reports were submitted. Dr. J. W. Beagle, field secretary of missions in the homeland, told of work done among the diversified groups in this country and of "impressive" progress in Mexico.

Plight of Jews Stressed

The Rev. Jacob Gartenhaus, field secretary of the convention, said "the people of Israel" are enduring greater suffering now than ever before in their history, adding that the plight of the Jews in other parts of the world "has greatly affected the lives of the Jews in our own land."

"Millions of them have been left homeless and starving, families have been torn apart, and disease has been spreading rapidly among them, and death has taken its toll, and there seems to be no hope in sight," he said.

"The tragedy of it is that these unfortunate people have nowhere to turn. In the past when one door was shut to them, another was opened; but today practically all doors are shut."

Elevator Operator Accused of Threat Against President

Denver, Nov. 7 (AP).—A Federal complaint charging that he threatened the life of President Roosevelt was filed today against Frederick C. Pinkenburg, 33, elevator operator in a Denver office building.

Thomas J. Morrissey, U. S. district attorney, said three rifles, several speeches by Adolf Hitler printed at Hamburg, Germany, and a swastika flag were found in Pinkenburg's room.

Morrissey reported that the arrest of Pinkenburg, also known as Carl Kline, resulted from complaints by neighbors and tenants in the office building where he worked.

Mary Boland Of the Films Hurt In Auto Crash

San Bernardino, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP).—Injured in an automobile accident, Mary Boland, 60-year-old character actress, was reported as "uncomfortable but not seriously ill" at the Redlands Community Hospital today.

BOLAND

Dr. Kenneth Dole said "it will be several weeks before she is up and around again."

She suffered several broken ribs, a dislocated hip and a severe scalp cut when her chauffeur-driven station wagon and another automobile collided last night.

First of 12 New U. S. Freighters Clears Baltimore for India

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Nov. 7.—A new freighter, symbolic of America's comeback as a maritime power, sailed from this port on a maiden voyage to India today.

She was the S. S. Executor, one of 12 vessels in the American Export Lines' current $30,000,000 building program. With her knife-like bow and with pennants fluttering from her mast, the vessel looked as trim as a yacht when Mayor Howard Jackson and other notables came aboard this morning.

The Executor and other vessels like her that are being built under the Maritime Commission Act of 1936 are the finest on the seas, according to shipping men, who point out that they are coming along at a fortunate moment. In the World War the United States had no merchant marine to speak of, and the consequences were serious.

Mayor Jackson and other guests were served luncheon in the crew's mess room. This room, with its adjoining lounge or recreation for the crew, is a vast improvement over what is to be found on the old Hog Island ships of World War days.

Capt. Ernest H. Nelson told the guests that the Executor, with her 16½-knot speed, will make the trip to India and back in three months—two months faster than the Hog Island ships that are now being replaced in America's merchant fleet.

In doing this, Capt. Nelson said, the Executor will use about the same amount of fuel as the older vessels.

Among those who gathered to bid bon voyage to the Executor were three transatlantic airplane pilots. They are the nucleus of a staff who will pilot the planes of the American Export Airlines, Inc., an affiliate of the shipping company.

American Export Airlines last year made six survey flights across the Atlantic. July 16 the company received a certificate of convenience and necessity to establish transatlantic air service between the United States and Europe, with New York and Lisbon as terminals. Three giant four-engined Vought-Sikorsky flying boats, carrying 16 passengers and a crew of 11, are now being built for the company and will be delivered next summer.

Britain Jails Ex-D. C. Man For 7 Years

Convicted of Violating Official Secrets Act; Woman Gets 10 Years

Tyler G. Kent, 29-year-old former Washington man convicted of violating the British official secrets act, was sentenced in London yesterday to seven years' imprisonment, the Associated Press reported.

Anna Wolkoff, daughter of a Russian admiral who had been charged with Kent, was convicted at the same time and sentenced to ten years' servitude.

Kent and Miss Wolkoff were arrested last May following the former's discharge from his job as code clerk at the United States embassy.

In yesterday's court hearing Justice Sir Frederick James Tucker said he had been convicted on five counts of obtaining and communicating documents which might be of use to Germany for war purposes.

The jurist said he took into account in Kent's favor the fact the papers did not relate to military or naval movements.

In handing down the heavier sentence for Miss Wolkoff the justice declared she had sent a code letter to "a traitor who broadcasts in Germany for the purpose of weakening the war efforts of this country." (Presumably, this referred to Lord Haw-Haw, who has broadcast anti-British propaganda in English from Germany.)

Sir Frederick added that Miss Wolkoff apparently had been motivated by an "anti-Jewish obsession."

Kent, whose mother, Mrs. Annie R. P. Kent, lives here at 2107 S Street Northwest, was educated at St. Alban's School, Princeton and George Washington Universities, as well as the Universities of Paris and Madrid.

A brilliant linguist, Kent was stationed at Moscow before his transfer to London. He was the son of a former American foreign service officer.

Mrs. Kent, who previously told The Washington Post she hoped for a light sentence in view of mitigating circumstances, could not be reached for comment last night.

Hit-Run Charge Against Bliss Nolle Prossed

Three Women Hurt In Crash Absolve Him of Any Guilt

Hit-run and reckless driving charges against Robert Woods Bliss, former Ambassador to Argentina, were nolle prossed yesterday by State's Attorney Ben G. Wilkinson, jr., of Montgomery County, Md.

The former Ambassador was slated to have been tried today at Bethesda on the charges growing out of an automobile accident in which three women were hurt last September 21, in Massachusetts Avenue extended, a mile beyond the District line.

Wilkinson said he had dropped the charges at the request of Mary J. Edmands, 7104 Hardwick Road, Wood Acres, Md., her mother, Mrs. Mabelle E. Reddish, and a sister, Elizabeth Edmands, prosecuting witnesses. They were occupants of a car, which was alleged to have been overturned in a collision with an automobile driven by Bliss. Montgomery County police took Bliss into custody near the District line shortly after the accident, and placed the charges against him.

In a letter to the State's attorney requesting dismissal of the charges against Bliss, Miss Mary Edmand said:

"I believe that the accident was caused by a misjudgment of distance and speed on the part of Mr. Bliss. I am also of the opinion that, following the contact between his car and mine, he did not realize that our car had been tipped over or that a serious accident had occurred."

Lowe 'Loveless,' Says Wife Asking Divorce

Prominent Americans Join In Plea for National 'Unity'

Gen. Pershing, Theodore Roosevelt Among Group Urging Burying of Political Hatchets for Sake of U. S.

New York, Nov. 7 (INS).—Americans of high station in many walks of life—some of them ardent supporters of Wendell Willkie's bid for the Presidency—called on the Nation at large tonight to join hands in a new spirit of national unity.

The following telegrams were made public tonight by the Council for Democracy in connection with its "America united" program:

Mrs. Grace Coolidge, widow of the late Republican President: "National unity under our freely elected leaders is now the most important objective before us. Our surest national defense is a united front in the fight to maintain the privileges of democratic freedom."

Gen. John J. Pershing: "To my mind an appeal to the people of the United States for unity is quite unnecessary every four years. Since George Washington we have had a campaign followed by a general election to choose our Chief Executive. That the people will now unite behind the new President does not admit of doubt. It is the American way."

Theodore Roosevelt, member of the Republican wing of the Roosevelt family who campaigned for Willkie: "After an election our President-elect is President of all the people. Both he and they must remember this for it is our American creed."

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, one of the most caustic critics of President Roosevelt and the New Deal: "This is a democracy. It has spoken in democratic fashion. So far as I am concerned all that I have and am is with the President in his defense of America."

William Green, president of the A. F. of L.: "Let us now show the world our democracy is effective by uniting behind our Government to make America unconquerable and keep it free."

Irving S. Cobb, noted author: "Americans are not greedy winners when they win, nor bad losers when they lose. For the sake of our country, let's all be good sports now."

C. M. Chester, chairman of General Foods Corporation: "To preserve its great heritage of freedom, America must unite as never before to make its defense invincible and to uphold the dignity of the individual."

Booth Tarkington: "We have all had our say; and when the strangers with guns begin to surround a house it is time for the family inside to stop arguing."

Banking Support Pledged

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP).—The support of banking was pledged to the Government today by P. D. Houston, of Nashville, Tenn., President of the American Bankers Association.

Addressing the eleventh midcontinent conference of the American Bankers Association Trust Division, Houston said "There are plenty of problems ahead in this flaming world."

"They call for united thought and action," he said. "As president of the American Bankers Association I pledge the support of the banking fraternity to the Government in meeting these problems.

"This is a Nation of majority rule. As a people I am sure we will accept the decision of Tuesday and give our support to our Government. That is the American way," he declared.

President Franklin B. Snyder, Northwestern University, told the conference that "both the bank and the university must be left free from unnecessary control if they are to make their largest contributions to the public welfare."

Unitarians Discuss Role In Democracy

Joseph Priestley Conference Meets At All Souls' Church

The Unitarian denomination's role in preserving democracy and its war relief work abroad highlighted discussions of the Joseph Priestley Conference of Unitarian Churches here yesterday. It met at All Souls' Church, Sixteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest.

Speaking with Leifur Magnusson, of this city, and Mrs. Richard Y. Fitzgerald, of Boston, at an afternoon symposium, the Rev. John G. MacKinnon, of Richmond, expressed the opinion that the church should help create a "voluntary collectivism," in contrast with "enforced collectivism" abroad.

Magnusson, formerly Unitarian representative at the International Labor Office at Geneva, Switzerland, said he didn't feel that the churches should deal directly in trying to preserve democracy, but should serve as a reconciliation agency between the conflicting forces within a democracy.

Later, at a dinner in Pierce Hall, Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, described the work of the Unitarian Service Committee abroad, especially in Czechoslovakia, France and Portugal, emphasizing that it was one of the few agencies having a "free hand" in war relief programs.

Other dinner speakers were William G. Eliot 3d, chairman of the All Souls' board of trustees; I. D. Dawes, president of the Southern Neighbors Fellowship of Unitarian Churches, and Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, formerly Geneva representative of the American Peace Conference.

Judge H. Clay Burkholder, of Lancaster, Pa., president of the conference, conducted the sessions, which closed last night with a candlelight service led by Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, host pastor.

Japanese Expect Stroke by U. S.

Tokyo (Friday), Nov. 8 (AP).—"The United States, both in politics and armament, will try something in the next few months which will make the world sit up and take notice," the Tokyo newspaper Asahi declared today in commenting that President Roosevelt's reelection signalized the start of an American campaign of "national aggrandizement."

(The Japanese wireless, quoting the Tokyo newspaper Nichi Nichi in a broadcast heard in New York by NBC, went even further, asserting the opinion that "we shall have to conclude that his (Roosevelt's) Administration will continue to intensify its present policy and eventually drag America into war."

(At any rate, it added, "Japan is absolutely determined to remove any American assistance to the Chiang Kai-shek regime" in China.)

Jurisdictional Dispute Delays Warplane Order

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Dayton Brown, vice president and general manager of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, said tonight that production of 519 airplanes for the United States Navy at the company's Long Island City and Newark plants had been retarded by an A. F. of L.-C. I. O. jurisdictional dispute.

Picketing by the A. F. of L. teamsters union, Brown said, had prevented delivery of necessary materials.

Court Says 'No' To Farnsworth

Atlanta, Nov. 7 (AP).—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today again denied John S. Farnsworth, former United States Navy officer, his freedom from the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary where he is serving a sentence on conviction of selling naval secrets to Japanese agents. The court twice before denied freedom to the former lieutenant commander who was sentenced in the District of Columbia to serve from four to 12 years.

Negro Leaders Call Unity Meeting

A national unity meeting of colored representatives from all sections of the country, for November 15, was called yesterday in a joint statement issued by Edgar C. Brown, president, United Government Employes; Bishop R. R. Wright, jr., of the African Methodist Episcopal Church; and Dr. C. T. Murray, president of the District Baptist Convention.

"In this hour of world crisis," the statement declared, "we call upon all patriotic, loyal and devoted Negro citizens to forget all political differences and to back up the national defense program under the chosen leader of the American people, Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

HERE COMES THE DELUGE—MAYBE. Earl Carroll's definite announcement that he plans to open a super-super night spot in Washington finally clarifies rumors that have been ballooning around for months.

Carroll's project may be the vanguard of a big invasion of our town by premier Manhattan and West Coast night-spot promoters. Monte Proser, who has rocketed to a top position among nitery operators, has emissaries looking for a Washington location. If he finds what he wants, we'll have a Washington edition of the sensational Beachcombers' Club. The Stork Club's Sherman Billingsley and Leon and Eddie have been periodically talking about opening Washington spots for the last year. The election should speed up gestation of their plans. But speed will be of the essence if these nitery tycoons are to open new luxury clubs in time for a New Year's celebration.

Matt Windsor, of the Anchor Room, is due to be featured on the air waves within a couple of weeks with an important commercial sponsor. The Windsor music will divide interest with news and comment.

SONNY, THE PRECOCIOUS ONE. Though Wardman's Sonny James doesn't like the term, "juvenile prodigy," that's just what he was. At 15, Sonny was leading a band on the Atlantic City Steel Pier. At 18, he was so oppressed by looking young that he raised a moustache—with some difficulty, we understand. Sonny, at 22, is a veteran dance band leader, ranking right up among the top-notchers. His 11-man band, all under 25, has the "feel" of modern music, the high-test enthusiasm required, benefited also by the artful and involved arrangements by Joseph Buck. Listen to their version of "Daddy, Beat Me Eight to a Bar."

CASINO CAVALCADE. The Lindsay Girls at Casino Royal are being all sorts of famous stage girls this week. They enter as Floradora Girls, later transform themselves into can-can dancers of the Gay 90's, then dazzle beholders as Lillian Russells, Bessie McCoys and Eva Tanguays.

FACES AROUND PLACES. Cosmos Room. All of the National's "Glamour Preferred" cast being entertained by Walter Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Watson, Katharyn Fuqua, Ted Wingo, the lovely Misses vom Rath . . . Burt's Trans-Lux. Coach Ray Flaherty of the Redskins, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Colston, recently returned from New York . . . Robin Hood. Peter Nehemkins, counsel for the Securities and Exchange Commission. Representative William B. Barry, of New York with a visiting constituent.

Karin Zoska, Russian dancer who's been headlined at Paris' Folies Bergere and London's Savoy, will open at the Troika on Monday. This leaves just the week-end for adieus to Mimi Kellerman, who will join Sheila Barrett's new show.

STYLE SECTOR. Roselle, tiny Lotus dancer, looks like one of Vogue's tonier illustrations in voluminous white chiffon decorated with full blown roses of an odd purplish pink . . . We should have told you before that when Helen O'Connell, singer with Jimmy Dorsey's band, was in the Neptune Room she was all glamoured up in pale gray with an apple green turban on her smooth platinum bob . . . Hi Hat's Carmela Lazeri is sporting a wine-colored frock with huge sleeves and big gold filigree buttons.

BONNY BONNIE BOYD, charming songstress of the Mayflower Lounge

THE MAIL brings a bid to the "Venison Hunt Dinner" in the Pall Mall Room on November 14, together with a sumptuous menu including brook trout, roast venison, chestnut puree and "Horn Saint Hubert," whatever that may be . . . Also a note from Arthur Herbert, who played on the Roger Smith roof garden last summer and is now at the El Dorado in Dayton, Ohio, where it seems they have an Arthur Murray dance quiz like that of the Raleigh Pall Mall Room.

"THERE'LL ALWAYS BE AN ENGLAND," favorite song of the heroic English, is beginning to really take hold. Ross McLean gets a grand hand on it in the Shoreham revue, gives it the spirit you'd expect from a Canadian. First entertainer to sing it in Washington was Jean Cathon of La Salle Versailles. P. S.—All those St. Clair and Day fans at the Shoreham will be glad to know that when Earl Carroll recently visited the Blue Room he tagged this pair as "the world's best dance team."

Virginia Newall, blonde pianiste of Nadine's Coeds at Maryland Gardens, has just blossomed out as an acrobatic dancer! Madeline, Polly and Florence of the Coeds, not to be outdone, have formed a vocal trio.

SUBURBAN WEEK-ENDING. The new Del Rio floor revue, headed by George Beattie, is said to be a cross between a carnival and a four-alarm fire . . . Fun never stops at Peter Fritz' Log Cabin out Silver Spring way. Bring your own, or if you forget, there's a speedy Log Cabin messenger service . . . Jollity is king at River Bend week-ends with George Stein's band tossing out rhythm by the bushel . . . The Gay 90's always has week-end floor shows.

NEXT TUNE-OF-THE-WEEK in the Rainbow Room may be that revived oldie that's running in front, "The One I Love Belongs to Somebody Else." Drop in the Rainbow on Monday eve and they'll probably give you a copy.

PREFERRED CORNERS. The so-cozy addition to Lounge Riviera. Big chairs and soft lights. Romantic no end . . . Tables near the piano in Paul Young's Romany Room. Because it's interesting to get a close-up of the technique of De Lloyd McKaye, most amazing pianist to visit our town in months . . . The Madrillon's ringside booths are always at a premium. They're extra comfortable and roomy . . . The big leather banquettes in the Harrington Tavern are easy on the chassis, lure people to sit and chat by the hour . . . The big crescent-shaped booths in the New Bavarian are just made for parties of a half dozen or so.

MAYFAIR-ING SATURDAY. *It's Fourth of July in the Mayfair every Saturday afternoon. 62,000 Expected to View Navy-Notre Dame Clash

Hoyas Flaunt 'Beat Maryland' Banners in Rally

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Now we're beginning to get somewhere in the probe of the college football situation. Matters are boiling down to a pretty positive state and by dusk tomorrow we'll know at least which is the best football team in the Midwest. And we may have to look no farther for the best team in the Nation.

POVICH

Minneapolis is the scene of tomorrow's big test. It's Minnesota vs. Michigan and very properly it has been a sell-out for weeks. The team that wins that one can stake a potent claim not only to the Big Ten title but to national honors until it is disproven by subsequent events.

Unbeaten Michigan and unbeaten Minnesota have been moving along at a terrific clip. Bernie Bierman's Gophers have been eclipsed in point of publicity this season by their lack of a transcendant star like Michigan's Tommy Harmon. And not a single squawk has been directed against Minnesota to call further attention to the fact that the Gophers are untied and unbeaten. Cornell gained more publicity from the beef of Ohio State than from any of its victories on the field.

Somehow, Minnesota seems to be underrated. Perhaps that is because every team the Gophers have played have scored against them, and because four of their five victories have been scored by margins of six points or less. But Minnesota's record can withstand scrutiny. It is Minnesota which has been playing the toughest schedule in the Nation and winning, no matter what the margin. No other college can point to such as succession of victims as Washington, Nebraska, Ohio State, Iowa and Northwestern.

Michigan has leaped into fame chiefly on the exploits of an individual star—always sure-fire stuff—and victories over California and Penn. In California, the Wolverines beat by a 41-0 score a team that wasn't rated high on the coast. And Penn was a victim that feasted chiefly on the weak Ivy League fodder.

Tommy Harmon tomorrow will be up against the biggest set of linemen he ever did see. Bierman is a firm disciple of weight in the line and with him it is not exclusively a defense feature. His linemen pull out in front of the ball carriers on his famed power reverses and Michigan is in for a hammering, win or lose. George Franck and Bruce Smith, Bierman's best backs, have won none of Harmon's fame, but they are a pair of thoroughly acceptable backs.

One thing is certain: Bierman's Minnesota team will scarcely be awed by the presence of Harmon in a Michigan line-up. In 1938 they licked a Harmon-spearheaded Michigan team and last season again they beat Harmon and most of this same Michigan gang. Michigan already has suffered its worst break of tomorrow's game. Tom Evashevski, Harmon's No. 1 blocking aide, is hurt and out of the game in which he is mostly needed.

At Baltimore, they've fixed up the condemned Municipal Stadium to meet the requirements of the city's safety authorities and a crowd of 60,000 will pour into the place to satisfy themselves on at least one point: How good is Notre Dame? The Irish will be in there against the Navy.

The Notre Dame bubble all but burst last week-end when the Irish barely beat by 7-0 an Army team that had been kicked around all season. Except when they were scoring on an intercepted pass, the Irish were being outplayed by Army. They need a convincing victory over Navy to reestablish any title claims they may have.

Notre Dame's narrow escape from a debacle against Army may be Navy's misfortune tomorrow. It may have been the tonic necessary to gear the Irish to a bright performance against the Midshipmen. His miseries of last week could be a disguised blessing to Coach Elmer Layden who now figures to have an easier task reminding his Irish of their responsibilities and whipping them up to this Navy game.

Navy certainly has a chance to beat the Irish. That Navy team of last Saturday outplayed Penn except when their pass-throwers were throwing in panic instead of wisdom. And Navy will certainly improve on its generalship of last week because it can scarcely do worse. Coach Swede Larson was moaning on the bench as Navy quarterbacks switched from a potent running attack to a passing game in Penn territory for no reason at all.

The Middies' line outplayed Penn's throughout the game and Navy is always a threat with Bill Busick in its backfield. The Middies will come up to the game in far better physical shape than they were last week. Notre Dame will have to go all out to win this one.

Cornell will continue unbeaten and untied. Dartmouth will scarcely extend the Ithacans and Coach Carl Snavely may dispense entirely with his passing attack to polish his running game in this breather. Georgetown will doubtless win as it pleases against Maryland. But out on the Pacific Coast, Stanford may be in for it against the University of Washington which has slapped down everybody it has met since losing to Minnesota in the opener. Unbeaten Tennessee has a breather in Southwestern, but unbeaten Texas A. and M. is no cinch tomorrow, not with Southern Methodist as the opposition.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Nov. 7.—Mons. Jefferson Davis Dickson, suh, of Paris and Natchez, is now of New York and Natchez. The doughboy who remained in France after the last war, and became Europe's Jack Curley, has given up all hope of returning to the Champs Elyseestrasse. He has also retired, for obvious reasons, from his job as a French purchasing agent, and for the time being will concentrate on restoring an old French fort and Indian village at Natchez, for the tourist trade.

CONSIDINE

"I could go back to Paris tomorrow," Jeff was telling us today, "if I wanted to. I was always the neutral over there. But I'd be going back not only to a place where pro sport is a crime, but also to a concentration camp."

We thought he had said he was okay there.

"I am," he chuckled. "I mean my Palais Des Sports. The Germans have made it into a concentration camp. They've got from two to three thousand suspected saboteurs and so-called enemies of the state locked up in there. Probably some of my old boxing customers. Ironic, isn't it, that some of them might now be sitting in their favorite seats . . .

"They called y place the Madison Square Garden of France," Jeff continued, "but let's hope the Garden never goes through what my place has suffered. Do you know that in the year before the war the conflicting French politicians held 216 rallies there? And when France declared war I turned the place over to the government. They used it for a time for handing out gas masks. Then when Germany started into the low lands they locked up about 5,000 Fifth Columnists in it.

"The day the German planes came over, looking for a part of the citroen factory about 400 yards away from the Palais, one of the bombs went cockeyed and broke every window in my place. Broke the roof in, too. It was all glass . . . 8,000 square yards of it, if you must know. Killed six men in the place."

We asked Dickson to explain why Jean Borotra had become so ardent a sports-official, with a Nazi benediction on his job. "Well, Borotra's probably sincere. He's a kind of a stuffed shirt fellow . . . you know, the A. A. U. officious type. He had been campaigning against professional sport in France for a long time before the war. The Germans, as you might know have been opposed to pros for a couple of years. They were not permitting any of their promising amateur boxers to turn pro, and I doubt if there were a dozen pro fighters in all Germany before the war. So you can see how Borotra was right down the Germans' alley, when they looked around for somebody to head an antipro movement, and sponsor amateur sport."

Dickson has learned by mail that his smaller fight club, the Salle Wagram, is now being used as a food center. His Rue Volney Bar, the Silver Ring, a rendezvous of sports figures for several years, is now open only to Germans.

"There is no sport of any type going on in the Parisien area," Dickson told us. "And Lord knows when there ever will be again. I have an idea that the French can get along without boxing, wrestling, hockey and all the other things I used to put in the Palais. But what they'll miss most is the Tour de France, the annual bicycle race around the country. Desgrange, the man who started it and then started a paper called L'Auto to publicize it, died a few weeks ago.

"The American Embassy had sealed up my office in the Palais and my house. But outside of that I've heard precious little. Georges Carpentier is in Vichy, I understand, but I don't know what he is doing. That's true about Schmeling being hurt in a parachute school. I hear from German sportswriters every once in a great while. I don't know how badly Max was hurt, though."

The colorful Southerner made an effort to get a hold as a promoter here, when he returned. But found that Mike Jacobs and the Garden wanted no help. He worked for a time with the French purchasing commission, before the need of purchasing stopped. He has more energy than a powerhouse, and reconditioning a French fort and an Indian village is his current way of spending it.

Fumble, Fast Recovery Gives St. John's High Lengthy Gain

Eddie Gibbs, St. John's back, was hit so hard by National Training School tacklers on this play during yesterday's game at Central that the ball squirted out of his hands. It flew right into the arms of Billy Brokan (33), however, and the Johnnies were credited with a 10-yard gain before the whistle blew. Final score was St. John's, 25; N. T. S., 13.

Ft. Myer's Enterprise Is Victor at Garden

Capt. Wagstaff's Mount Beats 51 Entries for Bowman Cup, Feature of National Show Opening

By Anne Hagner

Madison Square Garden, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Defeating 51 of the finest military mounts in North and South America, Capt. David Wagstaff's Enterprise, of Fort Myers, made a clean round of 11 stiff fences in 35 seconds to win the coveted Bowman Challenge Cup, feature event of the National Horse Show's opening session in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Before a top-hat-and-mink audience of 10,000, which included former Postmaster General James A. Farley and Joseph Kennedy, U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain, the Fort Myer officer and his big, English-bred mare were no less than sensational over one of the toughest courses ever concocted for international competition. One of the last horses to enter the ring, Enterprise had to best the great round turned in by the Chilean Maj. Eduardo Yanez, mounted on Chilena, winner of the event in 1938. Chilena likewise had a clean score with 36 seconds, and Garden experts had already decided that she would undoubtedly win the event to give Yanez a second leg on the big trophy.

Showed Best Form

Enterprise, however, romped over the big fences in the best form of her show career and, with her shaggy mane flying in all directions, was absolutely unbeatable. Fort Myer followers held their breath as she headed for the difficult series of four fences arranged in in-and-out fashion, for the 17-hand mare requires plenty of striding room.

Fortunately for Fort Myer hopes, Enterprise "never laid a toe," as they say in the horsey set, and thus cinched the award, which was presented by Joan Crawford, of Hollywood fame. Rumor around the ringside was that the actress must have been inspiration for the performance for Wagstaff had been selected as her escort for the "Bundles For Britain" ball at the Waldrof-Astoria tonight.

The 10-year-old half-bred daughter of Mancato is the first United States mount to win a leg on the Bowman Bowl since 1934 when Capt. C. W. Raguse turned the trick with Dakota.

In the opening phase of the knockdown-and-out championship event, nightcap of the evening, the blue ribbon went to Mr. and Mrs. William Joshua Barney, jr.'s Midkiff's Melody over a long entry list of good fencers. Clean performances

Two Is Company, Three Is Crowd On Football Field

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Nov. 7.—Washington University was overrun with football players today.

Texas Christian University's squad stopped off for a workout on the way to play Detroit Saturday, and the team of Catholic University, of Washington, practiced between trains on the way to a Saturday game with the University of Tulsa.

Then there were Washington's Bears, preparing for a game with V. M. I. here Saturday.

Coach to Watch From Press Box

Detroit, Nov. 7 (AP).—Coach Gus Dorais will watch his University of Detroit football team from the press box instead of the bench Saturday when the Titans meet Texas Christian University here.

Leaving the bench for the first game since he began coaching at the U. of D. in 1925, Dorais plans to communicate by telephone with Line Coach Bud Boeringer on the bench.

"A coach can't see any too much of the play from the bench," Dorais explained, "and I believe we can improve our strategy both on offense and defense if I can see just what's going on down on the field."

Minnesota, Michigan Top Nation's Games

Former Gophers Now On Coaching Staff Of Saturday's Foe

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Nov. 7.—This "pal" stuff is all off between the Michigan coaching staff and a host of their Minnesota friends Saturday.

Under ordinary circumstances Head Coach Fritz Crisler and his assistants, Clarence Munn and Earl Martineau, might be in for a warm welcome, but not Saturday. That's the day that trio is bringing a football team to Memorial Stadium to ruin the Gophers if it can.

The game between two great undefeated football teams is the top gridiron duel in the Nation, and in keeping with that a record-breaking crowd that may approach close to 64,000 will be on hand. A sellout sign was hung out at the university Wednesday.

Crisler Was at Minnesota

Crisler was once a popular head coach at Minnesota; Martineau was one of the school's greatest halfbacks, and Munn was one of the most powerful linemen ever developed at a school noted for bruising forward walls.

There've been many triple-threat backs in Minnesota's history, but Munn was the first "triple-threat guard." Captain of the Minnesota team in 1931 and All-America that year also, Munn was used as a punter, ball carrier, and even did some passing to fill an all-around role.

Martineau's exploits on the gridiron which won him All-America honors in 1923 are legendary at Minnesota. His name ranks on a par or above such Gophers heroes as Bronko Nagurski, Herb Joesting, Pug Lund, and many others.

Game Is Hot Topic

As for Crisler, he guided the teams of 1930 and 1931 before leaving that position to go to Princeton, and eventually to Michigan. His team of 1930 won three, lost four and tied one, and in 1931 seven of ten games wound up in the victory column.

Meantime, football is the hot topic of discussion in Minneapolis pending the duel between two evenly matched teams, each of which has a powerful line and fast backs.

Michigan's scoring hopes rest mainly with the great Tom Harmon, while Minnesota expects to match his tremendous ability with George Franck and Bruce Smith, both speedy, hard-hitting halfbacks.

Dodger Game Time Moved Up to 2:05

General Manager Jack Espey of the Washington Redskins, announced last night that the time for "Skins" game with the Brooklyn Dodgers Sunday in Brooklyn has been moved up to 2:05 o'clock instead of the previously announced 2:15.

To the Victor Belong The Spoils—in France

Paris, Nov. 3 (U.P.) (delayed).—Valentin Angelmann, a boxer just demobilized from the army, fought a ten-round draw tonight with Vincent Aucejo and received the following as his purse:

One hundred francs.
Fifty litres of red wine.
One bouquet of violets.
One sack of potatoes.

St. John's High Turns Back N.T.S., 25-13

Speiss and Burns Star for Winners, Deegans for Losers

Despite a brilliant comeback by National Training School in the late minutes of the game, St. John's High found itself on the long end of the score for the second time this season yesterday, a 25-to-13 victory being chalked up in a free-scoring battle at Central Stadium.

Buddy Speiss and Steve Burns were the big guns of the victors, the first scoring two touchdwons and the second passing to two others, but the real star was young Bobby Deegans, reserve back of the losers.

Deegans Takes Over

With four losses already piled on the light Trainers, and with their star, Anderson, forced to sit out most of the game with head injuries, Deegans took over and was instrumental in every N.T.S. score. He passed 40 yards to Johnny Wade in the second period and the latter went 20 yards to score. And in the final quarter he tossed a 15-yard aerial to Lawrence Johnson, who went as many more yards to hit pay territory. By way of polishing off the performance, Deegans hurled a perfect strike to Wingman Lofty for an extra point to close out scoring.

Both teams went scoreless in the first period, but St. John's took its first lead in the second when Speiss pulled down a punt and raced across the goal from his own 40. Speiss tallied again soon afterward, this time a 10-yard slant around around end turning the trick.

Burns Converts Point

In the third quarter Burns went into action, combining with Dick Hathaway for a 30-yard aerial gain and a goal. The Johnnies only extra point was then registered by Burns on a placement.

The winners' fourth-quarter goal was set up by another Burns pass, going to Tommy Chisari for a 25-yard advance and the final Johnnie counter.

Navy-Irish Clash May Draw 62,000

2,596 Midshipmen, Largest Regiment In History, to Parade Before Game At Stadium; Sell-Out Predicted

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 7.—The largest regiment in the history of the Naval Academy—2,596 men—will parade in Baltimore Municipal Stadium Saturday before the Navy-Notre Dame football game.

Federal, State and Baltimore City officials will witness the 2 p. m. kickoff of Baltimore's major gridiron contest. Academy officials predict a "sell out" crowd of more than 62,000.

For the first time this season, the midshipman regiment will perform colorful card tricks between the halves. Bill VIII, the Navy goat, and the Academy's Band and Bugle and Drum Corps will entertain.

The officials attending the game will be Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, Mayor Howard W. Jackson, Baltimore; Admiral H. R. Stark, chief of Naval Operations; Rear Admiral C. W. Nimitz, chief of the Bureau of Navigation; Maj. Gen. W. S. Grant, commanding general, Third Corps Area.

Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, Academy superintendent; Capt. F. A. L. Vossler, commandant of Midshipmen; State Police Superintendent Beverly Ober; Commissioner of Motor Vehicles W. Lee Elgin; Baltimore Police Commissioner Robert F. Stanton.

Congressmen Expected

G. L. Nichols, general superintendent of Baltimore Parks; F. A. Hancock, Baltimore Stadium director; F. H. Durkee, president Baltimore park board, and Park Commissioners G. M. Armor, R. M. Baker, C. M. Kelly and A. E. Cross. Several Congressmen also are expected to attend.

The Navy football squad of 41 will arrive at the stadium by bus at 12:30 p. m. The Midshipman regiment, traveling in five special trains, wil larrive at Clifton Park between 12:10 and 12:45 p. m. and march directly to the stadium.

After the tilt, the Notre Dame contingent will dine with the midshipman regiment here, leaving at 11 p. m. it will be the first time in 14 years of Navy-Notre Dame football rivalry that the fighting Irish will visit the Academy as a unit.

Both Navy and the South Benders have powerful elevens with plenty of reserve strength. Unbeaten Notre Dame ranks with Cornell as the East's foremost gridiron machines. Navy will be the underdog because of its defeat last week by Pennsylvania.

The Middies went through a dummy offensive and defensive workout today with no heavy contact work scheduled. Headcoach Emery (Swede) Larson is taking no chances of incurring last-minute injuries to his players.

Navy will not be at its full

Wrigley Wants To Fire Self As Cubs' Head

Club Owner Desires More Time to Devote To Other Interests

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Owner Philip K. Wrigley, of the Chicago Cubs, revealed today that he was seriously considering firing himself as president of the club.

WRIGLEY

"I want to quit as president and devote more time to my other interests," Wrigley stated, "but I haven't found anyone to take over the presidency. So right now I don't know what I'll do."

He added he offered Vice President Charles (Boots) Weber the job again today, but Weber turned him down. The vice president announced several weeks ago that he was planning to retire from the Cub organization this winter and return to his native California.

Many stories and reports have been circulated on the probable reorganization of the Cubs' front office, but Wrigley until today had maintained a strict silence.

"What I have to do first," he explained, "in any reorganization which may take place is begin at the top. Frankly, I have been trying to decide whether I should fire myself as president. It appears that I have been adding to the confusion, if not to the men who are associated with me, certainly to the newspapers. And I do not particularly care for confusion."

Washington Fighters Join the Marines for Active Duty

Capacity Crowd Expected for Game At U. of Maryland Stadium Tomorrow

Georgetown University students carried out social obligations for the Maryland game tomorrow in a torch-light parade through the streets of Georgetown last night, carrying banners reading "Twash the Twerps" and "Whitewash Maryland."

The parade followed a pep rally on the quadrangle and a hugh bonfire on the practice field put the finishing touches to the opening of homecoming week festivities.

The principal theme of the players who addressed the rally was for the Hoya students to forget Maryland's record and also to passup the over-confidence angle. But the speeches were drowned out as the Hoya students chanted "We don't give a damn for the whole State of Maryland," and it was apparent they too are pointing for Boston College a week hence.

Regulars to Start

In a practice preceding the rally, Coach Jack Hagerty stated the Georgetown regulars would start the game and stay just as long as they were needed. He tried to impress on the boys the chances of an upset between any two schools involved in a home-town rally and told them to get down to work. The game is at College Park, kick-off 2:30.

Newest change in the starting lineup will find Bill Wixted at end in place of the unjured John Lascari, while Al Kull sophomore halfback, returned to the eligible list. Joe Mickey, the only local boy on the club, and Lascari are now the only boys not ready for the Terps.

Maryland coaches continued to prime Mearle DuVall and Joe Murphy for offensive roles while defensive measures centered around the stop Koshlap movement. The DuVall to Murphy passing combination is apparently the only hope

Toronto May Discontinue League Play

Official of Club Casts Doubt of Team Staying in League

By the Associated Press

Toronto, Nov. 7.—Doubt that the Toronto Maple Leafs might continue in the International Baseball League was cast today by an official of the club in announcing that Tony Lazzeri had been let out as manager.

LAZZERI

Arthur Leman, secretary-treasurer, issued this statement:

"In view of the uncertainty regarding Toronto continuing in the International League in 1941, Tony Lazzeri's contract as manager has not been renewed. Lazzeri severed his connection with the Toronto Ball Club with absolute good will and under an arrangement which was entirely satisfactory to all parties concerned.

"Because of the uncertainty mentioned above the Toronto Baseball Club, Ltd., has not, as yet, engaged a manager for next year, nor has it approached the Toronto Harbor Commission for a renewal of its lease."

The club leases Maple Leaf Stadium from the Harbor Commission.

Lazzeri, former New York Yankee infielder, was named Toronto manager in June, 1939, succeeding Jack Burns and was reappointed in 1940. In both seasons the Leafs finished last.

S. C. Coeds to Play Grid Game—But Sans Rough Stuff

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—University of South Carolina coeds will play a football game to raise funds for the "Bundles for Britain" cause.

The contest between elevens of the Pi Beta Phi and Delta Delta Delta Sororities will be like a men's game except for one detail—there will be no tackling; the rough stuff is out.

The programs will include the names and telephone numbers of players.

5 Eagle Hockey Stars in Benefit

Five members of the Washington Eagles are to compete in a benefit sponsored by the Red Cross in Montreal, Canada, training base of the Eagles, tonight.

Teams will be comprised of players who served in the same military camp in Canada this past summer.

Paul Courteau, Mike Germann and Norm Burns will represent one faction and Russ Rossignol and Jimmy McCurry the other. The Eagles have scheduled a final exhibition with the Verdun Red Devils for next Tuesday night prior to opening their Eastern League series with the Boston Olympics in Boston on November 15-16.

Four Washington players currently receiving treatment for injuries received in spirited scrimmages are Paul Courteau and Frank Mailley, wingmen, and John McTeer and Ross Knipfel, defensemen.

Tech Makes Title Bid Today in Clash Against Eastern High

Interhigh Battle Tops 5-Game Card

Landon, St. Alban's Meet for Unofficial Prep School Honors: Maroons in Long Drill

Cut out of all championship consideration for the last three years Tech High, a former power in interhigh circles, makes its big bid for a title berth today when it plays host to Eastern. The game, starting at 3:30, will headline a five-game scholastic card, supplementary feature of which will be a Landon-St. Alban's clash for unofficial prep school honors at the Bradley Hill's field.

To the winners of the Tech-Eastern engagement barring upsets later on goes a meeting with Western High for the 1940 championship. Eastern is defending champion as far as runner-up honors go, having met and lost to Western in the 1939 interscholastic final.

Though conscious of the importance of today's feature, the Maroon eleven went through a tough 2-hour drill under Coach Artie Wondrack yesterday, and appeared as nonchalant as though it had no game today for three weeks. Defense against Eastern's razzle-dazzle passing and running plays was stressed, but little emphasis was put on its own powerful offense. That, in the opinion of Wondrack, was probably as good as it would ever be.

Excused From Practice

Carleton Smallwood, called the hardest line smasher among District schoolboys, was excused from practice early with a sore ankle, but is expected to be ready today. The remainder of the team was in perfect shape, including the starting backfield trio of Jack Walsh, Bill Dellastatious and Vern Hollida.

Eastern also drilled extensively on Tech plays, with most of the accent being toward stopping Walsh's passes and Smallwood's rushes. Coach Mike Kelley expressed himself as satisfied with the team's condition, with Halfback Dick Coppage the only player definitely out with injuries.

Boosting White Tide hopes was the return to eligibility of Bob Byer, 190-pound end who has been unable to play since breaking his leg last year. A husky newcomer, Harry Leland, also raised Tide prospects when he became eligible for a guard position. The pair will help balance the Tide line against a Tech forward wall which far outweighs it.

Roosevelt Meets Wilson

Overlooking all gloomy forecasts, Tech would appear the winner by a margin of one or perhaps two touchdowns.

Also on the interhigh card today, but having nothing to do with the title race, is a game between Roosevelt and Wilson, at the latter's new stadium at 3:30.

In the private school championship game, St. Alban's, with four victories in five starts, ranks a favorite over a Landon eleven which has won only once in the ten-year history of the series. Both teams defeated Boys' Latin this year, however, and each victory was by a pair of touchdowns.

Only other daylight games today bring together Washington-Lee and Anacostia at the latter's field, andBurrus Prep and American U. freshmen on the Nebraska Avenue lot. Tonight Gonzaga travels to Alexandria for a battle with George Washington High, starting at 8 p. m.

Fort Myer's Enterprise Wins at Garden necessitated three jumpoffs to the tune of much cheering from the gallery.

Misfortune befell Lisbeth Stieg's Hi-Ho, one of two Washington entrants, when the little part-hackney mare had a clean round until she slammed into the last fence, a white trio of bars that was the Waterloo of many horses in the same event. Comanche, from Arlington Hall College, hit the third fence.

D. C. Entries Busy

Although Virginia, Maryland and District exhibitors will doubtless require several days to recover from the excitement of Wagstaff's activities, they face a busy schedule of open jumping and hunter events, with Enterprise boosted to a new position as ruling favorite for military honors. Prior to tonight, she had been regarded as simply another fair jumper, but her stock has gone up several dozen points since her Boxman victory.

From the Old Dominion, Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry's pair of hunters took the lead for Southern entrants in the conformation division when Cornish Hills took fourth place in a big class for hunters under saddle this morning and Wisdom's Gate annexed a yellow ribbon for third among middleweight green hunters. Cornish Hills returned with an unexpectedly bad performance in the thoroughbred event, but Wisdom's Gate, a classy-looking 3-year-old, appeared in top form.

Jumper Is Lame

Joe Perrys' hunters will have to withhold Cobham's (Va.) honors alone, for the brilliant jumping mare from the same stable, Huntley Gale, turned up lame recently and will not appear in competition for some time. It was a stiff blow to the hopes of the Virginia brigade, for Mrs. Perry and her little mount were expected to go far in the open jumping division.

Meanwhile, other Fort Myer horses showed to excellent advantage in the same event that Enterprise won, as both Capt. Charles McClelland, and Smacko and Lieut. Fred Hughes, with Black Caddy, had good performances. Smacko turned in four faults and Caddy, by virtue of a refusal, had three.

D. C. Resident Played Left End on First Grid Team at George Washington University

Henry Rogers Pyne, who played a crack game at left end for George Washington's first football team in 1890, will be University President Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin's guest at the Bucknell game tomorrow in the homecoming game of G. W.'s golden anniversary season.

The 67-year-old former gridder, whose brother, Charles, played quarterback on the same team, is the only living member of the team who resides here. His brother and Rear Admiral Charles Poor Kindelberger, retired, of Coronado, Calif., are the other living members of the original Colonials.

Pyne visited alumni headquarters at the University yesterday, where he received the tickets from Dr. Marvin. He met Coaches Reinhart and Shields and later inspected modern football equipment in the gymnasium and watched the late afternoon practice on the Polo field.

Bought Own Uniforms Then

He explained how the 1890 grid squad was a far cry from the present-day eleven, as the 14 members bought their own uniforms, took turns coaching each other and played on a field near Twenty-second and R Streets, where human arms formed goal posts in the absence of the end-zone sticks.

The Georgetown game a week from tomorrow will not only be the feature of the G. W.'s golden anniversary schedule but it will mark the fiftieth anniversary of Hoya-Colonial grid relations.

For the Blue and Gray game was also the top attraction of the 1890 schedule that included other classy opponents such as Kalorama Heights High. Emerson Institute and the Alexandria A. C. The Hoyas won, 6-0.

Scheduled For Radio Talk

Pyne is scheduled for a half-time radio broadcast during halves of the G. W.-Bucknell game but the weather holds the key as to whether or not he will attend. He has preferred the radio to attending football games for the last few years as he figured "when it was warm enough to attend the players were so sluggish and when it was cold enough for football it was too cold for me."

The member of G. W.'s original grid team served as athletic director of New York City high schools for 17 years, where his daily schedule called for attending a sports contest from September to June. This was enough, however, and he took over the Latin department after his tenure in athletics, specifically stating that he would not serve athletics in any capacity.

Coach Reinhart shook hands when introduced to the 1892 graduate, looked him over and asked him to come out for a workout. "I might need you against Bucknell."

Cox Flattens Plummer in Mat Feature

Lou Plummer stopped to argue with Referee Casey Berger in last night's feature wrestling match and the next thing he knew he was in his corner being revived after Joe Cox knocked him out in 23 minutes.

The boys spent a wild 23 minutes grappling inside the ring and out until Plummer tossed Cox and assumed he had pinned him for the count. The referee failed to start counting, however, and Plummer jumped up to argue. Then Cox jumped up, whacked Plummer on the back of the neck and K. O.'d him for the count.

Warren Bockwinkle used a half-cradle to score over Ed Newman in the semiwindup in 21 minutes, while Milo Steinborn used a bear hug to pin Chief Chewaki in 16 minutes.

It was Tommy O'Toole and Emil Dusek's turn to draw. In the opener Chris Zaharias defeated Tiger Tasker with a body press in the second longest bout of the night, 21 minutes. Over 1,600 fans watched the bouts.

Frank Guernsey Wins In Argentine Tennis

Buenos Aires, Nov. 7 (AP).—Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, Fla., defeated Jaime Durall Pujol, 5—7, 6—0, 6—3, 6—0, in the men's singles of Argentine tennis championships today, and then teamed with Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, Okla., in doubles to beat Alias Clutterback and Alberto Zappa, 6—2, 6—0, 9—7.

G. W. Eleven Promises Fans Real Grid Fight

Colonials Hold Drill for Battle With Bucknell

George Washington University gridders promised students and alumni they would make them forget the Kentucky and Wake Forest games as they went through a workout yesterday in preparation for tomorrow's homecoming game with Bucknell University.

The kickoff has been moved up to 2 p. m. at Griffith Stadium.

The Colonials can still salvage enough victories out of the 1940 season to make a commendable record for Coach Bill Reinhart and his staff, but they must win tomorrow and next Saturday over the University of Kansas, leaving the Georgetown game to take care of itself.

The injury jinx was back again yesterday and now it is again doubtful if regular Quarterback Sam Babich will be ready for the Bisons. Ken Batson, the stocky ace of the running backs, will be ready, however.

The mud of Griffith Stadium cut down the rushing yardage of the Colonials last week, and their record now stands 1,159 yards gained in six games. They do not figure to run into two bad weeks in a row, and should possess enough running power to turn back the Bisons.

The Bucknell squad will arrive this afternoon and stay at hte New Colonial Hotel. The highly publicized 75-piece band will also make the trip for the game, arriving tomorrow morning.

A torchlight parade tonight, starting at the school at 8 o'clock and proceeding to the Hotel Washington, will open the homecoming program. A pep rally will be held at the hotel and refreshments served. The homecoming queen will be crowned tomorrow night.

Fox to Miss Game Against Juniata Eleven

Ken Fox, 210-pound tackle of the American University eleven, will miss next week's homecoming game with Juniata, Coach Staff Cassell announced yesterday. Blood poisoning set in in an ankle injury suffered in last week's Hampden-Sydney game that will keep the regular lineman out of the game altogether.

The cancellation of the Newport News Apprentice School game, originally scheduled for November 23, leaves A. U. without a game after the Juniata contest. Coach Cassell is interested in booking a last-minute foe of the caliber of the Eagles.

Arndt Jorgen's Younger Brother Signed by Chisox

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Signing of Orville Jorgens, younger brother of Arndt Jorgens, veteran reserve catcher with the New York Yankees, was announced today by the Chicago White Sox.

Jorgens, 29, a right-handed pitcher, developed a sore arm last season and was released by San Francisco of the Pacific Coast League. He has seen service with the Philadelphia Phillies and two International League clubs, Baltimore and Montreal. White Sox officials said club trainers had cured his arm trouble and that he would report at spring camp.

The White Sox also announced purchase of Thurman Tucker, young center fielder, from Oklahoma City of the Texas League. Tucker, a switch hitter, led the Cotton States League in hitting with a .390 average last summer before Oklahoma City called him in from its Clarksdale, Miss., farm.

Majors Only Change Listed At Cleveland

Pilots of Other Clubs Seem Set For Next Season

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 7.—The mortality rate among baseball managers keeps shrinking and apparently the only shift in the majors for 1941 will be at Cleveland.

The new Indian pilot is expected to be named by President Alva Bradley next Tuesday. One guess is as good as another about Oscar Vitt's successor. It might be Luke Sewell or somebody the public hasn't even given a tumble. The Tribe likes surprises.

But in any event the withdrawal of Bucky Harris from the running and the almost coincident announcement this week that Joe McCarthy would return to the helm of the New York Yankees stabilized the general outlook.

Aside from Cleveland, the only club that hasn't already signed its 1941 manager or given a verbal pledge is Philadelphia in the National League. There is a sort of tacit belief that genial Doc Prothro will be back.

Long-term contracts have helped pacify the once turbulent tide of managerial upheavals. Before the 1940 season ever opened six pilots already were secure for 1941. This includes the venerable Connie Mack, who as president of the Philadelphia Athletics is also their perpetual manager.

Of the men who aren't fortunate enough to be able to hire themselves, Joe Cronin, of the Boston Red Sox is in the best spot. When he moved from Washington in 1934 Tom Yawkey gave him a five-year pact as player-manager and this was extended for another five years in 1939.

McCarthy had a three-year contract that expired at the close of last season, but Jimmy Dykes, of the Chicago White Sox, has a two-year agreement with a season to run.

The contract signed by Harris with the Senators this week was for one year, but the job is his as long as he wants it. Next to Connie Mack, the one-time "boy wonder" has the longest record of consecutive managerial service in the majors with tours at Detroit, Boston and Washington.

Del Baker, of Detroit's American League champions, was tendered a new one-year contract during the World Series and Fred Haney was resigned for one year by the St. Louis Browns in September.

In the National League Prothro had a two-year contract wtih Philadelphia expiring this year. President Gerry Nugent is expected to make an announcement soon concerning his retention.

Gabby Hartnett hasn't been signed yet by the Chicago Cubs but Owner Phil Wrigley said before the 1940 season closed that he would be retained.

Bill McKenchnie, gifted strategist of the Cincinnati Reds, still has a year to go on his two-year pact.

The Pittsburgh Pirates did the same thing for Frank Frisch at the close of the campaign, signing him through the 1942 season. Bill Terry already was under contract to the New York Giants for 1942. Casey Stengel of the Boston Bees and Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers have been signed to one-year papers for 1941 and Billy Southworth was given his 1941 okay when he took over the St. Louis Cardinals from Ray Blades in the middle of last season.

Charley Burley To Arrive Here Today for Bout

Pittsburgh Negro To Meet Turiello Monday Night at Arena

Charley Burley, 23-year-old colored Pittsburgh star, rated as the No. 2 contender for Fritzie Zivic's world's welterweight championship, will arrive this afternoon to complete training for Monday night's 10-round headliner with Saverio Turiello, New York Italian, at Turner's Arena.

Burley will be accompanied by his comanager, Phil Goldstein, and will have his first public workout locally tomorrow at 1 p. m. at the arena.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced that a regular parade of participants on the Monday show will take place in the arena ring, as arrangements have been made to have Billy Banks, who fights Tony Novello, of Patterson, N. J., in the eight-round semiwindup; Buddy Holmes, Washingtonian, who fights Tiger Flowers in a six-rounder; Oscar Wright, who meets Al Costa, of Providence in a six-rounder, and Billy Kekeris, the Greek, who makes his pro debut in a bout against Willie Ross, of Baltimore, work out along with Burley tomorrow.

This will be Burley's first match in the District, but the colored boy has an enviable record, having scored two victories over Champion Fritzie Zivic, two over Cocoa Kid and another over Billy Soose, the uncrowned titleholder.

Turiello, who has won three in a row here, will arrive late tomorrow evening. He has been training at Stillman's gym in New York.

C. U. Squad Stops Off at Washington U.

Varied Workout Staged in Preparation For Oilers Saturday

Special Dispatch to The Post

St. Louis, Nov. 7.—Catholic University's football squad worked out here today under the watchful eye of Head Coach Dutch Bergman as the Cardinals stopped en route to Tulsa and tomorrow's intersectional clash with the Oilers.

The team arrived this afternoon and went through a kicking, passing and signal drill at Washington University stadium. The team left after dinner and will arrive in Tulsa early tomorrow morning. A workout is scheduled there tomorrow afternoon.

The Tulsans are favored now to win the Missouri Valley Conference and after beating Texas Christian and Detroit on successive week-ends they rule favorites over the Cards.

Tulsa Drills Hard For C. U. Invasion

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 7 (AP).—Coach Chet Benefiel, wary of a letdown by his Tulsa football team after successive week-end victories over strong Christian and unbeaten Detroit, scheduled a hard workout for Saturday's clash with Catholic U.

The varsity, tremendously improved since the lone setback by the Texas Aggies early in the season, wasn't clicking with the customary smoothness, however, and the freshman team, armed with Catholic plays, made numerous gains.

Cornell Leading Swing Toward Offense in College Football

Cayugans Average 429 Yds. a Game

Alabama Out Front In Total Defense; Statistics Show Stress on Attack

By the Associated Press

Seattle, Nov. 7.—The printers probably have made a standing head of it by now—"Cornell again leads Nation as gridiron ground gainer"—so for a new angle we may add that Cornell also is the pace-setter for a definite swing to offense as against 1939's defensive tendencies.

New figures of the American Football Statistical Bureau, compared with the bureau's 1939 records, show:

1. That 15 teams this year have averaged 300 yards or better per game from rushing and passing, compared to only three teams with that average at this time in 1939.

2. That 15 teams this week have gained 222.5 yards average per game running, compared to only four teams at this stage last year.

3. And that 15 teams have gained 113.2 yards per game or better via the forward pass, compared to only seven last year.

Get Their Wish

So the fans who clamored for more offense in football are getting it.

As for the Cornells, they lead in total offense—gains both rushing and passing—for the fourth straight week.

The Big Red, in 5 games and 315 plays, has made 953 yards rushing and 1,192 passing, for a total of 2,145 yards, or an average of 429 yards per game—the highest mid-season average recorded by the bureau in its four-year history.

Much of the statistical showing is attributed to Halfback Hal McCullough, whose aerial shots have kept the Cayugans in the forefront of passing teams. He has accounted for 805 yards, getting 141 of them on the ground and 664 in the air by completingg 31 of 44 passes for a .705 completion percentage. His passes have averaged 15.09 yards.

Tide Defense Best

Another team that goes in for Red—the Crimson Tide of Alabama—holds leadership in total defense, holding enemy passes and ground thrusts to an average of 78.5 yards per game.

Texas A. and M., the Nation's 1939 defensive giant, retained first position in the defense against rushing department, holding the foe to 30.8 yards per game. Utah State's anti-aircraft kept enemy overhead attacks to 19.4 per game. Texas Mines, paced by Owen Price, kept first place for the fourth straight week as the best punting team, with a 42.94 average. Price's average for 26 punts is 48.15.

The leaders:

Total offense—Following Cornell are Lafayette, 345.8 yards average per game; Navy, 343.3; Boston College, 335.7; Mississippi State, 332.8; Arizona, 332.2; Detroit, 331; Texas Tech, 315.6; Michigan, 314.8; Penn State 313.2.

Rushing offense—Lafayette, 318.7; Boston College, 269.7; Michigan, 260.6; Brown, 258.8; Mississippi State, 258.

Forward passing offense—Cornell, 238.4; Texas Mines, 145.9; Marquette, 145.8; Princeton, 139; Texas, 135.2.

Total defense — Alabama, 78.6 yards per game yielded opposing ground and air offenses; Navy, 79.2; Mississippi State, 93.8; Penn State, 99.8; Boston College, 105.7; Georgia, 111; San Jose State, 117; Santa Clara, 118; Michigan, 120; Tennessee, 129.

Rushing defense—Texas A. & M., 30.8; Alabama, 37.8; Penn State, 38.8; Mississippi, 39; Arizona, 42.8.

Pass defense—Utah State, 19.4; Fordham, 26.2; Navy, 31.7; Denver, 35.8; West Virginia, 39.8.

Punting—Texas Mines, 42.94; Oklahoma, 42.10; Auburn, 42.06; Holy Cross, 41.80; Kentucky, 41.70.

The team is ready to "shoot the works" according to the Maryland publicity agent but unless the works consist of more than they showed against Hampden-Sydney, Penn, Virginia, or Florida, they will need more than that.

The Georgetown-Maryland freshmen will meet today at 3 p. m. with the Hoyas also heavily favored in this contest. Harriers, both varsity and freshmen, of Georgetown and Maryland, will run tomorrow and finish between the halves of the game.

With a full house expected, free parking on the practice fields East of Byrd Stadium will be thrown open to the public.

Radio broadcasts will co-feature today's pre-game activity. Arch McDonald will bring John Reckford, president of the Maryland Student Body to the WJSV mike tonight at 6:15 with Norwood Sotheron, ex-Terp grid ace. Joe McFadden and Lou Ghecas will be the Hoya representatives.

Ray Michael will have rival Coaches Jack Hagerty and Al Woods on Station WMAL between 7:30 and 7:45, with Maryland Athletic Director Geary Eppley and Hoya tackle Augie Lio.

Tony Wakeman's 8 o'clock program will include a miniature pep rally over WOL, with Clem Stralka and Jim Meade, G. U. and Maryland alumnus of the Redskins, and Jim Ruby, alumni secretary of Georgetown, on the program.

The Brooklyn president, however, refused to comment on the report that if the ball club is sold he'll be paid off in full to the end of 1941.

15,211 Witness N. Y. Ice Victory

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP).—A crowd of 15,211 hockey fans helped the Chicago Black Hawks establish a new opening game attendance mark at the stadium tonight, but the Hawks themselves had to submit to a 1 to 0 defeat in their National League debut against the New York Americans.

The only score came in the third period after a ragged exhibition by both clubs. Johnny Sorrell and Wilf Field swooped down on Goalie Paul Goodman after a Hawk surge had been broken up and Sorrell tallied from close in at 6:01. Field got the assist.

Gaels Prepare For Duquesne Scrap

Moraga, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP).—The St. Mary's football squad, with a record of four consecutive victories, put in extra time on the practice field this week for its game with Duquesne at San Francisco Sunday afternoon.

"Red" Strader, Gael coach, called his squad out to the field a half-hour earlier the past two days and put the boys through a rigid workout, despite a heavy rain.

Baseball Heads Show No Worry Over Draft

No Appeal Made to Government for Players Called to Be Allowed Two Six-Month Periods Between Seasons

By George Kirksey
United Press Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 7.—No one yet has figured out how much the draft is going to affect baseball. But the baseball bosses can't be too worried about the situation, because they made no attempt to appeal to the Government for permission to allow players drafted to do two six months hitches between seasons.

Many of the players don't yet know what their numbers are because they registered in one locality and gave their permanent addresses elsewhere. Some clubs have advised their players to send in their draft numbers as soon as they find out what they are, while others haven't even bothered to look into the situation. The New York Yankees, for one, haven't made any attempt to find out if any of their players are in danger of being called to the colors soon.

The Yanks' attitude may be because only two members of last year's clubs are single and in any danger of being called. They are Outfielder Tommy Henrich and Pitcher Atley Donald. The Yanks do not have complete data on their 1941 crop of rookies, but it is known that Phil Rizzuto, the sensational shortstop from Kansas City, who is being touted as the successor of Frankie Crosetti, is 22, single and has no dependents.

Bob Is Safe

The draft is a lottery on a giant scale, and no one who's single, able-bodied and without dependents, can be sure when he may have to report to Mr. Whiskers. It's been the opinion of most baseball men that at least one prominent star would be mustered into service early, just to convince the others that Uncle Sam isn't going to play any favorites. Officials of the Cleveland Indians held their breath until Bob Feller's serial number, 3585, was drawn. It came in 7,486th place, meaning that

Phils Must Sell Higbe Or Mulcahy

Hurlers on Block To Pay for Players Recently Obtained

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—Price tags—reported to be marked $150,000 each—were hung on Pitchers Kirby Higbe and Hugh Mulcahy today by President Gerald Nugent of the Philadelphia Phillies.

"It is absolutely necessary that we part with one or two others to pay for the players we bought this year," Nugent said.

The deals are planned in an effort to "strengthen our ball club" which finished last in the National League, Nugent added.

Higbe won 14 and lost 19 games during the past season. Mulcahy was credited with 13 victories against 22 losses.

There were reports that Brooklyn, New York and Cincinnati were interested in Higbe, while Chicago's clubs liked Mulcahy.

In addition to the cash, Nugent asserted, the Phillies must get an experienced pitcher in exchange.

Santa Anita Begins Boom For Challedon

Handicap King's Arrival to Stir Coast Horse Park

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Nov. 7.—The tub thumping soon will start full blast out Santa Anita way. Challedon, my Challedon, is heading West.

Challedon not only is the handicap king of the Nation, but a complete shipment of apples in the Santa Anita eye. Challedon at Santa Anita this season is worth $1,000,000 in cash. Challedon not at the local horse park could mean a very dull winter.

The exact minute of his arrival will be given play-by-play treatment, plus a committee of dignitaries to see that the Marylander gets a red carpet welcome.

Upon the noble head of this thoroughbred will rest the weighty crown of all hubbub attached to the running of America's richest horse race—the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Each year Santa Anita hooks its prestige to the tail of a horse, so to speak. One year it was Twenty Grand. Then it was Cavalcade and Discovery. After that came the Seabiscuit era.

It might be a good idea, then, for some one to tip Challedon off that the bigger the hullabaloo, the harder it is to win this race. He can refer to Twenty G's, Cavalcade and Discovery for verification.

But unless W. L. Brann's beauty breaks all four legs, he should walk in with the booty next March 1. An advance roll call of his probable foes lists such contenders as Can't Wait, Mioland, Gallahadion, Kayak II, Fairy Chant, Sweepida, Big Flash, Heelfly and Porter's Mite.

Challedon made a big hit in his one and winning appearance here in the Hollywood Gold Cup last summer. If he runs anything like that race again, he ought to be able to carry 133 pounds impost, a ton of Santa Anita ballyhoo and still win.

Armistice Rites To Precede Raider-Viking Battle

A day off from school and the prospects of an interesting program are expected to bring scholastic football fans of Washington out in droves Monday for the Armistice Day clash between Central and Western at the Mount Pleasant Stadium.

A patriotic ceremony, starting at 2 p. m., will precede the kickoff. Taps will be played in honor of World War dead, followed by the flag-raising, and finally composite cadet units of Central and Western will parade.

The game will start at 2:15, it was announced last night. Western, defending interhigh champion, will be a strong favorite, having already clinched first place in the western division. Last year the clubs battled on even terms with Central finally bowing by 21-27.

John's Star Wins Over Older Horses in Heiser Handicap

Merritt Rides 2-Year-Old At Pimlico

Juvenile Scores Over Abrasion; Skin Deep Runs Third in Feature

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

to win the Heiser Handicap, feature event for the only 2-year old in the field, and Jockey Bobby Merritt, who has been making a comeback, teamed to win the Heiser Handicap, featuring today's program. Carrying the light weight of the party of six, John's Star seemed unmindful of the important reputations of his older opponents and outgamed them in a thrilling drive. He won by a neck margin from J. W. Y. Martin's Abrasion. The latter was a half length in advance of Mrs. A. J. Abel's Skin Deep, with the favored Speed to Spare forced into fourth position.

Racing in the colors of Miss Elaine Carver, John's Star had only a scattered backing and paid $27.90. He ran the 6 furlongs in 1.13 1-5 over a fast track. A chilled crowd of 8,000 saw the action.

John's Star was Jockey Merritt's second straight winner, the veteran having booted Gino Rex home in the previous event. Merritt is the husband of Babs Ryan, former singing star of stage and radio, and they have two lovely little girls.

Mrs. Merritt gave up her career for that of a homemaker and Bobby, after suffering serious injuries, abandoned the saddle for a trainer's job. This fall Merritt decided to quit training and returned to the saddle. He chose to campaign in Maryland instead of his native New York. In his first appearance in this State he finished second and seemed more tired than the horse. Since then he has gotten into best shape and has been booting in brilliant style.

Donned Wrong Colors

Merritt made only one mistake in today's feature. He donned the wrong colors, coming to the paddock in the silks of Gould Shaw, for whom he was riding Shipmadilly in the seventh race. It was too late to change into John's Star's colors but the colt probably did not know the difference.

John's Star followed close to Speed to Spare's pace while Merritt rated him. Entering the stretch, Merritt began to urge John's Star and the colt moved up. On the outside, Abrasion began a charge. Inside the eighth pole, John's Star went to the front and he managed to hold Abrasion safe in the closing test. Skin Deep was in close quarters entering the stretch but failed to get to the other two.

A well played combination accounted for the $31.50 payoff in the daily double. The Dixiana Farm's Just Enuf won the first race by a length from the Milky Way Stable's Good Stymie, with Bad Cold third, in a limit field of a dozen juvenile colts and geldings. Jockey Willie Garner booted Just Enuf into the lead in the stretch and the son of Torchilla held on with good energy in the final drive, to pay $11.

Charlene, owned by Bobby Curran, of Silver Spring, Md., won the second race, leading virtually all the way in the test of a mile and a sixteenth. Isadore Bieber's Stairs was second, with Lonely Road third. Eleven cheap platers competed this time. Charlene, carrying light weight in the person of Apprentice C. McCreary, produced an individual mutuel of $9.20.

Three Spills in 'Chase

Three spills marked the running of the steeplechase. Fairford, Speculate and Don Roberto all went down With the exception of Jockey J. Brooks, who was kicked in the right hip, the horses and riders were O. K.

The Sanford Farms' Arch Hero, $4.20 favorite, led almost every hop of the way in the 2-mile test under good handling by Jockey H. W. Clements. The son of Dark Hero jumped sideways several times, but landed steadily and won by eight lengths. Jockey J. Penrod gave the Log Cabin's Chuckatuck a fine ride, but the son of The Nut just wasn't good enough. Wreckonite, of Cumberland, Timonium and Bel Air fame, took third money simply because she did not fall.

ABRASION, well placed on outside, closed gamely, but was no match for winner. SKIN DEEP had trouble approaching stretch and closed willingly. SPEED TO SPARE showed early speed, but quit badly in last 70 yards.

Dear Al:

Let's make this column strictly news today.

Trainer John M. Gaver shipped the Greentree Stable's Hash and Cherry Jam to the Whitney Farm at Red Bank, N. J. Owner-Trainer Louis Steinhardt shipped Affirmation, Indomitable and War Noise from New York to Laurel. He will remain in Maryland until the 1940 campaign ends November 30 at Bowie. Trainer Pete Clausen reports that Braxton was cut down in his last race here. J. W. Webb shipped Halcyon Boy, Belmar Arra, Boy Baby, Repeller, Cadet Bob and Mousie from Rockingham to Bowie. Bill Norton shipped Tarat, Hup Nancy, Ecopan and Trump Ace from Rockingham to Bowie. Jockey Sammy Williams was an arrival from Rockingham to join the Motor City Stable. Trainer Elmo Shropshire shipped Paul Andolino's Old Joe from Rockingham. Old Joe has been named for several stakes later in the month at Bowie. Hermar, Ophelia 2d, Strolling On and Tar Miss have been placed on the schooling list by Starter Jim Milton. Connie Smythe, whose Sir Marlboro won the Troy Handicap at Rockingham, wired that the horse would reach Bowie tomorrow to fulfill his stakes engagements. Jockey R. Haber is due today from Chicago. He will remain in the East for the Bowie and Charles Town meetings. C. M. Feltner's Dulie, which suffered cut ankles in the scramble rounding the first turn in Wednesday's fourth race, will be rested up for a time before making his next start. This morning at 10 a. m. the Maryland Horse Breeders Association will conduct a sale of horses in training in the paddock of the Pimlico race course. A. G. Vanderbilt announced the purchase at private terms of the mares Savage Beauty and The Schemer from William L. Brann, of Glade Valley Farm. Both mares will be sent to the court of Discovery in the spring of 1941. Six wins in five days of racing. It's more than one a day for Jockey Carroll Bierman as he piles up a comfortable lead in the race for riding laurels at the current meeting. Bierman's success on Maryland tracks this season has marked one of the best riding achievements seen in the East in years. Earl Sande made his first appearance of the meeting. He reports that no furiher efforts will be made to train Stagehand. The Maxwell-Howard-owned horse will be sent to Kentucky for stud duty, while the remainder of the string will be sent to Columbia, S. C., and later to Miami. President Harry A. Manly, Clifford W. White and Nelson W. Russler, officials of the Cumberland Fair Association, were visitors yesterday. See you on the rail. BILL.

First Race—Silver Rocket was a good fourth in New York recently behind top line juveniles. He appears well placed in this affair. Button Hole, another New York invader, raced well at that point and rates next in line. Port Alibi should go well.

Second Race—Cuckoo-Man, dropping down a trifle, falls into a good spot here and late form indicates that he is on edge. Russia was close up last start and may be rounding to form. Joanny disappointed in her last but can be expected to do better.

Third Race—Santi Quaranti has whipped contention of this caliber during his fall campaign and given an equal share of the break, should do it again. Danny Deever won his last and is rated the most serious contender. Forest Charm moves up after his recent winning performance.

Fourth Race—Nilon has been consistently close in late races and though he failed to enter contention in his last, he figures to be slightly best of these cheaper grade platers. Candle Ends has speed at times and could threaten on best effort. Merry Morn might be close.

Fifth Race—Baby Booties was only a couple of lengths off the victorious Bain Marie on Wednesday and was second to Dr. Bones at Laurel. She meets a field she can beat in this number. Shambles closed well in his last and might make trouble in the late stages. Flying Duke for show.

Sixth Race—Ocean Blue looked like a real champion when he romped home in front of Hy-Cop Monday. Moving up to meet stakes performers today, he appears capable of repeating. Harvard Square accounted for his last in New York and looms as the most formidable contender. Misty Isle to beat the others.

Seventh Race—Dusky Fox turned back a speedy band of routers in an allowance event last start in New York which gives him a slight edge over Vintage Port despite the latter's winning effort here this week. Son Altesse was a beaten favorite behind Vintage Port and should not be overlooked.

Eighth Race—Get Off was the choice to whip Hash and Foxbrough in the Riggs but failed to display his usual speed. Pitted against much cheaper company today he stands out as the class. Rosetown seldom runs two races alike but her last race was a good one. Up The Creek just missed in his last and is a money factor.

Best bet—Get Off.

Local Stocks Show Burst Of Activity

Buoyant Tone Evident In Ten Traded Issues; Bid Prices Better

With turnover the heaviest in about five months, issues on the Washington Stock Exchange showed a buoyant tone yesterday. The sudden burst of activity apparently was inspired by a swift forenoon upturn on the New York Stock Exchange.

Of the ten issues traded here, six were higher, two were unchanged and two declined. Bid prices showed a general strengthening.

Two sales of Capital Traction first 5s were reported, the first at 104¼ and the second at 103¾. Previous close was 103¾.

On the up side were Washington Gas Light preferred, Mergenthaler Linotype, Washington Gas Light common, Columbia Title Insurance, People Drug Stores common and American Security & Trust.

Showing recessions were Potomac Electric Power 5½ preferred and Capital Transit.

Underwriters Hear Troth

Punctuating his points with cartoons, Paul Troth, Home Life of New York supervisor, addressed 99 members of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters' Association at luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Lee Sheraton.

"Security isn't represented by great wealth," Mr. Troth told the underwriters, "but by the certainty of a little to assure life's necessities." He was presented to the underwriters by Vernon W. Holleman, general agent of the Home Life.

John D. Marsh, general agent of the Lincoln National Life, presided, opening the meeting with a definition of democracy, and a pledge of loyalty to the Roosevelt Administration.

Among guests at the luncheon were Bill Werber, third-baseman of the world champion Cincinnati Reds, who conducts an insurance business here, and Jack F. Crofoot, newly-appointed general agent of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co.

Towson Quits Bank Post

Harry G. Meem, president of the Washington Loan and Trust Co., announced yesterday that Norman E. Towson has submitted his resignation as assistant treasurer and manager of the foreign department to become assistant to the director of the Office of Foreign Funds Control in the Treasury Department. Mr. Towson had been "loaned" by the bank to the Government for several months and his appointment to the permanent position in the United States Treasury made it necessary to terminate his service of 23 years with the trust company. The resignation was accepted with regret by the board of directors.

Shareholders Invited

The personal touch in big business will be brought to General Mills stockholders in Washington and vicinity. James F. Bell, chairman of the board, has invited all area shareholders to meet with him at the Hotel Washington at 4 p. m. on Thursday, November 14, to discuss affairs of the company.

A novel experiment, according to Mr. Bell, will be the depicting of the story of the company's financial operations through the medium of motion pictures General Mills has conducted or will hold similar stockholders' meetings in seven other key cities.

Air Lines Show Gains

Continued sharp gains in passenger revenues for October were reported yesterday by United Air Lines and Pennsylvania-Central Airlines, both of which have large stations in Washington.

The local office of United Air Lines reported that passenger revenue here in October gained 82 per cent over the same month last year, and 16 per cent over September, 1940. October business generally was almost 60 per cent ahead of that for the same month last year. Because October traffic on coast-to-coast and Pacific Coast routes continued heavy, the company will retain summer travel schedules at least through November, it was announced.

Pennsylvania-Central Airlines reported its Washington office in October showed a 101 per cent increase in passenger traffic over the same month last year. For the entire system a 103.56 per cent gain in revenue passengers carried and a 106.66 per cent increase in revenue passenger miles flown were recorded last month over October, 1939. PCA's October traffic marked the twenty-eighth consecutive month that the airline's traffic has shown a substantial increase over the corresponding month for the preceding year.

Just 30 Years Ago

Yesterday marked the thirtieth anniversary of the first air express shipment in the history of transportation, according to local Railway Express officials.

The first package to be transported by air consisted of five bolts of silk weighing 50 pounds, and valued at $1,000, and it was carried in a skeleton-frame Wright biplane from Dayton to Columbus, Ohio, 65 miles, in 71 minutes, by Phil O. Parmelee, pilot, whose course for part of the way was marked by a large white streamer waved from the back of a Big Four train. That was on November 7, 1910.

Stocks Race Higher, Ticker Lags On Plan to Raise U. S. Debt Limit

Inflationary Signs Seen in Suggestion By Morgenthau

By Frederick Gardner

New York, Nov. 7.—The public went buying in the stock market in spectacular fashion today, erasing the previous session's post-election lows and shoving the price of leaders as much as 8 points higher.

The day's best quotations were reached just before the close with the ticker tape running two minutes behind transactions and the floor of the exchange a bedlam.

The recovery move got under way with the opening, then went into high gear when Secretary Morgenthau asked for an increase in the national debt limit. Many analysts saw in the suggestion inflationary implications and a definite assurance of continued heavy defense spending.

The Associated Press index of 60 selected stocks made its biggest jump in 14 months, rising 2 full points to 46.6, its highest in six months. Transactions totaled 2,083,060 shares, making it the biggest session since last May 22. Yesterday's total was 1,209,320 shares.

904 Issues Traded

Proof of the public participation came in the fact that 904 issues—only 326 less than the total listed—were traded. Of these 745 advanced, 67 declined and 92 closed unchanged.

Chief attention centered on steels, as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Crucible established new highs for the year, but no section of the list was neglected in the movement.

Among the day's best performers were Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas, United Aircraft, Sperry, Harvester, Case, Caterpillar, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, Eastman, Johns-Manville, Allied Chemical, Dupont, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, American Smelting, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, American Telephone, Western Union, Texas Corporation, Santa Fe and Great Northern preferred.

Curb Also Strong

Similarly strong gains were made in the Curb by Aluminum of America, Colts Patent Fire Arms, Puget Sound Power, Jones & Laughlin Steel, Humble Oil and Lake Shore Mines. Here about 265,000 shares changed hands, compared with 233,000 yesterday.

The bond market joined with enthusiasm today, corporates gaining 1 to 2 or more points and U. S. Governments adding major fractions to more than 1.

It was the most active session since last May, with sales at $12,245,925, par value, compared with $5,393,200 on Wednesday.

The utility, industrial and low-yield groups used in the Associated Press averages attained new tops for 1940.

Star performer of the session was the U. S. Government group. Within a few minutes after news tickers carried the Washington announcement of Secretary Morgenthau, buyers went into action.

U. S. Bonds at Peaks

At the end most of the Government list was in new high ground and net gains ranged up to 1¼ points. Government dealers pointed out removal of the tax feature in future Government loans would undoubtedly bring a sweeping change in investment policies of many large investors, both private and institutional, and a scarcity of tax exempt securities was freely forecast.

Corporates ending up major fractions to 2 points or more included Allegany stamped 5s at 56½, Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s at 53, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio 4s at 60, Commonwealth Edison 3⅛s at 121⅛ and Nickel Plate 5½ at 72½.

Foreign dollar gainers included Argentine 4s, Japan 6½s and Australia 4½s.

Sharp N. Y. Gain Boosts Clearings For 23 Cities

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Despite the election holiday, last week's bank clearings for 23 leading cities showed gains over the previous week and the corresponding holiday period in 1939, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Gains in both instances were due in large part to substantial expansion in check transactions at New York.

The turnover totaled $5,672,930,000, a rise of 10.7 per cent over last year's $5,124,465,000. The increase over the preceding week amounted to $28,672,000.

New York clearings at $3,364,296,000 were 15.2 per cent more than the $2,920,209,000 for the same 1939 week. The 22 outside cities accounted for $2,308,634,000 against $2,204,256,000 last year, a gain of 4.7 per cent.

Detroit, Atlanta, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia were well ahead of last year.

Boston Wool

Boston, Nov. 7 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—The wool market in Boston was rather quiet today. Fine territory wools received an occasional inquiry, but sales were slow. Medium grades of domestic wools were very quiet. Prices were steady on domestic wools. Holders of foreign apparel wools were inclined to advance asking prices. Buyers generally were showing a waiting attitude.

Foreign Exchange

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—The "free" British pound sterling closed ¼ cent higher today at $4.04¼ in foreign exchange dealings.

The Hongkong dollar was up .09 of a cent.

Most all other major foreign currencies were unchanged.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Official Canadian control board rates for U. S. dollars, buying, 10 per cent premium; selling, 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying, 9.91 per cent; selling, 9.09 per cent.

Adm. Conard Named Chairman of Barium

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—The election of Frank Huston as president and general manager of the Barium Stainless Steel Corp., was announced today. Admiral Charles Conard, of Washington, was elected chairman of the board.

The company reported the resignations of J. A. Sisto as president and chairman of the board and of F. G. Norsworthy as a director.

Huston formerly was vice president of the Donner Steel Corp. of Buffalo, N. Y. The Barium Co.'s plant is at Canton, Ohio.

Spot Deliveries Unattainable on Woolen Fabrics

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Because of the huge demand for clothing and blankets for the Army and Navy, spot and nearby delveries on a wide variety of woolen fabrics are almost impossible to obtain, the New York Wool Top Exchange Service reported today.

Contracts on large quantities of cloth for the Army, said the service, have tied up production of many plants for several months ahead.

Concerning the wholesale price situation, the service said that judging from latest contracts the market was up an average of 35 cents a yard on cloths made of wool similar to those used in defense orders.

The Navy was reported to have entered the market for more than 1,500,000 yards of heavy goods on which bids will be opened November 19.

Washington advices said defense measures included War Department permission to purchase foreign as well as domestic wool to meet needs.

Copper Price Lower

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Engineering and Mining Journal said today the average price of copper net at Atlantic seaboard refineries (about .225 cents under Connecticut Valley) declined during the week ended yesterday to 11.795 cents a pound compared with 11.838 cents the previous week.

Bank of England

London, Nov. 7 (AP).—Great Britain continues to add moderately to its gold currency backing, the weekly Bank of England statement showed today. Bullion rose £78,000 for the third successive increase, after a period in which the item had shown large declines. Notes in circulation increased £1,919,000, more than canceling a decrease of last week, which barried the total to a low for several months.

Private deposits rose £8,143,000, continuing the recent trend, but public deposits again declined, this time by £5,313,000, about the same as the decline in the previous week. The detailed statement follows (in thousands of pounds):

Circulation 593,490, increase 1,919; bullion 801, increase 78; reserves 37,311, decrease 1,841; public deposits 12,927, decrease 5,313; private deposits 167,656, increase 8,143; government securities 136,408, increase 6,370; other securities 24,595, decrease 1,661. Ratio of reserve to liabilities 20.6 per cent, compared with 22 last week. Bank rate 2 per cent.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Woolen goods were firm at the best levels of the recent price advance today. However, the piece goods trade looked for an easing of the tight position of mills in view of sanction of the use of foreign wools in Government contracts.

Trading in cotton goods was quiet, with sales for the week reported running about in line with production. Prices were fully maintained.

Accelerated volume of business continued for both plain and print rayon weaves. Acetate crepes and novelty fabrics also were active. The silk goods markets remained quiet.

Sales were reported on the basis of the following quotations for immediate delivery: Print cloths, 39½, 64x60s, 5.35, 5½. Broad cloths, 37, 100x60, 4.10, 7. Sheetings, 37, 48x48, 4.00, 6@6¼. Combed lawns, 40, 76x72, 9.00, 6¾@7.

$200,000,000 Cut Asked in Carrier's Capitalization

By the Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission issued a plan of reorganization yesterday for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway which calls for sharp reductions in capitalization on fixed interest charges, and make no provision for participation of present stockholders in the reorganized company.

The plan calls for total capitalization of $351,180,912, compared with present capitalization of $553,313,003.

It would reduce annual fixed charges from $13,726,179 to $2,415,519.

The commission found the equities of the holders of the preferred and common stocks to have no value and made no provision for stockholders in the plan.

Total fixed interest debt of the reorganized company would be $64,943,184. Of this, $28,002,124 would be in undistributed equipment trust obligations and $36,941,060 in first mortgage 4 per cent bonds.

Other capitalization would include $60,000,000 general mortgage 4½ per cent income bonds, $75,000,000 of preferred 5 per cent stock and $151,237,728 of common stocks.

Bank Excess Reserves Off 200 Million

Money in Circulation Rises 120 Million During Week

By the Associated Press

Lendable excess reserves in Federal Reserve member banks decreased by $200,000,000 in the week ended November 6, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

This brought the total down to $6,730,000,000. It was the second consecutive week in which excess reserves dropped, although in the previous week the decrease amounted to only $10,000,000. The reduction was attributed principally to an increase of $120,000,000 in money in circulation and $89,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended November 6 member bank reserve balances decreased $198,000,000. Reductions in member bank reserves arose from increases of $120,000,000 in money in circulation, $89,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks, $34,000,000 in Treasury cash, and $21,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and a decrease of $19,000,000 in Reserve Bank credit, offset in part by increases of $82,000,000 in gold stock and $4,000,000 in Treasury currency. Excess reserves of member banks on November 6 were estimated to be approximately $6,730,000,000 a decrease of $200,000,000 for the week.

"The principal change in holdings of bills and securities was a reduction of $6,000,000 in United States Government securities, direct and guaranteed: Holdings of bonds decreased $2,000,000 and of notes $4,000,000."

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended November 6, 1940, were reported as follows:

Another Peak Set By Power Output

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Electric power production set a new high record for the third week in a row during the seven days ended November 2, the Edison Electric Institute said today.

Latest output of 2,734,402,000 kilowatt hours was .8 of 1 per cent higher than 2,711,282,000 in the preceding week and 7.8 per cent ahead of 2,536,765,000 in the comparable 1939 week.

Because the rise was more than seasonally anticipated, the Associated Press power index, based on 1929-1930 as 100, advanced and set a new high for the year at 133.9. This compared with 132 in the previous week and 129.3 a year ago.

London Stocks

London, Nov. 7 (AP).—The stock market today was less active than on Wednesday but prices were mostly higher in all groups except coppers. Substantial buying interest continued in Kaffirs, both dividend payers and non-payers advancing further gains. Turnover in industrials broadened, with shipping and insurance shares in demand. Home rails, especially the junior stocks, pointed higher. There was little interest in oil shares.

British funds rallied late in the session and Japanese bonds were well ahead at the end of the day. Brazilian issues, however, were in limited supply at minor concessions.

Copper shares were weak after a reduction in the dividend rate on Rhokana Corporation.

Tulane, 'Bama Battle to Top South Football

Game to Mark Second-Place Fight In Conference Race

By the Associated Press

Four exponents of slam-bang football will supply the fireworks in Southern football Saturday, and although no championship is at stake the games likely will draw more fan attention than the week's intersectional fare.

Tulane, in the thick of the fight after a slow start, collides at Birmingham with Alabama in an argument over second place in the Southeastern Conference race. Both won last week, Tulane scoring a 13-to-0 victory over Clemson, and Alabama roughing Kentucky, 25 to 0. The impending game has been raled by Birmingham sports writers as "the battle of the sledge-hammers."

On the rebound, after losing a 14-to-13 decision to Georgia last week, Auburn's Tigers clash with once-defeated Clemson at Auburn, with Coach Jack Meagher putting his blue chips on a sophomore halfback, Billy Yearout.

Two intersectional games engage Southern teams, Mississippi sending Hapes-Hovious & Co against Holy Cross at Worcester and South Carolina entertaining Kansas State at Columbia.

Only two undefeated Southeastern teams are in the lists—Tennessee and Mississippi State—and each is expected to win handily, the Vols against little Southwestern of Memphis and Mississippi State against twice-beaten Louisiana State. Conference games also match Georgia and Florida, Kentucky and Georgia Tech, and Vanderbilt and Sewanee.

Draft No Worry For BaseballHeads

Bullet Bob is safe for at least two years or longer under normal circumstances.

But if the boys start marching in earnest and there's serious shooting taking place, then baseball is likely to get hit hard along with other sports. There will be many players who'll volunteer like Capt. Eddie Grant, who was killed in France in 1917, Hank Gowdy and others did in the first World War. Others will wait for their number to be called.

Eligibles Listed

There are more than 50 players in the two major leagues who are single and in a position to be called if things get really tough.

Here are the prominent players who are unmarried and apparently most likely to have to answer the call to arms:

Five reserves will be in the Navy starting lineup, Larson said. They are big Gene Flathmann, tackle; Ed Svendsen, guard; Bob Froude, right end; Bill Chip, quarterback, and Phil Gutting, right halfback.

On the basis of the probable lineups submitted by both teams' coaches, Navy's starting team will outweigh Notre Dame by one pound, the Middies average 191 pounds.

Team of 1915 To Be Honored

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 7.—Members of the University of Virginia's 1915 team, generally regarded as the greatest in Cavalier football history, will be honored here Saturday in connection with the Virginia-Washington and Lee game.

Most of the starring cast of 25 years ago, which reached spectacular heights in Southern and Eastern collegiate circles, is expected to respond to the invitation of Athletic Director Norton Pritchett to hold a silver anniversary reunion and watch the game as guests of the university.

The occasion is also the university's annual Commonwealth Day event, and Senator Carter Glass and Gov. Price will head the State's official family at a ceremony given in their honor.

Coached by Dr. Harry Varner, who chose El Paso, Tex., for his practice of medicine, and Dr. Rice Warren, resident physician at Woodberry Forest, both recent graduates at the time, Virginia's 1915 team blasted an undefeated course in sectional competition with Randolph-Macon, Richmond, Georgia, V. M. I., Vanderbilt, South Carolina and North Carolina.

Virginia crushed previously undefeated Vanderbilt, 35 to 10, in the Southern classic of that season, but the highlight for the Cavaliers was a victory over Yale, which took ranking as the first major triumph for a Southern team in such an intersectional venture. The only loss was to one of Harvard's finest teams, and the Crimson made it on field goals.

The brilliant backfield of 1915 was quarterbacked by Norborne (Bunny) Berkeley, now a Bethlehem Steel executive. The halfbacks were Edward Anderson, of Richmond, whose ball-carrying featured every game of the season, and Eugene (Buck) Mayer, one of the greatest backs of his time, who died in an officers' training camp during the World War. Dr. Harold Sparr, of Memphis, Tenn., played fullback, and Richard Tippett, of Baltimore, alternated at halfback.

Soldier, Tried As Slayer, Tells Of Death Pact

Fort Meade Private Says Woman Friend And He Agreed to Die

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Nov. 7.—An Army private who testified he entered into a suicide pact with the mother of three children told in circuit court today how he survived and his companion died.

Charged with first-degree murder, Private George F. Williams testified the woman he loved, Mrs. Ella Carroll, Washington, succumbed to carbon monoxide poisoning in his parked automobile near Fort George G. Meade last June 23.

A hose directed the exhaust fumes into the closed car, Williams said. He regained consciousness in the machine, and found Mrs. Carroll unconscious on the running board. Although the fumes gave him a severe headache and affected his eyes, Williams said he placed her inside the car and ran for help.

Collapsed on Way

He had to lie down in a nearby road to get an automobile to stop so he could get aid, Williams testified.

Both he and Mrs. Carroll, he said, had talked of committing suicide "on and off" during the last 6 years of their 12-year friendship. Mrs. Carroll was separated from her husband when she entered into the suicide pact, Williams asserted. He quoted her as saying she would rather die than live with her husband.

Defense counsel informed Judge Ridgely P. Melvin that Mrs. Carroll's religion prohibited her from seeking a divorce.

Williams said he and Mrs. Carroll rode on June 23 to a cabin on the Washington Boulevard, where they discussed a suicide pact and decided to drink and "get it over with."

Mrs. Carroll mentioned "gas" and he told her he had a rubber hose in the car, the Army private testified.

Denies They Quarreled

They were riding on a side road after visiting several places, Williams quoted Mrs. Carroll as saying there "this is as good a place as any." He denied he had quarreled with her that day.

Both he and another defense witness testified that Mrs. Carroll had attempted to commit suicide several years ago.

Defense counsel said Williams, stationed at Fort Meade for more than 16 years, had a good army record and had never been in trouble before.

State's Attorney Marvin I. Anderson argued that the crime was first-degree murder and cited out-of-State cases in which survivors of suicide pacts had been convicted of first-degree murder.

Attorneys Wilbur R. Dulin and Edward G. Chaney, whom the court appointed to represent Williams, said there were no precedents under Maryland law dealing wit' a similar case.

Judge Melvin gave the defense until tomorrow to submit a memorandum on the case.

Red Cross Workers Plan Speed-Up Of War Supplies

Speeding up of production of garments for British war victims by volunteer workers in Red Cross Chapters was discussed yesterday at a meeting of 24 women leaders of the organization presided over by Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, director of the Red Cross Volunteer Special Services.

Mrs. Davis told the group that "our Volunteers also are soon to undertake making a quota of surgical dressings for the United States Army." The inauguration of special training of women volunteers in Red Cross services for hospitals and cantonments also was discussed.

Members of the group from Washington, besides Mrs. Davis, included Mrs. Hugo Huettig, chairman of staff assistance; Mrs. Wallace C. Linde, surgical dressings, and Mrs. R. C. MacKay, vice chairman of Volunteer service.

Belvoir Carpenters Must Pay Union $25 Down to Get Job

Frank Howard, local business agent of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (A. F. L.), yesterday denied that the organization in any way is trying to "slow up national defense" by demanding a $25 down payment on a $50 membership fee required of all carpenters on national defense construction work at Fort Belvoir, Va.

His statement followed an announcement by an official of the Charles H. Tompkins Construction Co. that "the union is unable to furnish sufficient men for the job." The official said nearly 2,000 men, including approximately 500 carpenters, will be needed within the next week to hasten construction of cantonments for 10,500 troops at the fort.

The Tompkins company official said the union has agreed to admit carpenters to membership on the job for work when it is unable to supply workmen who already are members.

Work on the Fort Belvoir cantonment and replacement camp began two weeks ago. About 2,000 men are now at work there.

Howard said that carpenters accepted by the union are given cards entitling them to go to work immediately after their down payment of $25. They are given 30 days in which to make the final $25 payment, plus the first month's dues of $2.10, before becoming full members of the union, he said.

John Stoddard, of East Falls Church, Va., a carpenter seeking work on the job, appealed to The Post yesterday after he said he had been told by a construction foreman at Fort Belvoir that it would cost him only $10 to join the union.

Stoddard said he came to local offices of the union at 1010 Tenth Street Northwest with $10, expecting to be admitted to the organization, and was told that the down payment was $25—in spite of what the foreman told him.

"I haven't got the $25 and I need the work," he told The Post. "And there are plenty like me."

Howard denied that any foreman could have given out such information. "It was probably some laborer who didn't know what he was talking about," he said.

Navy Retires Lieut. Massey, 'Honor Slayer'

Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., one of the central figures in the 1932 Hawaiian "honor slaying," has been retired from active duty, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

No official reason for the termination of Massie's career was forthcoming from the high command.

It was recalled, however, that the officer had been ordered back to this country from the Far East about a year ago and last spring entered Naval Hospital. He later was transferred to St. Elizabeths Hospital from which he was discharged several months ago.

At Pearl Harbor eight years ago, his former wife, Thalia Bell Fortescue Massie, allegedly was assaulted by a group of Hawaiians. Her mother, Massie and two Navy enlisted men were arrested for killing one of the natives. They were convicted of manslaughter but freed after a nominal one hour's imprisonment. Clarence Darrow was their attorney.

Several years later, Lieut. Massie became involved in another international incident at Tsingtao, China. His second wife reported she had been slapped by a Japanese sentry. Representations from the State Department to the Tokyo government followed.

Mrs. Ella Burdine, Takoma Resident For 41 Years, Dies

Mrs. Ella Anne Burdine, 81, one of the early residents of Takoma Park, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital after an illness of four months.

Mrs. Burdine lived at 6603 Eastern Avenue, Takoma Park, with her son, Sergt. H. Burdine, of the Montgomery County police department. She had resided in Takoma Park for 41 years. She was a charter member of the auxiliary to William Redmond Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and also a member of the auxiliary to the Takoma Volunteer Fire Department.

Surviving are three other sons, Ward P. and Eugene D., of Takoma Park, and George C., of Washington. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

Funeral services for Mrs. Burdine will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow at the Pumphrey funeral home, 8424 Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring, Md. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

New Chevy Chase Church Unit Plans Show Progress

The Chevy Chase Baptist congregation's proposed new $75,000 church auditorium moved closer to reality last night, as a motion was adopted to secure definite specifications and plans.

Speaking at a dinner meeting in the parish hall near Chevy Chase Circle, Harold E. Burton, building survey committee chairman, outlined results of months of study on the new project. The congregation proposed selection of a building committee, which will consult with architects and builders and present their findings at a later meeting.

According to the Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor, the present plans concern the main auditorium, first unit of a three unit plant, the educational and administration buildings to be erected later. Construction of the auditorium will start in the spring of 1941.

Margaret Garry Funeral Services

Funeral services for Miss Margaret E. Garry, employe in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for approximately 20 years, will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, with high requiem mass at St. Gabriel's Church, Grant Circle.

Miss Garry, 39, who had been in ill health for two months, was stricken suddenly at her home, 1756 Columbia Road Northwest, and died at Emergency Hospital a few hours later.

Miss Garry was a clerk in the bureau where her father, the late James T. Garry, was employed for many years. She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Agnes Hayes, Washington; Sister M. Bonita, Fairbault, Minn., and Sister M. Constantia, Bloomington, Ill.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery

37 Barnard College Girls to Visit Capital

Thirty-seven girls from Barnard College, New York, representing students from Latin-American countries and Spanish classes will arrive here tomorrow for a visit to the Pan American Union. They also will be entertained at the various South American legations.

The girls will be accompanied by Prof. Carolina Marcial-Dorado and Miss Arsenia A. Arroyo, of the college Spanish department.

C.I.O., A.F.L. Truce Held Probable If Lewis Quits

By International News Service

Definite moves to end the four-year war between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations will be launched at the forthcoming national conventions of both organizations, informed labor sources predicted yesterday.

Resumption of peace negotiations, broken off 20 months ago, is expected to be ordered by both conventions, which meet November 18, the A. F. of L. at New Orleans, and the C. I. O. at Atlantic City.

Close followers of labor developments anticipate greater success for the negotiations, with a definite agreement and reunion of the two great labor organizations before the end of the year.

Chief factors pointing toward peace, they said, include the resignation of John L. Lewis from the presidency of the C. I. O., promised by Lewis if President Roosevelt, opposed by Lewis, was chosen for a third term.

To Ask Lewis to Stay

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Delegates to the Greater New York Industrial Council of the Congress of Industrial Organizations voted tonight to ask John L. Lewis to reconsider his preelection decision to resign as C. I. O. head if Roosevelt were reelected.

C.I.O. Asks Cut In Job Pay Wait

Sidney R. Katz, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland and District Council of the C. I. O., yesterday requested that the District Unemployment Compensation Board reduce the initial waiting time for receipt of weekly benefit checks from two weeks to one.

His request was made on behalf of his organization in a letter to John Marshall, director of the District Board, which was made public last night.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Arts Club of Washington presents Elizabeth Travis in a piano recital Thursday night. Program: Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue (Bach), Fantasia in C major (Schumann), Berceuse, Etudes in G flat major, C sharp minor and A minor (Chopin), Danse d'Olaf (Pick-Mangiagalli), The Whirling Doll (Dennee), Russian Dance from "Petrushka" (Stravinski).

Members and guests of the Arts Club enjoyed last evening a recital by Elizabeth Travis, a young pianist who has not only arrived at an accomplished stage but is also going places. Since her appearance here a few seasons ago as soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra, she has made gains all along the technical lines in velocity, in brilliance, in dynamic diversity and in rhythmic elasticity. Unless the usual signs of talent fail, her abilities will presently fuse into a notable artistry.

Ray C. B. Brown

Paraphrasing Shakespeare's apothegm, one may say that some musicians are born pianists, some achieve pianism, and some have pianism thrust upon them. Miss Travis unquestionably belongs in the first category. She has an obvious feeling for piano tone, and she works through the keyboard and not upon it. Her expressiveness is more than a momentary flare of temperament; it burns with a steady flame that makes her phrasings glow. In her playing the impetuosity of youth is tempered with the radiance of instinctive artistry.

Breadth and profundity of interpretation she has yet to attain, for they are qualities of experience and maturity. One's interest at present is caught and retained by the freshness of her approach to such classical monuments as Bach's chromatic fantasia and fugue, which she views not so much with awe as with delighted perception.

Her reading of Schumann's C major fantasia was the fullest disclosure of her pianistic instinct. This work, which the composer thought of as a sonata in memory of Beethoven, is actually ungrateful for the instrument because of that preconception. Miss Travis evidently realized this inadequacy, for she dwelt not upon precisely technical performance of awkwardly phrased passages but upon the poesy inherent in the music.

Her Chopin group was characterized by a buoyant spirit and fluency, with a delicate touch for the airy flights. Speed and scintillance were concentrated in her closing pieces by Riccardo Pick-Mangiagalli, Charles Dennee and Stravinski. In this elated mood she was ready to respond to the cordial requests for extra numbers by playing Mozart's Turkish march, Liszt's "Gnomenreigen" and Chopin's A flat major waltz.

A trio of worthy gentlemen, convinced of the fact that further good will between the Americas can be fostered by radio, are setting off for a several-weeks' tour of South America today with the idea of doing something about their idea.

They are William Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System; Paul White, its news director, and Edmund Chester, its director of Latin-American relations. Traveling by air they're visiting Panama, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil and Venezuela and expect to come back fully armed with data which will guide them correctly in having this country's future broadcasts to South America, Columbia's at least, done in exactly the South American way.

Their findings, after they've consulted with national leaders and with Columbia's representatives in South America will be utilized when the eight antennas of C. B. S.'s two new 50,000-watt short-wave stations start operating toward South America within a few months.

Chester joined Columbia only this week after being head of the Latin-American Division of the Associated Press for more than eight years. He's a native of Louisville, Ky., and started his newspaper career on the Louisville Courier-Journal. That he's interested in promoting friendly Latin-American relations is fairly well proved by the fact that just a month ago he was married to a young lady named Enna Rogers Moreno, of Chile.

110-Foot Limit On Buildings Asked for D. C.

Zoning Commission To Hold Public Hearing On Plea December 4

Limiting the height of future buildings to 110 feet will be discussed at a public hearing before the Zoning Commission December 4 at 10 a. m., in the District Building.

The proposal, sponsored by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, may or may not affect the proposal to build the $15,000,000 "crystal city" at Temple Heights. The promoters of the development have asked for approval to construct some building above the 130-foot height district. This petition is now before District authorities.

The change sought by the planning commission is designed to place a definite limit on the number of persons residing or working in any district of the city. In addition, the planning body has in mind a more uniform skyline for the District. The commission also will consider a proposal to raise from 60 feet to 90 feet the height restrictions along Massachusetts Avenue, from Twentieth to Twenty-second Streets Northwest.

Meantime, the Zoning Commission approved a change in zoning to permit erection of two additional stories on the Columbia Medical Building, northeast corner of Nineteenth and I Streets Northwest. The two stories will serve as an annex to the Doctors Hospital, which adjoins it.

The Board of Zoning Adjustment approved the following petitions for variances:

Appeal of the National Metropolitan Bank of Washington, trustee for the estate of John B. Henderson, for permission to establish an educational institution at 2437 Fifteenth Street Northwest.

Appeal of Frank S. Phillips for permission to erect a temporary office building incidental to residential development at 5010 Palisade Lane Northwest.

Appeal of Mrs. Lionel Atwill to permit erection of a fourth floor addition to the dwelling at 1400 Thirty-fourth Street Northwest.

Pet Ocelot, Gift To Maj. Haynes, Now Resides in Zoo

Washington's zoo yesterday had a new specimen, a frisky Mexican ocelot, whose arrival is the indirect result of a Bolling Field air crash which took the life of a noted pilot 17 months ago.

As a cub, the ocelot belonged to the small son of Francisco Sarabia, "Mexico's Lindbergh," who was killed on June 7, 1939, when his plane plunged into the Anacostia River a few moments after the take-off for Mexico City. The flier's body was flown back by Maj. Caleb V. Haynes, Army Air Corps. To him, as a token of the family's appreciation, was presented the Sarabia family pet.

Maj. Haynes made the ocelot the mascot of his Langley Field squadron. It was given the name of "89," after the number of the bomber in which it was flown from Mexico.

In the ensuing months "89" grew larger, its teeth sharper and its claws more formidable. A few days ago Maj. Haynes queried Zoo Director William M. Mann as to whether he'd like another ocelot for the collection.

That's how the Army flier happened to have a wildcat on a leash when he stepped out of his plane at Bolling Field Wednesday. Yesterday "89" was on exhibition in the small mammal house.

Lawyer Terms Hopson 'Man Who Made Mistakes'

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Howard C. Hopson, a founder of the now bankrupt Associated Gas & Electric System, was pictured today at his mail fraud trial as "a man who made mistakes, but who worked incessantly for the good of the company."

The description was by his attorney, Fred A. Ironside, jr., who said the evidence would show Hopson worked "incessant hours" in building up the system from a relatively small concern in 1922 to a widespread utilities network doing a $1,000,000,000 business.

Special Assistant Attorney General Hugh A. Fulton yesterday accused Hopson of swindling the system of $20,000,000.

Hopson, a small, bald man, slumped in a chair, frequently closing his eyes, as his attorney outlined his case.

Medical Society Backs Pre-Marital Syphilis Tests

The District Medical Society, for the first time, has gone on record in favor of premarital examinations for syphilis.

It was learned yesterday that the society, at a closed business meeting Wednesday night, approved in principle a proposed bill drafted at the District Building and providing for compulsory blood tests for prospective newlyweds.

The District Commissioners indicated recently that public hearings on the suggested legislation would be held before they decide whether to recommend its enactment to Congress.

'Friendly' Ickes Query Made To Publishers

Wants to Know Why They 'Consistently' Back Losing Side

Secretary Ickes, an early supporter of a third term for President Roosevelt, gave this statement to reporters yesterday.

"Today, through the correspondents at this press conference I wish to address a friendly inquiry and also an invitation to the newspaper publishers of this Nation.

"We have just come through a great Presidential campaign with the results that you now know. During the campaign much was said of the function of a free press in a democracy. Now we find, according to Editor and Publisher, that eight years ago our citizens elected a President who was supported by only 40 per cent of our daily press. Four years ago we elected a President who was supported by only 36 per cent of the press. Last Tuesday, we elected a President who was supported by less than 23 per cent of our daily press.

"Rewinning That Confidence"

"This reveals an unprecedented and progressively perilous situation requiring public consideration. Although we are fortunate in having free communication over the air, I am convinced that our democracy needs, more than ever before, a truly free press that represents no class or economic group and that will rewin the confidence of our citizens because it is worthy of rewinning that confidence.

"As the heat of political controversy dies and the wounds of strife heal and we seek national unity in this crowded hour of our history, there comes a great opportunity to our publishers to meet this challenge.

"I invite them, through their columns, to comment."

"Rights of Readers"

Ickes told reporters present that he was inviting newspapers which opposed the President to tell their readers editorially "how they happened consistently to support the losing side."

"The press is not free when it expresses only the views of one social or economic side of a national issue," Ickes commented.

"What does the newspaper represent? Its readers? Have they any rights? A newspaper used to say it represented its readers and leading public sentiment. Newspapers ought to represent as honestly as they can the views of the people they serve."
